WILSON SPEECH STARTS 1916 FIGHT

Appeal to Partisanship Opens the Campaign and Makes Him the Centre of It.

ASSAILED IN THE SENATE

Borah Likens President's Views on Party Solidarity to Those of Corrupt Bosses.

MEXICAN POLICY ATTACKED

Flag That Will Not Protect Its Citizens a Dirty Rag, Says Idaho Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Whatever else it may have produced, President Wilson's Jackson Day speech at Indianapolis has served to crystalize partisan sentiment and to start at this early period the formation of political lines in preparaion for the Presidential campaign of 1916. It is apparent that the line-up for next year's campaign is already being formed with the President as the centre of the activity.

The Indianapolis speech was the text of severe criticism in the Senate today by William E. Borah of Idaho, who has been mentioned prominently as likely to be a leading candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination next year. Champ Clark, in an after-dinner address, has mentioned Senator Borah in complimentary terms in this connection.

The fact that Mr. Borah took occasion today to reply in a severely critical view to rPesidential Wilson's Indianapolis address, must have a deep significance to those concerned in National politics. And the fact that Senator Williams of Mississippi grasped the opportunity afforded by the partisan debate in the Senate to predict that Mr. Wilson would be the next candidate of his party for President, and found nobody to contradict him, was also of considerable significance.

Politicians of both the major parties, in and out of Congress, have taken it for granted that the Indianapolis address was intended by Mr. Wilson as a declaration of his candidacy for renomination. Since his return to Washington the President has deprecated the view that he intended to "start anything" (the phrase is Mr. Wilson's) of that character, but Republicans and a considerable number of his party supporters will have none of it, and on every hand there is evidence that the country is to have continuous discussion of public affairs and Presidential possibilities from a partisan standpoint from now on.

While Republicans in the Senate today were criticising Mr. Wilson for alleged intention of trying to run the Government and Democratic predication was heard in that body that Mr. Wilson would soon be renominated and re-elected by a majority instead of a plurality of the popular vote, the statement was being put out in what was described as "a virtually authoritative" way that William G. McAdoo of New York, Secretary of the Treasury, had no intention of becoming a candidate for the Presidential nomination in succession to his father-in-law.

Skirmish Already On.

And there were other things that tended to show that skirmishing preliminary to the Presidential contest had begun. One of the straws, which to some minds indicated which way the wind of politics was blowing, was the announcement of the President to make speeches at early dates before large organizations. Mr. Wilson has delivered comparatively few addresses in public since he has lived in the White House and has been credited with an indisposition in that direction. Another, showing seemingly an inclination on the part of his political opponents to deal with Mr. Wilson as a partisan candidate and not as President, was the course of a Republican Congressman in the House today to obtain a ruling from Speaker Clark as to whether members of the House would be privileged to question Mr. Wilson whenever appeared to address that body and the Senate, assembled in joint session.

The Speaker's ruling was that such a privilege existed. Again, evidence accumulated that every effort was to be made to adjust the difference within the Democratic Party in the Senate over opposition on the part of the Democratic Senators to the President's disposition to make nominations to offices without consulting certain men of his own political beliefs in the upper House who had incurred his displeasure by opposing Administration policies.

Reports that Secretary McAdoo would be found in the race for the Presidential nomination next year have been circulater more or less freely in Washington lately. These reports were based on the premise that Mr. Wilson would not seek another term, but would throw all his influence in the direction of having the honor go to his son-in-law.

Remarks, attributed to persons close to the Wilson family, that "stranger things have happened," and suggestions from others supposed to have the confidence of the President that Mr. Wilson "had not made up his mind as to whether he wanted another term," gave some appearance of verity to speculation of this sort. But among those best informed there was no disposition to consider the renomination of the President as other than inevitable. It was therefore no surprise to prominent Democrats in Washington that the President in his Indianapolis address appeared to indicate that he expected to be the party's candidate next year.

McAdoo's Position.

Since his return from the Pacific Coast Secretary McAdo has been asked by many of his callers about the truth of a statement he was alleged to have made in Chicago to the effect that he knew President Wilson would not stand for a second nomination. This interview

DOVER FORTS REPULSE TWO SUBMARINES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DOVER, Jan. 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—About midnight last night the sound of heavy firing caused a great deal of animation and excitement on the seafront at Dover and vicinity. As soon as the sound of heavy guns from the eastern fort was heard people began to hurry toward the shore. Lights began to appear in the windows of houses, and soon there was a large crowd in the streets and on the promenade.

The cause of the firing was the subject of much speculation, as in the darkness nothing could be seen seaward excepting the flashes of searchlights. Information, subsequently obtained, shows that a lookout on the breakwater was reported to have sighted a hostile submarine, and firing immediately followed this. The submarine disappeared in the darkness.

Earlier last night batteries on the east pier were in action, owing to a report that another submarine had been seen in proximity to the harbor entrance, but after a couple of rounds had been fired the vessel disappeared.

That two enemy submarines were sunk is authoritatively denied.

MAY SHIFT HINDENBURG TO LEAD IN THE WEST

Germans Said to be Clamoring for the Transfer of the National Hero.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that travelers arriving in that city from Germany report that in response to a popular demand Field Marshal von Hindenburg, commander of the German campaign against Russia and the popular hero of Germany, is likely to be transferred to the western front in the Spring.

Gen. von Benckendorff von Hindenburg, who is over 70 years of age, was a retired General of infantry when the war opened. He had been in command of troops in East Prussia and had a thorough knowledge of Russian Poland. He had once commanded the Foot Guards in Berlin and had received several decorations from the Kaiser. His knowledge of the country in the eastern area made his services indispensable, and he was called to active service and took command of the forces in East Prussia, then (Aug. 19) being rapidly invaded by the Russians, who had concentrated around Königsberg and Allenstein.

At the latter place, on Aug. 27-29, four Russian army corps were driving two German army corps before them, when two more German corps recently transported from Belgium suddenly appeared on the Russian right rear, destroyed two Russian corps, and took 70,000 prisoners. This had the effect of clearing East Prussia of Russians and of placing von Hindenburg in full command of the German and Austrian forces in the eastern area. Three times he has led his troops eastward from the confines of Posen, and twice he has been driven back. His third trial has now been going on a month. Its most significant event has been the capture of Lodz—evacuated by the Russians for strategic purposes—on Dec. 6.

ITALIANS VOLUNTEER ALL OVER THE WORLD

Two Thousand Applications Sent to Garibaldi From Buenos Aires, 1,500 From New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHIASSO, (Swiss-Italian Frontier), Jan. 13.—Preparations for war are increasing.

Ricciotti Garibaldi is receiving thousands of letters from Italians wishing to enlist. Some of them come from abroad, mostly from America. Buenos Aires offers about 2,000, New York City 1,500, Montevideo 1,000, Chicago 800, and Rio de Janeiro 600.

The French Government has announced that it will allow all Italian volunteers now in France to return to Italy if the latter enters the war.

GERMAN FLIES NEAR LONDON

SHEERNESS, Jan. 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—It is reported that a German aeroplane was seen over the Thames between Southend and Sheerness shortly before Tuesday midnight, but was out of range of the guns at Sheerness and Shoeburyness, and they did not fire on it.

The night was dark, but the aeroplane was clearly discernible by the aid of powerful searchlights at Sheerness, which burn continuously from dusk to dawn. The aeroplane disappeared seaward.

LONSDALE'S FATE IN DOUBT.

Death Sentence Not Yet Commuted, Reports from Berlin Say.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A news dispatch received here from Antwerp says Berlin reports that the death sentence of Private William Lonsdale has not been commuted. The statement that such action had been taken is characterized as premature.

Londsdale is a private in the British Army. Captured by the Germans, he was imprisoned at Döberitz, where he attacked one of the camp guards. He was tried by a court martial and sentenced to death. An effort was made to save Lonsdale, and this included an appeal from the finding of the military court. The Berlin dispatch says that the Appeal Court has not yet handed down its decision.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE IN EAST PRUSSIA

Germans Driven Back and Several Villages in Masurian Lake Region Occupied.

MLAWA AGAIN THREATENED

FRENCH CHECK AT SOISSONS

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 14.—The Russians have resumed the offensive in East Prussia, while the Germans continue to attack them in Poland, and they are again trying to cross the Nida River, in Southern Poland, which is held by the Austrians.

The renewed activity in East Prussia indicates that the freezing over of the Masurian Lakes, for which the Russians have been waiting, has at last occurred, for otherwise it would be impossible for troops to advance through the narrow defiles defended by the Germans. As it is, several villages have been occupied, one of them, strongly fortified, being carried by a bayonet charge, and that German cavalry supported by infantry, which sought to check the new movement, was driven back.

The Russians also say they have made a further advance to the southwest of Mlawa, another indication that they contemplate a repetition of their attempt at an invasion of East Prussia from the east and south, despite the fact that repeated German attacks south of the lower Vistula, in Poland, are keeping them fairly busy. These attacks are being made at different points, and, according to the Russian official statements, are easily repelled.

There is no recent account of the fighting in Southern Poland and Galicia, but a Bucharest dispatch says that the Russians have begun an attack on the Austrian fortifications in the mountains that divide Bukowina, now in their possession, and Transylvania, an attack on which is considered likely to bring Rumania into the war on the side of the Allies.

GERMANS HALT FRENCH GAINS NEAR SOISSONS

Railroads of Germany Run Only Troop Trains as Reinforcements are Rushed Forward.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Germany's determination to force the fighting once more on the western front is made apparent both by the increased activity of her troops near Soissons, and by the news (coming by way of Amsterdam) that all ordinary passenger traffic has been stopped on most of the German railroads until Jan. 18. This measure has been taken to expedite the movements of troops and munitions of war.

In today's fighting around Soissons the French were made to feel the effect of German reinforcements. They failed in heir effort to debouch from Crouy, and had to yield positions to the east of that place. Special interest attaches to the conflict near Soissons, apart from the fact that it was the heaviest fighting reported in the course of the day's official dispatches, since it is taking place at the point of the Germans' line nearest to Paris, which is only sixty miles away.

SAY GENERALS ARE ANGRY.

Russians Assert Baffled German Leaders Waste Men's Lives.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—This is the last day of the Russian year, and it finds Marshal von Hindenburg's great armies in Poland reduced to the activity of digging themselves into a bleak landscape before positions which, even if taken, would signify nothing.

There are many signs that the German Generals are becoming very angry at the barren performances into which their second invasion of Poland has developed. Their wrath expends itself in waste of their own men's lives.

Yesterday, before dawn, they sent a strong column in dense formation to seize a small farmhouse, where they must have known the Russians were ready and waiting for them. The Germans had to charge across a stretch of snow dazzlingly lit by two propectors from the Russian side and were shot down like rabbits with scarcely any loss to the Russians concealed behind their earthworks. When the skirmishers went forward at daylight they found over 500 dead Germans in one field. Yet this engagement will be called only a skirmish, and many such are fought daily in chance positions along the winding line of contact among the river banks in West and Central Poland. In the regions where no fighting is reported the Germans are mostly digging to keep themselves warm.

Von Hindenburg is faced with the fact that the only successful readjustment of his force in Poland must be sudden; but the closeness of the opposing armies to each other and their enormous numbers make this impossible. The only indication of an impending change in the German campaign is a continuous diversion of troops to the southern area. It is believed that the garrison of Cracow is now composed exclusively of German troops.

AUSTRIA CHANGES FOREIGN MINISTERS

HUNGARIAN GETS THE POST

He Is Baron Stephan Burian, an Authority on Balkan Affairs—A Surprise to Capitals of Europe.

VIENNA, Jan. 13, (via London.)—Count Leopold von Berchtold, Austrian Foreign Minister, has resigned, and his resignation has been accepted.

Count von Berchtold will be succeeded by Baron Stephan Burian von Rajecz, Minister of the Royal Court in the Hungarian Cabinet.

The communication published in the evening edition of the Fremdenblatt, announcing the retirement of the Austrian Foreign Minister, says:

"Count von Berchtold, who for a long while desired to retire and who had asked the Emperor to relieve him of his office, renewed the request. The Emperor, recognizing the important personal reasons moving the Foreign Minister to take this step, has granted his request.

"Count von Berchtold will be succeeded by the Hungarian Minister, Baron Stephan Burian von Rajecz."

BERLIN, Jan. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—A statement issued by the Official Press Bureau today said:

"The Austrian Emperor has agreed to the renewed demand that he accept the resignation of Count von Berchtold, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, which was tendered for important personal reasons.

"Count von Berchtold's successor has been appointed. He is the Hungarian Minister to the Royal Court, Baron Stephan Burian, a son-in-law of Gen. Baron Fejervary, ex-Premier of Hungary. Baron Burian was formerly Minister of Finance and chief of the administration in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The change in the Austrian Premiership came unexpectedly."

Causes a Diplomatic Sensation.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The announcement from Berlin, and published also in The Vienna Fremdenblatt, that Count von Berchtold, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, has resigned and has been succeeded by Baron Stephan Burian, has caused a sensation in diplomatic circles in Europe.

Count von Berchtold, who directed Austro-Hungarian foreign relations for a number of years, had on a number of occasions, both before and after the Balkan wars, asked Emperor Francis Joseph to relieve him of office. But the continued unsettled conditions which followed the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina made this impossible.

Anxious therefore as he was to retire, it was not dreamed that he would do so while the war was in progress, for it was considered that such action might suggest that his policy had fallen into disfavor. More significant than his resignation, however, is the announcement that he is succeeded by a Hungarian.

Hungary, while at one with Austria in regard to the principle of the war, has shown dissatisfaction with the manner in which it has been prosecuted. While Austro-Hungarian troops have been utilized to prevent a Russian invasion of Germany and even employed against France, Hungary has been left open to invasion.

Count Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, on several occasions gave utterance to this dissatisfaction, and finding that his complaints were not heard at Vienna, took them to Berlin, where he had an audience with the German Emperor. Although it was said that after this trip the interests of Hungary received more attention, Count Tisza did not stop his agitation, and in a speech on New Year's Day complained that Hungary's position had not been fully recognized. Insisting upon military and political harmony between Hungary and Austria and Germany, he said pointedly that the Hungarian nation must assume the place which it deserved in consequence of its material and moral strength, its active energy, and the fact that all its interests, aspirations and desires were in complete accord with the true interests of the monarchy.

The Vienna papers took Count Tisza to task for this speech, one of them, Die Zeit, saying that it was impossible to reply on account of the censorship. The appointment of Baron Burian suggests that the Emperor has decided to give Hungary a greater voice in the government of the country.

MAY SHIFT DACIA TO HOLLAND PORT

OUR GOVERNMENT WARNED

Retransferrence of Americanized Ship to Germany Would Involve Claim for Damgaes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, visited the State Department late this afternon and conferred with Secretary of State Bryan and Solicitor Johnson regarding the case of the American steamship Dacia, which was recently transferred to the United States flag under the new ship registry law.

The Dacia was formerly a Hamburg-American Line steamship, flying the German flag, but had been tied up at Port Arthur, Texas. Definite information has been on hand in Washington for some days to the effect that the Dacia, which contemplated shipping a load of cotton from Galveston to the German port of Bremen, would be seized on the high seas by the British authorities and taken before a British prize court for determination as to the validity of her transfer of registry from Germany to the United States.

The owners are now endeavoring through the State Department to obtain an arrangement whereby the steamship loaded with cotton may be permitted to proceed to a Netherlands port instead of to one in Germany.

The questions involved in the Dacia case have been made the subject of a special communication from the British Embassy to the State Department in which the general attitude of the British Government toward the transfer of the flag on merchant ships of belligerent nations have been quite fully stated.

It has been made plain that among othe rthings the British Government is unwillin gto take the risk of permitting a German vessel, after it has once been transferred to the American flag, to go to a German port, thus escaping the consequences of capture under cover of the American flag, and after arriving at the German port being changed back to German registry, or, if not so changed, being commandeered by the German Government. The position of the British Government is that if this can be done in the case of the Dacia it would be done in the case of the Imperator and every other Hamburg-American or other German ship now tied up in American ports.

There is nothing on the face of the papers or in anything the new owners have disclosed to the Department of Commerce that indicates that there is any reversionary right involved in the case, and, so far as the Department of Commerce has been able to ascertain by thorough scrutiny of the papers, the sale to Edward N. Breitung of Marquette, Mich., was a bona fide one, though the price was very low.

It is understood that the British Government regrets that another Hamburg-American steamer, the Alexandria, which recently obtained American registry and became the Sacramento, transferred its flag under suspicious circumstances at San Francisco, sailed for Chile with a cargo, turned its cargo over to Admiral von Spee's German warships on the Chilean coast, and then put into Valparaiso. The Cautain of the Sacramento, a German, asserted that he had been halted by a German warship and his cargo commandeered.

The Sacramento case has been rigidly investigated by three Governments—those of the United States, Chile, and England, and it is stated that the facts ascertained are not at all gratifying. The Chilean Government has interned the Sacramento at Valparaiso on the ground that it acted as an auxiliary or supply vessel for the German warships.

The United States Government has been informally but nevertheless definitely advised that should a German steamer be transferred to the American flag and should succeed in reaching a German port, and then should be transferred back to the German flag, a claim would be presented against the United States for damages on the ground that the transfer was not bona fide and a fraud was perpetrated.

SKIRTS FOOLED SLEUTHS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Barrymore Stetson, the youth convicted of having robbed railroad stations and telephone coin boxes along the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad from Mount Vernon to Stamford, may have fooled railroad detectives on the watch for him by arraying himself in woman's clothes. He was sentenced today by City Judge Swinburne to four months in the penitentiary, and tonight was held by Justice of the Peace Stiles of Pelham to await the action of the Grand Jury on the second charge.

The detectives say that they were on the watch frequently for a young man, and that they are satisfied now that Stetson, who was arrested last Friday, fooled them frequently by masquerading as a girl. He is only 21 years old and of slight figure, and the detectives say he made a dashing young woman.

So far the detectives have little more than suspicion on which to accuse Stetson of posing as a girl, but they say that when they taxed him with it he laughed heartily and refused to affirm or deny the charge.

WOULD BAR JACK JOHNSON.

Carranza Men Anxious to Stop Fight for Villa's Profit in Mexico.

EL PASO, Jan. 13.—Because it would increase the war chest of Gen. Villa, the Carranza government will oppose the entry into Mexico of Jack Johnson, the American negro prize fighter, who is booked to meet Jess Willard in Juarez on March 6, according to Andres Garcia, the Carranza consul here. Garcia telegraphed today to the "First Chief" that Johnson was a fugitive from justice in the United States and suggested that he must present recently issued American passports before he would be allowed to pass through any port held by the Carranza forces.

Johnson at present is at Buenos Aires, or on his way north. He naturally would attempt to enter Mexico through the east coast of Tampico or Vera Cruz, both of which are held by the Carranza troops. The trip from a Central American border port would be difficult, as would any entry from the west coast. The latter would require a hard ride over the mountains, which might affect the condition of the fighter.

TWO DREADNOUGHTS PUT IN NAVAL BILL

Committee's Building Programme Also Provides for 6 Destroyers and 17 Submarines

REGARDED AS COMPROMISE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—After thirty-two votes approaching from every possible angle a shipbuilding programme for the Navy, the House Naval Committee today agreed on an increase of the fleet that will cost $53,168,828. This total and the number and character of vessels authorized are a long way in advance of the recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy, but do not reach those of the Naval General Board.

As now placed in the Naval Appropriation Bill, the programme provides for two dreadnoughts, each to cost complete, with armor and armament, $14,750,000; six torpedo boat destroyers, each to cost $925,000; seventeen submarines, one of which is to be a fleet or sea-going vessel, and to cost $1,400,000, and sixteen to be of coast defense type and to cost $550,000 each; one oil fuel ship, to cost $1,140,000; one transport, to cost $1,900,000, and one hospital ship to cost $2,250,000.

The appropriation bill will carry, in all, $148,500,000, which is about $4,000,000 more than was appropriated last year, but this $4,000,000 is practically reappropriated from the purchase price paid by Greece for the battleships Mississippi and Idaho, which was covered back into the Treasury, so that the total of actual appropriation to come out of revenues is about the same as it was last year.

The struggle over the building programme in the committee and the controversy between the Secretary of the Navy and various officials and officers of the naval establishment have been, from the start, a battle between the conviction that a large building programme was required and the equally positive conviction that, politically, the best show possible in the matter of economy must be made. The bill is regarded as practically a compromise of the two contentions.

Started With Four Battleships.

Today's battle over the building programme was begun by a motion by Representative Hobson of Alabama for building four battleships. This was defeated 17 to 3. The same vote defeated a motion for three ships. Representative Hensley of Illinois, the leader of the "little navy" minority in the committee, then moved that no battleships be built this year. This was rejected 16 to 4. Mr. Hensley's motion for one ship was beaten by the same vote. Then Representative Tribble of South Carolina proposed the authorization of two battleships, and this was carried 16 to 4.

Mr. Hobson began a strenuous fight for a battle cruiser. He first asked for two ships, each to be of the largest type now known, of 28 knots speed, and to cost $20,000,000 each. The same old vote of 17 to 3 defeated this, as did a proposal for one such battle cruiser.

Mr. Hobson then shifted to destroyers and tried to get sixteen, but here he found himself voting alone and the rest of the committee, nineteen strong, against him. An effort to get twelve destroyers resulted in 3 votes for and 17 against. The committee divided 10 to 10 on a motion to build eight destroyers. Mr. Hobson tried to get seven, and this failed by 7 to 13.

Representative Roberts of Massachusetts moved for three fleet submarines, each to cost $1,400,000, but was outvoted. This proposition was shifted by Mr. Hobson to building two fleet submarines. The vote was 12 to 8 against it. Mr. Hobson's motion for one fleet submarine then was adopted 17 to 3. Mr. Stephens of California, who is very urgent for defense of the Pacific Coast, moved for sixteen ordinary submarines, to cost $550,000 each, eight of them to be built on the Pacific Coast. This was accepted 13 to 7.

Scout Cruisers Rejected.

Mr. Hobson then brought up the matter of scout cruisers. The committee refused, 18 to 2, to authorize four such ships, and then, 16 to 4, declined to authorize one. Mr. Tribble moved for six destroyers, and the motion was adopted, 15 to 5.

An effort by Mr. Hobson to get two oil ships failed, 18 to 2. Representative Browning of New Jersey moved for one oil ship, and this was carried, 19 to 1.

Mr. Tribble tried to get one gunboat, but failed, the vote being 9 to 11. Representative Butler of Pennsylvania moved for one submarine tender to cost $1,140,000. The proposal was rejected. A motion by Representative Lee of Pennsylvania for a hospital ship to cost $2,250,000 was adopted by 11 to 8. Representative Farr of Pennsylvania moved for a transport, and by 10 to 9 this was carried.

WHITRIDGE ACCUSES POLICE OF GRAFTING

Says They Demand Hundreds of Trolley Passes, but Won't Keep the Tracks Clear.

PAY FOR BLOCKADE PHOTOS

Public Asked to Snapshot Causes of Delay in Next Snowstorm —Woods Denies.

In anticipation of the next snowstorm and consequent traffic troubles, F. W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Railway Company, yesterday prepared a notice to the public to be posted in all cars of lines under his control. The notice reads:

> It is well known that whenever there is a snowstorm in this town the service of the surface street railroads deteriorates and it is apparently impossible to run the cars on any schedule at all. This is because the tracks are used by every sort of vehicle to the exclusion of the cars, and in most cases quite unnecessarily. The city authorities, through the police, are mainly responsible for this condition and for the inconvenience to which the public is subjected. The Police Department demands from the companies hundreds of free passes, and from mere gratitude it should give more protection to our tracks than we now receive.
> In the hope of attracting their attention to the annoyances which their inattention causes the public, the Third Avenue Railway Company desires to collect photographs of the way in which vehicles are allowed to impede the traffic, and to this end it will pay $10 for each of the best photographs and $5 for each of the next best photographs after the next considerable snowstorm showing how its cars are blocked by trucks, omnibuses, motors, and other vehicles. These photographs are to be sent to the office of the company, Third Avenue and 130th Street, each bearing the name and address of the photographer and the place and exact time when the photograph was taken.

Regarding this notice and the statements in it, Police Commissioner Woods said last night that the police would do everything possible to help the railway companies keep their cars moving at all times, when snow was on the ground and when it was not. As far as the law and consideration of the public convenience as affected by traffic would allow, he said, the police would keep the car tracks clear.

The Commissioner resented the statement that his Department demanded hundred of passes from the railway company.

"The Police Department does not demand a single pass," he said. "Policemen ride free on the cars of the city at the request of the railway companies, who have invited them to ride because of the protection their presence on the cars affords passengers. The railway companies have signified that they particularly want detectives to use the cars as much as possible, so that pickpockets and rowdies will not escape police attention when riding on cars. It seems to me that the railway companies gain more than the city does from the free passage granted to policemen. I certainly would not permit any one in the department to ask for or use a pass on any public conveyance except where the service rendered by the policemen's presence in the conveyance was not at least equivalent to the favor of the ride."

Supreme Court Sustains a Yonkers Ordinance.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Justice Morschauser in the Supreme Court today handed down a decision in an action brought by Alfred E. Hamilton as Treasurer of the Yonkers Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association against Mayor Lennon of Yonkers for an injunction restraining the Mayor and the Commissioner of Safety from enforcing an ordinance which prohibits the giving of any performance on the Sabbath. In his decision the Justice says among other things:

"I have serious doubts as to plaintiff's right to maintain this action, but regardless of this and assuming he has such right the relief he seeks by this application should not be granted."

This decision will be a big blow to motion pictures managers throughout Westchester County, who intended to apply for similar injunctions should the Yonkers managers win.

ST. CLAIR JURY STILL OUT.

Returned Several Times to Get Instructions from Court.

The jury in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court, which has been hearing testimony at the trial of Edith St. Clair for perjury, growing out of her suit against Abraham L. Erlanger, the theatrical manager, for breach of contract, had been out eight hours at midnight without reaching a verdict.

Several times the jury returned to ask for exhibits, to get instructions and to hear parts of the testimony read. At 11 o'clock Justice Davis had different partrs of the testimony reread, which took until midnight, when they again retired to deliberate.

Justice Davis ordered the jury locked up for the night at 10 o'clock this morning, and announced a recess until 10.30 o'clock.

Collomada Slightly Damaged—Cracks Widened in Walls of Ambassador Page's Home.

ROME, Jan. 13.—A large part of Central Italy was visited by a severe earthquake this morning.

The latest estimate places the dead at 12,000 and the injured at 20,000.

The town of Avezzano was virtually destroyed, the dead there being estimated at 8,000. One thousand persons escaped from the ruins, but most of them were injured.

It is officially announced that the centre of the earthquake was between Campobasso and Sarno, and that it was felt strongly at Perugia and slightly as far north as Ferrera.

The shock was the strongest ever felt here. It lasted several seconds. People everywhere rushed from their houses in terror. Many biuldings were damaged.

At the Meteorological Institute it is said that buildings continued to rock or tremble for about thirty seconds after the shock had ceased and that the duration of the phenomenon altogether was about one minute. It was stated that it was not believed that the disturbance extended to Sicily.

The Disaster Widespread.

As the day wore on and details began to arrive in the Capital, it was apparent that the disturbance in the neighborbood of Rome and in the province of Abruzzi had been greater than was at first believed and that it also had been felt severely in and arounnd Naples.

At Monterotondo three persons were killed and two wounded; at Zagarolo the dome of a church fell; at Galliano part of the cathedral was wrecked; at Veroli two persons were killed and two injured; at Tivoli one person was killed; at Pereto five houses collapsed; at Poggio Nativo one person was killed and several were injured.

Up to a late hour it had been found impossible to communicate with the ancient fortified city of Aquila in the Abruzzi, owing to the interruption of the telegraph service. It was reported that several villages were destroyed in that vicinity.

At Torre Cajetani, about thirty-seven miles east of Rome, the village was almost entirely destroyed. At Arnara the municipal building collapsed.

From numerous places in the affected regions calls for doctors and medicine were sent to Rome.

The town of Pofi is reported to have been half destroyed. At Giuliano two persons were killed.

In the country places the people are camping in the open.

Immediately after the quake the frightened people of Rome sought refuge in the churches. The police ordered them out of these, in danger of collapsing. In all the churches in the city later special prayerrs were offered for deliverance from disaster.

Pope Remains Calm.

Pope Benedict was reciting the Thanksgiving after the morning mass when the shock occurred. The Pontiff retained his composure. He gave orders immediately that the damage both inside and outside the Vatican be ascertained and requested a report whether assistance was required.

King Victor Emmanuel ordered the Minister of the Interior to furnish to him all details of the earthquake. The King expressed a desire to visit the damaged cities.

At the Capitol two magnificent candlesticks were broken. At the Palazzo del Drago, where Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador, lives, several existing cracks in the building opened wider and plaster fell in several of the rooms. The glass was broken in the Embassy office.

Among the ancient landmarks damaged were the Palazzo Chigi, the famous Column of Marcus Aurelius, historic buildings on the Piazza Colonna, in the centre of Rome, and the famous Farnese Palace, occupied by the French Embassy, where a piece of the stone cornice fell.

Soon after the shock it was found that the belfry of the Church of St. Andrea was in danger of falling. The building was surrounded by a cordon of police to prevent the people from approaching it.

A large crowd gathered in the square in front of the Column of Marcus Aurelius to see the damage done to that famous shaft. Half way up the monument had been broken and twisted. At that point the column was at least six inches from true. The immense bronze statue of St. Paul on top of the column had been thrown from its correct position and inclined to one side.

The dome of the Church of St. Charles Catinari was cracked. A large piece of the cornice of the Jesuit Church of St. Ignatius fell with a terrifying crash.

Falling Ceilings Injure Many.

Ceilings in many of the houses fell. A number of persons were injured in that manner.

The facade of the Church of St. John Lateran was damaged, and the statue of the Saviour, which is fifty feet high, was twisted out of plumb.

In the Lateran Palace, especially that part occupied by the Profane Museum, the earthquake caused cracks of sufficient size to permit the light from the outside penetrating the building.

The Hall of the Chamber of Deputies was cracked.

Among other edifices damaged were the Church of St. Andria Fratte and the Church of St. Agatha of the Goths, the latter being the oldest church of Teutonic origin in Rome.

Shock Violent in Naples.

It is reported that many houses fell in Caserta, northeast of Naples.

All the glass in the observatory on Mount Vesuvius was broken.

In the Church of the Divine Providence, Sisters were praying around the bier of a nun when the first tremor of the earthquake caused one of the dead woman's arms to move. The Sisters cried out that a miracle of resuscitation had taken place. Simultaneously the candlesticks and crucifixes in the chapel began falling. Then the Sisters realized what was happening and rushed terror-stricken to the street.

Great crowds of the populace also fled into the thoroughfares when the earthquake came. They formed into processions reciting the Litany of Saints. Many of the people in their excitement declared that the earthquake was a punishment for the sins of men fighting against their brothers in the European war.

100 KILLED NEAR ROME.

Avezzano Cut Off, but Rescue Parties Are Rushing There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 14.—A dispatch from Rome to The Times says that in the earthquake yesterday the Column of Marcus Aurelius was broken at various places and the beautiful bas reliefs have been irreparably damaged. The column may have to be pulled down.

The Daily News Rome correspondent says: "The extent of the damages in the provinces is not yet known, but it is estimated approximately that about 100 persons were killed in the neighborhood of Rome alone.

"According to the latest news, considerable damage was caused in the Abruzzi. The barracks at Sulmona collapsed and five soldiers were killed. Two of the wards at Aquila Hospital collapsed and many patients were killed and wounded.

"No news is available yet from Avezzano. Telephone communication is interrupted and the high roads are impassable owing to a heavy snowstorm. Rescue parties have been rushed from Aquila, Naples, and Rome, but have not yet reached their destination.

"Twenty persons have been killed and many wounded at Villalago. Several villages have been razed to the ground and many victims buried beneath the ruins.

"At Popoli and the Pentina, where the work has started, many houses have been damaged.

"From Aquilla news has been received of extensive damage as well as from [illegible] and seven other small towns in the Province of Rome.

"The village of Sora has been razed to the ground.

"St. Dominick Church at Sulmona collapsed, together with many houses. Others are threatened with ruin.

"At Chieti, Teramo and other towns and villages in the Abruzzi loss of life is reported.

REGISTERED BY SEISMOGRAPHS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Some idea of the gravity of the earthquake in Italy may be gathered from the fact that it was recorded at the British seismological observatories at Eskdalmuir, Scotland; at West Bromwich and at Shide, in the Isle of Wight, the record registered a disturbance at a distance of 1,100 miles, equaling that of the big Messina earthquake in 1908. At West Bromwich the pointers oscillated eight inches, ringing the earthquake alarm bell.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The earthquake in Italy was registered by the seismograph at Georgetown University Observatory early this morning. The seismograph record showed that it was an earthquake of great severity. The record began at 2:23 o'clock and ended at 2:38, lasting fifteen minutes. It reached its maximum at 2:30 o'clock. This means that it began at 8:13 A. M., Roman time, and continued until 8:28. The motion of the earthquake, which was in two tremors, was from north to south in the beginning and from east to west toward the end.

SHAKEN REGION IS HILLY.

Large Area in Central Italy—Avezzano an Ancient Town.

The Province of Rome and the Department of the Abruzzi, which suffered severely from yesterday's earthquake shock, occupy central Italy from the coast of the Tyrrhene to that of the Adriatic Sea. The Abruzzi is an extremely mountainous region, while to the westward the hills cease with some abruptness near Tivoli and leave open the wide plain of the Campagna about Rome, broken here and there with small hills. To the south of Rome run the ranges of the Alban and Volscian Mountains, separated by the Valley of the Liri, or Garigliano, River from the larger masses of upland which extend eastward almost to the Adriatic.

Avezzano, apparently the scene of the greatest loss of life, is in the Province of Aquila, sixty-seven miles east of Rome by rail and thirty-eight miles south of the town of Aquila by road. It is near the recently drained Fucine Lake. In 1901 its population was 9,442. It is noted for a fine and well-preserved castle, built in 1490 by Gentile Virginio Orsini, a member of an ancient Guelf family that exercised a powerful influence in the Roman Catholic Church and for years successfully opposed the Ghibelline Colonna. The castle, square with round towers at the angles, has been admired by many tourists.

Although the destroyed town is on the main line of the railroad from Rome to Castellammare Adriatico, it has not had much commercial or other importance in modern times. In the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Centuries, however, it was prominent in the life of the Italians. Much of the fighting of the Guelf-Ghibelline days took place in and around it.

Aquila is about twenty miles north of Avezzano. Through this part of the Abruzzi the damage seems to have been very heavy. The other towns mentioned in the dispatches are, for the most part, on the western wall of the Sabine Mountains, to the east or southeast of Rome.

At the time of the earthquake at Messina and Reggio on Dec. 28, 1908, the loss of life was underestimated in the first reports. The first day's accounts said that several thousand were dead, and toward the evening of the 29th the opinion prevailed in Rome that the loss of life had been overestimated. On the 30th, however, when fuller reports came in, the estimate jumped to 100,000. On the following day, when it was reported that 50,000 had perished in Messina alone, the total was placed at 150,000, and on Jan. 1, with the report that the Lipari Islands had sunk beneath the ocean, estimates ran all the way from 200,000 [illegible] Griscom, the American Ambassador, to 300,000. The tentative estimate then settled at 200,000. Later on many [illegible] dead [illegible] the official report published some months later gave the loss of life as 77,283.

Naples has had much more trouble with earthquakes than has the neighborhood of Rome. Indeed, Central Italy has been comparatively free from such troubles, while the [illegible] of Naples has suffered much [illegible] and the islands of Sicily [illegible] have been [illegible] of earthquakes.

The most recent important earthquake [illegible] occurred in Sicily and Calabria [illegible] the cities of Messina and Reggio on opposite sides of the Strait of Messina [illegible] the loss of life [illegible] 77,283. The next [illegible] in 1883 [illegible] probably [illegible] Casamicciola [illegible] the only place [illegible] of destruction, the loss of life was not more than 2,000 [illegible] as low as 2,000.

SWEDEN SOUGHT COAL HERE

Rates Quoted by Local Shippers Were Too High.

Inquiries have been made among coal shippers of this city by the Swedish railroads for 165,000 tons of coal, to be exported in American bottoms, the first three months of the year. Several companies answered the inquiries, but the rates quoted were so high that the Swedish railroad men could not meet them. Word has come from London since then that the order has been filled by British companies.

Coal shippers said yesterday that there was little danger that England would shut off her coal shipments to Sweden. In any event, it was said, the United States could not hope to get the trade under existing war conditions. England, the shippers thought, would not run a chance of letting coal fall into German hands.

A report of the Chesapeake & Ohio shows that the coal shipments from the New River, Kanawha, and Kentucky districts for five months to Nov. 30 amounted to 9,498,179 tons, an increase of 1,754,392 tons over the corresponding period in 1913. The shipments in 1913 were not normal because of the coal strike.

WANT MORE WAR NEWS.

French Socialist Deputies Demand a Less Rigid Censorship.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—A less rigid censorship on news is demanded in resolutions adopted today by the Socialist group in Parliament. The resolutions call upon the Government to furnish news as fully as possible. The only limitations that should be imposed, it is said, are those concerning information which might work to the detriment of military operations and diplomatic negotiations.

The resolutions say that the duty of the press in this connection is well understood. They call upon the Government to respect public opinion and preserve the principle of the liberty of the press.

REPORTS GERMANS DESERTING.

French Paper Says 11,000 Have Left Bruges Since Nov. 15.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—"The real reason for the strict guarding of the Belgian-Dutch frontier," says the Matin's correspondent at Havre, "is an epidemic of desertion, which began in the German ranks after the battle of the Yser. From Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 there were 11,000 desertions from the garrison of Bruges alone."

Airman's Bombs Cause Fire in Warsaw.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A Berlin dispatch, received by the Exchange Telegraph Company by way of Copenhagen, says that a German airman on Sunday dropped bombs on Warsaw. Several buildings in one of the principal streets were set afire.

A French Jest on "Atrocities."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The Guerre Sociale prints a front-page cartoon entitled "German Atrocities," showing a German soldier saying to the survivor of a group of refugees near a ruined village: "But, you know, it's England we really hate!"

TABRIZ OCCUPIED BY TURKISH TROOPS

Second Largest City of Persia Had Previously Been Evacuated by Russians.

BASE FOR FURTHER ATTACK

Constantinople Reports an Arab Victory Over British Troops on the Lower Tigris.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Reuter correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs that an advance detachment of the Turkish Army has occupied the Persian City of Tabriz.

The taking of Tabriz means that the Turks, who undoubtedly had the backing of some of the wild Turkish tribesmen of that locality, have obtained a more or less important base for the projected German-Turkish attack upon the Russian positions in the Province of Erivan, north of the Persian border and south of Tiflis.

The occupation of Tabriz was rendered comparatively easy for the Turks by the recent withdrawal of Russian forces to meet the Ottoman advance further west.

Whether Tabriz was taken without bloodshed is not yet known, but in the absence of Russian troops it is not likely that Persia was able to offer any serious resistance.

Russia's most vulnerable point, at which the Turks are aiming, lies along the undefended Russo-Persian frontier to the north of Tabriz. There had never been any necessity for preparing this portion of the Russian boundary against possible attack. The opinion is held here that Great Britain and Russia may offer assistance to Persia in the defense of her neutrality as a result of Turkey's dramatic advance. When the Ottoman activities in Persian territory first developed Persia not only announced her neutrality, but asked the good offices of Great Britain to prevent violation of her neutrality. Little could be done at the time, as the territory invaded lay within the sphere of Russian influence.

Even though Turkey should fail to push further into Persia, she will have gained a base for negotiation. If she is able to retain [illegible] Lake Urumiah, which [illegible] on the Province of Azerbaijan [illegible] Japan and [illegible] the war with [illegible] of Persia [illegible] the portion [illegible] extended [illegible] free navigation of Lake Urumiah.

BERLIN, Jan. 13, (By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The following was given out today by the Official Press Bureau:

"A Turkish bulletin issued on Jan. 10 [illegible] positions [illegible] the Turks [illegible] on the [illegible] The [illegible] the Arabs [illegible] of the British [illegible] killed or wounded [illegible] 150 [illegible] after two hours' fighting, with the Arabs in pursuit.

"Unofficial Constantinople dispatches report the landing of British troops from the cruiser Doris on Jan. 9, on the East Syrian coast at [illegible]. The Coast Guard, however, compelled the British to re-embark with the loss of their ammunition. The dispatches also state that the Turks brought down a hydroaeroplane from the British cruiser Minerva near Akabah, Arabia."

In occupying Tabriz, capital of the Province of Azerbaijan, and the second largest city of Persia, the Turks have taken a place that is essentially Oriental, and in which Turkish is the prevalent language. Tabriz is in Northwestern Persia, 100 miles east of the Turkish frontier. It had been garrisoned by a Russian force, being situated in that part of Persia under the domination of the Russians, in the same manner as the southern portion of Persia is considered to be within the sphere of influence of Great Britain.

TELLS OF OUR CONSUL'S AID.

English Refugee from Jerusalem Describes Scene at Jaffa.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—How the vigorous intervention of the American Consul at Jerusalem, coupled with the dramatic appearance of the United States cruiser Tennessee, enabled the last five British subjects remaining in the Holy City to escape is related by one of them, a clergyman, who arrived in London today.

Only by the untiring efforts of the Consul, said the clergyman, were they able to obtain permission to leave Jerusalem on Christmas Eve. In order that they might continue to receive the benefit of his protection the Consul accompanied them to Jaffa.

While waiting on the quay for a steamer they were seized and removed, but the Consul, after an interview with the Turkish Commander, obtained their release and accompanied them back to the quay. He announced that he would not depart until they were permitted to sail.

A great crowd surrounded the fugitives and threatened violence, but the Tennessee came steaming into port and the Turkish authorities immediately decided that no further opposition should be offered to their departure.

DARDANELLES STILL SHELLED.

Our Envoy Insists on Our Flag Going Up on French Hospital.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Advices from Constantinople by way of Petrograd to the Temps report the arrival at the Turkish capital of many wounded from the Dardanelles, where the bombardment continues.

Some of the wounded came from the French hospital, over which the Turks flew the Turkish flag.

The American Ambassador, the dispatch adds, protested against this, and insisted that the Turkish flag should be replaced by the American flag, because French interests are in the care of the American Embassy. This was done.

PANAMA ISSUES A PROTEST.

Holds That British and Japanese Warships Violated Neutrality.

PANAMA, Jan. 13.—The Republic of Panama has filed a note of protest with Sir C. Mallet, the British Minister, against the violation of her neutrality by British warships when last month, accompanied by Japanese cruisers, they entered San Miguel Bay and other Panama waters to take on coal and supplies.

These actions by the British and Japanese warships were part of the series of incidents which led Col. Goethals to ask Washington for American torpedo boat destroyers to protect the neutrality of the canal. British and Japanese cruisers entered Puerto Pinas and Santa Dorotea, on the Darien Coast, taking on coal from a collier and endeavoring to obtain food from the natives. A similar note has been dispatched to the Japanese Embassy at Washington.

Mine Sinks Norwegian Ship.

AMSTERDAM, (via London,) Jan. 13.—The small Norwegian steamer Castor is reported to have struck a mine in the North Sea. All the crew were saved with the exception of one, and landed at Hamburg.

Official Reports of War Operations.

FRANCE.

PARIS.—(Night Report)—To the northeast of Soissons our counter-attack has progressed slightly between Cuffies and Crouy. However, we were unable to debouch from Crouy.

Our troops, subjected to a violent attack to the east of this place, have yielded slightly near the village of Moncel, but which they are still occupying. They are holding also St. Marguerite and Missy-sur-Aisne.

There is nothing further of importance to report.

(Day Report)—The unfavorable weather conditions which have persisted along almost the entire front have hindered operations. In Belgium there has been a sand storm in the dunes along the coast.

In the region of Nieuport and near Ypres the French artillery directed an effective fire on the earthworks of the enemy.

On the Aisne, to the northeast of Soissons, the fighting around "Spur 132" continued with great severity during all the day of Jan. 12. The Germans brought very considerable forces into this engagement. We maintained our position on the crest of the hills to the west of "Spur 132." To the east our troops were obliged to give up ground. The fighting here continues.

Between Soissons and Berry-au-Bac shells from our artillery caused explosions, at several different points, in the midst of batteries of the enemy.

In Champagne, from Rheims to the Argonne, there were yesterday exceedingly violent artillery exchanges.

In the region of Souain the advance position covering the blockhouse located to the north of the Beausejour Farm is still in our possession, and we here have set up a trench distant sixty yards from the German trench.

In the Argonne there have been rain and wind storms; no infantry activity has been recorded.

From the Argonne to the Moselle there have been intermittent artillery exchanges.

GERMANY.

BERLIN.—In the western theatre of war fierce artillery duels took place in the neighborhood of Nieuport. They resulted in the evacuation of the enemy's trenches at Palinsburg, a suburb of Nieuport.

The enemy's attacks near the Canal of La Bassée have been finally repelled.

French attacks at La Boiselle and the hill of Touvent were repulsed. Yesterday's unsuccessful attacks on the hills near Crouy were followed up by a German counter-attack, which ended in the complete defeat of the French and the clearing of the hills northeast of Bussie and north of Crouy. Our troops took possession of two French positions and captured 1,700 prisoners, four cannon, and several machine guns.

An attack by French sappers in the neighborhood of St. Mihiel has been successfully repulsed. Our troops took possession of the hills north and northeast of Nomeny.

The situation in the Vosges remains unchanged.

In the eastern theatre of war the situation has not undergone any change.

RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD.—Cannon and rifle fire prevailed on the night of Jan. 12 all along our front. Engagements of more importance took place in some districts on the road, followed by our column advancing in the region to the east of Rosog, East Prussia.

Our troops, having repulsed the enemy's cavalry supported by infantry, occupied several villages, one of which, strongly fortified, could only be cleared of the Germans by a bayonet attack.

To the southwest of Mlawa we advanced in the direction of Radzanowa.

On the front comprising Kozlow, Biskupe, Zakrzow, and Sucha, the Germans, after having prepared the ground by an intense artillery fire, made an offensive movement against the southern section of this front. We, however, repulsed them easily.

In the region of Borjimow, Gaimine, Wolia, and Szidlowska the enemy made many unsuccessful attempts. The Germans in their advance against Gaimine tried to take cover under shields.

In the region to the south of the Moghely Farm the enemy delivered a series of attacks, all of which were easily repulsed.

Fighting in the region of Olti (fifty-five miles west of Kars) continues obstinately, the rear guard of the Turks being on the River Olti and to the west. The bitter fighting in the Kara-Urgan region has latterly inclined in our favor. On Jan. 11 we captured the Ninety-second Regiment of infantry, including eleven officers, three surgeons, and 1,300 men. We also partially destroyed the Fifty-second Regiment of Infantry, a portion of which, consisting of 250 soldiers and one officer, was captured. We occupied a height, dominating territory, and in taking the enemy's camp there we secured depots of artillery and ammunition.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA.—The Russian infantry attempts to gain ground along the entire front of the lower Nida River, in Southern Russian Poland, have been repulsed with heavy losses.

In Galicia and the Carpathians it is generally quiet. It is foggy and there have been severe snow storms. Only minor engagements have taken place.

In the southern war theatre there has been only reconnoitring skirmishes.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE IN EAST PRUSSIA

organizations, is convinced that the final settlement with the Austrian Army is very near. They still have supplies of men, but their spirit is hopelessly broken. He witnessed one instance when an Austrian battalion attempted to attack a Russian field kitchen where a hundred men were eating. These left their food and rushed on the Austrians, who in a few minutes shouted surrender and came obediently back with the Russians, bringing three machine guns.

Maklakoff says the Carpathians do not constitute a serious obstacle to the Russian campaign. The Russian troops there are very eager to be led into Hungary.

NEW RUSSIAN COUNCIL.

Members with German Names Being Replaced by Muscovites.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13.—What virtually amounts to an entirely new Council of Empire is being created today, the last day of the Russian year, by the annual appointment of new members. The general interest in the selections is intensified by the expectation that many Russians with German names will no longer serve the empire in the capacity of councilor.

It is practically certain that the new President of the Council will be Ivan Golouboff, and that the Vice Presidency will be given to Serge Manoukhine. Both these men are Russians. The Council of Empire corresponds in importance to the American Senate, but in addition it wields certain powers which in the United States are vested in the President and the Supreme Court. A number of its members are appointed by the Emperor, while the remainder are elected by the Zemstvos.

Russian officials bearing Teutonic names predominate in the Government of Poland. These men also are being gradually replaced by born Russians, thus removing one of the complaints of the Poles. After the capture of Baron Korff, the Governor of Warsaw, by the Germans some weeks ago, he was replaced by a man named Von Essen. Later Von Essen was supplanted by the head of the Emperor's Chancellory, a Russian named Lubinoff.

PRZEMYSL SIEGE COSTLY.

Russians Have Lost 10,000 Killed, Austrian Correspondents Say.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—(By wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—Included in the news items given out today by the Official Press Bureau was the following:

"Special correspondents with the Austrian Army headquarters mention the terrible losses suffered by the Russians around the Austrian fortress of Przemysl. These losses were inflicted partly in repeated sorties of the garrison and partly during the storming tactics adopted by the Russians upon the fortress. The total number of Russians killed in the second siege of Przemysl is estimated to number far above 10,000.

"Of late the activity of the Russians has subsided, some of the troops having been withdrawn to fight elsewhere."

WANTS IT SPELLED "SERBIA."

London Legation Appeals to British to Substitute B for V.

LONDON, Jan. 1, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The Servian Legation in London has addressed a letter to the press and public urging the adoption of the spelling "Serbia" and "Serbian" instead of "Servia" and "Servian."

"The latter spelling," says the legation spokesman, "is highly offensive to our people, mainly because it suggests a false derivation from the Latin root meaning 'to serve.' It is a source of hidden pain to Serbians to see that some journals persist in using the corrupt forms."

The same letter requests wider publication and performance of the Servian national hymn:

"In restaurants and public places we hear British patriotic songs and hymns, together with those of your allies, France, Russia, Belgium, and Japan; yet, alas, not that of Serbia, which is really a beautiful piece of music."

700,000 TEUTONS IN ITALY.

Austrian and German Embassies Advising Nationals to Depart.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 13 (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—According to a special police census, while the number of British, French and Russian residents in Italy has greatly diminished since the war began, the number of Austrians and Germans has considerably increased.

It is estimated that there are now about 700,000, besides many naturalized Italians, who retain their Austrian or German nationality.

The German and Austrian embassies, fearing that the census is the prelude to expulsion, are now encouraging repatriation and issuing passports recommending the departure of their nationals as soon as possible.

Many Germans have already gone and others are winding up their businesses and selling their property here. The embassies admit the expediency of hastening these departures in order to prevent eleventh hour confusion.

Russia Expels Teutonic Subjects.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13.—German and Austrian subjects between the ages of 18 and 60 have been ordered expelled from Petrograd and its environs and also from those Russian provinces which border on the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic Sea, including the Gulf of Riga. The order of expulsion provides that all persons concerned must be clear of these provinces by Jan. 27.

Americans to Aid Distressed Poles.

BERLIN, via The Hague and London, Jan. 13.—Dr. Wickliffe Rose and Ernest Bicknell, belonging to the American Red Cross mission, depart today for Poland, where succor for the civil population is equally as urgent as it is in Belgium. The Americans will be accompanied by Dr. Theodor Lewald, Director of the Ministry of the Interior, and will visit Czenstochowa, Lodz, Lowicz, Skierniewice, and other cities in Poland.

GERMANY NEEDS COTTON.

Estimated That 2,000,000 Bales Will Be Required This Year.

The urgent need of Germany for cotton is set forth in the latest bulletin of the American Association of Commerce and Trade in Berlin, just received here.

Julius G. Lay, the American Consul General in Berlin, asserts that it is estimated by the proprietor of one of the largest department stores in Berlin and one of the largest buyers of cotton goods, that Germany, as a result of the war, will require nearly 2,000,000 bales of American cotton in the coming year. This estimate takes into consideration the fact that the Egyptian supply of cotton is cut off.

SWISS PEOPLE ASK THE RIGHT TO TRADE

MEAN TO REMAIN NEUTRAL

But Food and Raw Materials Must Be Had and Manufactured Articles Must Be Sent Out.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 14.—The Daily News correspondent has had an interview at Berne with M. Motta, President of the Swiss Confederation, in the course of which the President said:

"During the first five months of war we spent 110,000,000 francs ($22,000,000) on mobilization, for the defense of the frontiers and on pure military expenditure, and it is going on. It is an enormous sacrifice for the Swiss people, and the spirit in which the burden is being borne is a most striking proof of the determination of Switzerland to remain neutral. In the ordinary general budget of the Confederation I have estimated for a deficit of 21,000,000 francs ($4,800,000) in 1915, and the deficit in 1914 will come to about the same total. The extraordinary expenses Switzerland is put to through the war are carried in the general budget."

This led the President to pass to the serious economic position in which Switzerland finds herself.

"Our commerce," continued the President, "is seriously interfered with by the war. To meet the views of certain of the belligerents on the question of contraband we have already provided that only the State can import cereals and forage. All suspicion that these will be re-exported can be eliminated. They are intended solely for our own use. What we want to do in Switzerland is to live and work, and it is essential now for us to be able to import raw material and partly manufactured articles to keep our factories open and give people employment and to be able to export manufactured goods into the markets of the countries that surround us. [illegible]

"We are friends with everybody; we have [illegible] correct and cordial relations with all nations [illegible]

"[illegible] the collaboration of [illegible] State. I can assure you there is no antipathy against England in Switzerland. Remember, all we ask is to live and work, and to do that we must have means of introducing our food supplies and raw products necessary for our industries."

CRITICISES THIS GOVERNMENT.

Failure to Protest Kills Hague Conventions, Says London Chronicle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Daily Chronicle in an editorial agrees with the views expressed by Theodore Roosevelt in The New York Independent on the failure of the United States Government to enter even a diplomatic protest against Germany's open violation of The Hague Conventions. The Chronicle says:

"It has been the consequence of the American attitude that The Hague Conventions not only have been infringed but killed and killed beyond visible means of resurrection, let alone extension. No State is going to let itself in for such a deception again, nor is it possible to deny that the moral position of the United States has been appreciably weakened.

"The American note regarding contraband—a perfectly fair, legitimate and well-inspired document of which we make no complaint—would impress the world rather differently if it had been preceded by notes in other quarters regarding the violation of Belgium, the ghastly massacres of non-combatants, the illegal and merciless money fines, the bombardment of defenseless watering places or the scattering of long-lived mines in the open seas.

"Those of us on this side of the water who for many years have striven consistently to get a fair hearing given to the United States and fair construction put upon its policy should be no true friends if we concealed from American opinion of the new difficulty which their Government's abandonment of The Hague Conventions has created for us."

MEAT PROTEST TO LONDON.

Packers' Counsel Sails to Discuss Detention of Cargoes.

Alfred R. Urion, counsel for Armour & Co. of Chicago, sailed for London yesterday on the White Star liner Megantic, to confer with the British Government on the question of the detention of steamships carrying meat. Mr. Urion referred the reporters to Washington for further information. He admitted that the State Department knew he was going over, but declined to say whether the Department approved.

It is understood that unless meat-laden vessels are inspected and passed more expeditiously by the British authorities, who search vessels for contraband cargoes, the packers in this country will refuse to ship any more provisions to England or the Continent.

They maintain that the inspection seal of the Department of Agriculture on a package of meat is sufficient proof that it does not contain contraband goods. If this was accepted by the British officials a steamship laden with meat and other provisions could be passed in two or three hours, the packers assert.

CANADA DETAINS TWO SHIPS.

One Japanese, the Other American; Said to Have Contraband on Board.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 13.—The Japanese steamer Mexico and the American steamer Governor have been detained here by the customs officials because part of the cargoes the vessels have taken on board are alleged to be contraband of war under the regulations promulgated from Ottawa.

The Mexico contraband is said to include lead and barbed wire. The detention of the Governor is on the ground that she has hides for San Francisco, and hides can be turned into leather. The shipping of hides to San Francisco has been a regular trade for years and this is the first objection to it.

GERMANS RUSH COAST FORTS.

Building Defenses from Westcapelle to Knocke, Belgium.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 13 (Dispatch to The London Daily News).—According to a dispatch to The Maasbode, even the thunder and hail on Monday afternoon did not stop the German troops from working on the defenses they are creating on the coast near the Dutch frontier. To open up a new line of fire they have leveled one of the old dikes, while on the way from Westcapelle (near Bruges) to Knocke they have placed thirty guns of small calibre.

Requisitions continue to crush the population. In the shops of Knocke nothing more can be bought, and the town is practically cut off from communication with the outer world.

WARNS AGAINST SEPSIS.

French Surgeon Says an Official Order to Army Doctors Erred.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Dr. Doyen just addressed a very important communication, says the Eclair, to the members of Parliament, with the object of taking immediate measures to correct the pernicious effects of an official circular which he alleges was sent on Aug. 10 to military physicians. This circular instructed them to consider wounds generally aseptic and only requiring a simple bandage at the front before treatment at the hospital, which is frequently reached only after a long journey.

Experience has shown, Dr. Doyen says, that the vast majority of wounds are septic, as is evidenced by the number of gangrene and tetanus cases which owe their origin to the practice inculcated in the order referred to. He urges the Deputies to use their influence immediately to insure the careful antiseptic washing of all wounds at a point as near as possible to the front, where field hospitals should be established, certainly before the wounded man starts on his journey.

NO GERMAN BRASS BUTTONS?

French Officer Says the Copper Famine Has Abolished Them.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—A letter which the Journal publishes from an officer at the front shows the enormous importance which the Germans attach to copper, incidentally justifying the British measures to prevent its importation, the Journal remarks. The officer writes:

"Prisoners are now devoid of brass buttons and badges and even the points of the famous Pickelhauben (helmets). The State has ordered them to hand over everything containing copper to the authorities, and also to search abandoned houses for similar objects, however trifling. When the casque a point is pointless, surely the beginning of Germany's end has come."

CHARGES GERMAN TREACHERY.

Frenchman Says They Violated a Truce by Capturing Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 13.—Robert G. Watkins of this city has received a letter from his brother-in-law, who is a member of the French Hospital Corps, stationed just back of the trenches at Haucourt. In the course of his narrative of camp experiences the writer says:

"We know little of what is passing outside of our section, but you can rest assured, mon cher R——, that France will be victorious; that is absolutely sure. I must confess we felt at one time a moment of weakness, for we had to submit to a terrific shock from overwhelming numbers, and at a point where we were not well protected with forts. We suffered heavy losses, but from a statistical point of view, the Germans have gained nothing. All the damage that they have done is nothing in comparison with the success that awaits us soon.

"France has worked wonders; for at the beginning there were great faults in the direction of army affairs; our armament was not complete, our soldiers were not in training. But we are prepared now, and the enemy can come on in all their force. It is they who are losing heavily now, while our casualties are but slight; their troops are showing signs of fatigue, and their ranks are being replenished from their last class of reserves. On our side we still have large bodies of fresh troops to draw on. There is one army of 100,000 that has not yet taken part in a single battle, which awaits the call for a grand coup, which will begin the crushing of a people who count so many enemies, and after that great day I believe peace will reign in this world for many long years. For until now, what has driven us and the rest of Europe into excesses to keep up our armies, has been the formidable military programme of Germany. And you will see in a few years the French military service reduced from three years to one year.

"There are attacks every day at the front, and one of these the other day led to a disgraceful breach of faith that should be published abroad. There had been violent attacks and counter-attacks, and naturally on both sides there had been heavy losses, especially among the Germans. Many wounded had fallen between the two lines, and the Germans asked for an armistice of an hour to gather up the wounded. This was readily granted, and officers and soldiers, German and French, left their trenches for this work. The officers exchanged cigarettes, the Germans came to visit our trenches, and in return invited our officers to visit theirs. Two of our officers unwisely accepted the invitation. The time passed swiftly, and two minutes after their allotted hour the Germans told our officers they were prisoners. The Boches have no idea of honor in war."

ALL ON SCHARNHORST DIED.

Only 197 Survivors from von Spee's Four Ships, Berlin Learns.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 13.—Information received at Berlin is to the effect that none of the officers or men were saved from the German cruiser Scharnhorst sunk off the Falkland Islands by the British squadron.

Seven officers and 171 men were saved from the Gneisenau; seven men from the Nurnberg, and four officers and fifteen men from the Leipzig.

SANK 51 TURKISH BOATS.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13.—The following details of the naval engagements in the Black Sea during the first week of January have been received in Petrograd:

"The scene of these activities was between Sinope and Rizeh, Turkish ports on the southern coast of the Black Sea. The Russian ships came up with the Turkish cruiser Medjidieh, convoying a steamer, the Maria Rosetta, with a cargo of naphtha for Trebizond. They opened fire on the Turkish ship and did considerable damage. The cruiser escaped, but the Maria Rosetta was sent to the bottom.

"The night of Jan. 6 the Russian fleet came upon the Breslau and Hamidieh. A spirited exchange of shots followed, and finally the Turkish cruisers disappeared in the darkness. In Sourmene Bay and in Rizeh Bay (thirty-five miles east of Trebizond) the Russian warships destroyed fifty-one Turkish boats. The bombardment of the Port of Hopa, which is the distributing point for the Tchoruk region, caused a number of fires along the coast.

"The Turkish cruiser Breslau bombarded certain positions held by Turkish troops near Lisiun, which is to the North of Hopa. Following this bombardment our troops occupied without hindrance the positions from which Turkish soldiers had been driven by the fire of their own cruiser."

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Exchange Telegraph Company has received a dispatch from Copenhagen saying that the Swedish steamer Vega has been captured in the Baltic by a German torpedo boat destroyer and taken into Swinemunde.

The Vega was from Rotterdam, and is said to have been on her way to Stockholm with a cargo of margarine.

JEWS' INDIFFERENCE TO WAR AID REBUKED

MILLIONS IN DIRE DISTRESS

Jacob H. Schiff, Meyer London, and Dr. Enelow Plead with the Rich to Give.

Louis Marshall, speaking at a meeting in Temple Emanu-El last night, deplored what he termed the failure of the Jews of America, particularly of New York, to realize the terrible calamity that has overtaken the millions of Jews whose homes are in the eastern theatre of the European war.

The meeting was held in the interest of the American Jewish Relief Committee, of which committee Mr. Marshall is President. Besides Mr. Marshall Congressman-elect Meyer London, and the Rev. Dr. H. G. Enelow of Temple Emanu-El spoke. Like Mr. Marshall, each deplored the fact that the Jews of America have not given the assistance they should to their suffering corelligionists. Further emphasis on the same subject was contained in a letter from Jacob H. Schiff, read by Mr. Marshall.

"It is discouraging," said Mr. Marshall," to those who have devoted so much time and energy to this work that there has been so small a response from Jews in New York, a city which is so great a Jewish centre. It seems to me that the people are so dazed by the European cataclysm that they are unable to realize that it is their duty to aid of those who are suffering through the calamity.

"In the world today there are about 13,000,000 Jews, of whom more than 6,000,000 are in the very heart of the war zone; Jews whose lives are at stake and who today are subjected to every manner of suffering and sorrorw, and the great American Jewish community is not doing its duty toward these sufferers. In the United States there are between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 Jews, nearly all able to do something and yet, after months of work, we have not raised more than $300,000. In New York there are more than 1,000,000 Jews, some of them persons of great affluence, but many of them seem to think if they give a few hundred dollars they have done their duty.

"We hear of pogroms in Russia, in Poland, in Galicia, and et we sit indifferent. In Palestine starvation stalks through the land. Shall we selfishly enjoy ourselves and say we would like to, but cannot help because of hard times, and think we are doing out duty? No. The time has come for every man and women and child to do his duty, and we must fulfill that duty quickly or it may be too late in hundreds of thousands of cases."

At this point Mr. Marshall read Mr. Schiff's letter. Mr. Schiff said his own interest in the work was intense, and that it should appeal to every Jew. Private reports he has received, Mr. Schiff said, showed conditions in Russia, Palestine, Poland, and Galicia, the frightful nature of which could not be pictured.

He said that the Emanu-El congregation is the largest and wealthiest in the United States and hoped that its members would give in proportion to their means. He further suggested a committee to canvass the congregation for a Temple Emanu-El Fund and said he would contribute. Mr. Marshall put the suggestion in the form of a motion which was unanimously carried. Mr. Marshall will name the committee soon.

Mr. London said this was the "worst period in Jewish history," and that the having of millions of Jewish peoples depended on the generosity of more fortunate Jews of the United States.

Dr. Enelow emphasized what Mr. Marshall had said and added that never before were the Jews of this country confronted with so great a duty.

The Belgian Relief Committee, 8 and 10 Bridge Street, received yesterday the largest remittance it has had since it was organized. This was a check for $34,000 from the national offices of the Red Cross in Washington, which sum represented donations for Belgian relief through that society. Check from George Bernard Shaw.

To the Commission for Relief in Belgium at 71 Broadway there came yesterday a check for $260 from George Bernard Shaw and a letter in which, among other things, Mr. Shaw said.

> As I cannot decently call on the world to contribute to your funds without setting an example myself, I enclose a check for as much I think I can afford at this particular moment when it is so extremely hard to find out what one's real financial position is going to be.

Grateful For Red Cross Aid.

Dr. Sofie Nordhoff-Jung, who, with her husband, Dr. Franz A. R. Jung, is managing the American Red Cross Hospital in Munich, writing a few days ago, acknowledges a shipment of hospital supplies from America consisting of 5,000 pounds of absorbent cotton, 4,000 yards of gauze, 1,000 pounds of bandages, and ten large cases of medicines, blankets, shirts, pajamas, &c.

She is particularly glad that the bandages were of cambric, and not gauze, as they can be washed and used over and over again Canton flannel, which is unknown in Munich, "caused great appreciation on the part of the soldiers." "The Queen, on a visit to the hospital," says Dr. Jung, "told me of the great lack of cotton and bandaging material. In the local hospitals they are using gauze bags filled with sawdust, moss, or lint, instead of absorbent cotton."

Through the Court Chamberlain, the Queen of Bavaria has sent a letter of thanks for the supplies.

The American Red Cross has a letter from the Central Committee of the German Red Cross, in Berlin, saying:

> We have received the gift consisting of twenty cases of hospital clothing and one hundred bales of absorbent cotton and bandages, and sincerely thank the American Red Cross; and we are the more pleased with the gift because it comes from the United States.

The Red Cross has also received this letter from Mme. Loudon:

> Mme. Loudon, the wife of the Minister of Foreign Affairs at The Hague, gratefully acknowledges the receipt of boxes of clothing sent her through the American Red Cross. The clothing has been distributed at the various camps of refugees at The Hague, these camps consisting each of several hundred persons.

The Red Cross European Fund was increased by $2,182.26 yesterday, and now amounts to $438,395.54. Subscriptions should be sent to Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, 130 East Twenty-second Street or 52 William Street. Yesterday's subscriptions of $10 or more were:

More Comforts in Soldier Kits.

The number of articles in the comfort kits being sent by the La Fayette Fund to the French soldiers is to be increased. Heretofore each kit has contained a suit of underwear, an abdominal belt and safety pins, a pair of socks, a muffler, a handkerchief, and a cake of soap. To these will be added a box of chocolate, writing material, a pipe, and a can of tobacco.

The fourth shipment of these kits is now being packed at the warehouse at 13 East Thirty-third Street and will go on the Rochambeau which sails on Monday for Havre. This shipment will contain 7,500 kits.

Mrs. Whitney Warren, 16 East Forty-seventh Street, acknowledges contributions of $10 from Mrs. Moses Taylor and of $15 from Miss Mary Markham, Rochester, for the fund for women and children of France, making a total to date of $52,913.90.

A letter from Whitney Warren, now in France, says that the Secours National is in urgent need of funds. The severity of the Winter has increased the suffering among the women and children, so many of whom lost everything when their homes were destroyed by bombardments.

The receipts of the song recital by Mme. Sembrich at Carnegie Hall on Tuesday afternoon amounted to $6,724.50. The concert was for the benefit of the Polish Relief Fund. Following Mme. Sembrich's concert, subscriptions of $1,000 each were sent to her for the Polish sufferers by Mrs. Charles Schwab and H. H. Flagler.

Japanese Red Cross Nurses Sail.

The Japanese Red Cross surgeons and nurses going to France sailed yesterday for Liverpool on the White Star liner Megantic.

Miss T. Yamato, the head nurse, said they thought a great deal of England in Japan and that the Government would send soldiers as well as nurses if she needed help. Boris Yonine of the Russian Embassy at Washington sailed on the Megantic to join his regiment. He said the scars of the war of 1903 had all healed and he was glad to see Japanese nurses going to the Allies.

RETRACTS NOTHING, MERCIER DECLARES

Wires His Thanks for Sympathy, But Will Not Discuss His Arrest.

THE HAGUE, (via London,) Jan. 13.—Cardinal Desideratus Mercier, the Primate of Belgium, declines for the present to discuss what he defines the "vexatious measures" of the German authorities in Belgium with reference to him and to the pastoral letter written by him on Christmas.

Gen. von Bissing, Governor-General of the Belgian territory occupied by the Germans, in reply to a request made by the Associated Press that he forward to Cardinal Mercier a telegram asking him for the exact facts in connection with the incident, today said:

"Cardinal Mercier requests me to forward to you the following dispatch in response to your inquiry:

> I feel very much the sympathy you have shown me, and for which I thank you, but I prefer not to dwell for the moment on the vexatious measures to which you allude, and I prefer to continue to shut myself in my episcopal ministry. I wish to declare, however, that I have withdrawn nothing and will withdraw nothing from my pastoral letter.
> CARDINAL MERCIER,
> Archbishop of Malines.

Gen. von Bissing adds:

"As this reply of the Cardinal might give rise to misunderstandings I add thereto the following remarks:

"I certainly caused proofs of the pastoral in the printing office to be confiscated, and I summoned the priests to give up copies of it in their possession.

"The Cardinal never has been arrested, nor has his personal liberty in any other way been encroached upon. I have merely, by means of officers of my staff, requested him to give me explanations of the tendencies of the pastoral letter, and, besides this, in order to prevent possible manifestations I asked him to abandon a projected journey to Antwerp.

"If these measures perhaps appear to the Cardinal subjectively vexatious, yet they were objectively absolutely necessary in order to clear up the situation.

"FREIHERR VON BISSING, Governor General."

WOMEN'S HOSPITAL WORK.

Only One Fatal Case So Far, but This Record Not Likely to Continue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The work done by the American Women's War Relief Fund since it was organized immediately after the war began was reviewed today at a meeting held at Dudley House, the home of the Hon. John Ward and his wife, formerly Miss Reid, in Park Lane. Many well-known Americans were present.

Among the speakers were the Duchess of Marlborough, Chairman of the Executive Committee, who presided; Lady Randolph Churchill, Chairman of the Hospital Committee; Mrs. Reginald Owen, daughter of Secretary of State Bryan, and Dr. Howard W. Beal, Chief Surgeon of the American Women's War Hospital at Paignton, Devonshire.

Emphasis was placed by the Duchess of Marlborough and Lady Randolph Churchill on the need of funds. The Duchess said $20,000 more had been donated by the American Red Cross, with a promise that all the surgeons necessary would be sent on request. She spoke highly of the work of the hospital staff.

Up to the present a total of $219,550 has been subscribed toward the hospital.

Dr. Beal said there was great need of a pathologist, when the American Red Cross would furnish. He added that while the hospital had treated 692 patients there had so far been only one death. He went on to say:

"But this record we cannot hope to maintain, as the large number of serious cases which continually reach us must result in larger mortality. In our latest hundred cases that arrived last week was one shot from the side through both eyes, and both were destroyed, and another lad of 19 years had fifty shrapnel wounds in the back, his left forearm had been hollowed out by a shell, and his right arm was wounded."

Dr. Beal said Sir William Osler had frequently visited the hospital and suggestions by him had been adopted.

Among those present were the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lady Thynne, Cora Countess of Strafford, Lady Henry, Lady Lister Kaye, Miss Page, Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, the Hon. and Mrs. John Ward, Lady Paget, Lady Wolseley, Lady Macmillan, Lady Cheylesmore, Mrs. H. V. Higgins, Mrs. Cecil Higgins, Mrs. Ronalds, Mrs. George Howlands Parsons, Lady Waldstein, Mrs. Reginald Owen, Lady Askwith, Lady Blane, Lady Bowring, Mrs. Gerard Leigh, Lady Green Price, Mrs. Graham Mengies, Viscountess Dupplin, Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, Mrs. H. C. Hoover, Mrs. Robert Strawbridge, Mrs. Walter Burns, Lady Alastair Innes-Ker, and the Hon. Arthur Stanley.

AUDIENCE IN UPROAR AT MISS PANKHURST

WOMEN INCREASE TUMULT

Christabel Pankhurst, who spoke in favor of the Allies before a large audience in Carnegie Hall last night, had from one to five persons in all parts of the house interrupting her with questions every few moments. Three or four women in evening dress in the boxes and two or three men on the floor attempted to make speeches of their own. Several times the uproar of hisses and and cheers reduced all the speakers to making soliloquies.

One woman who sat in a box on he right in the first gallery rose and delivered violent but unintelligible harangues whenever Miss Pankhurst uttered the name of G. Bernard Shaw. She was accompanied by three women and a man with a black Van Dyke beard, who twice retreated behind a curtain when his box became the centre of attention.

The most persistent heckler was a woman in evening dress with one necklace of pearls and another of platinum and diamonds. She sat in the third row of the orchestra. She was supported vehemently by a man in evening dress who sat beside her until Miss Pankhurst offered him the platform which he declined. The speaker's charge that Germany and German agents were doing their utmost, for the sake of German militarism, to further the propaganda for peace in this country caused some of the questions.

Compelled to Answer Query.

Miss Pankhurst started to read from the work of a German-American, who warned German-Americans visiting Germany that they could not conduct themselves as they would in the United States; that any criticism they might venture of the Kaiser was a crime for which they might be put in jail; that to insult a German official even in a quarrel where the official was the aggressor was a crime. She had read two or three paragraphs, when some one shouted:

"What about navalism?"

This was repeated with several other questions which the speaker promised to answer later. She started to cite passages from the Kaiser's addresses to the effect that he had a divine mission to rule and from Bismarck that the German people could not be trusted with their own government, but the interruptions were so thick that she digressed long enough to answer the question about "navalism."

"The English Navy is like the American Navy," he said. "It is under the rule of Parliament, which is under the rule of the people. The German Navy is under the absolute control of an irresponsible despot. The Germans would be doing better to be fighting on the side of the Allies, whose armies come offering them freedom than for rulers who despise their political abilities and consider them only fit for cannon fodder."

There were cheers for this explanation and some hisses.

"The downfall of brute force is often followed by a campaign of intrigue," Miss Pankhurst said. "That campaign has been started in this country by Germany and German agents, who are fostering the peace propaganda. One man says that he wants Germany to be moderately victorious! He means, I suppose, that the war should end with Germany in possession of Belgium and part of France. But the war will never end that way. The war will never end until Germany is beaten utterly. We would be unfaithful to the memory of our dead who have given their lives in rFance, if we were to end the war on such dishonorable and disgraceful terms.

Thinks America Would Aid.

"The Allies are fighting for the cause of Belgium, for the cause of France, for the cause of freedom and for the cause of all neutral nations. We are winning the war and will fight it to the end. If there were danger that we should lose and that cause of freedom should go down in defeat, I am convinced that America would come to our aid. America is out of it now, because she can afford to be, since the Allies are winning.

"This man who wants the Germans to be 'moderately victorious' and is a leader in at least two peace societies, has broken his friendship for Japan, although it was his money which helped Japan to defeat Russia. Oh, what a peac-loving man he is, isn't he? But neither Jacob Schiff nor any other man is going to obtain peace in this war except at the right price."

When questions were put at the conclusion of the lecture, Charlotte P. Gilman asked if the speaker thought she was justified in insinuationg that the whole American peace movement was inspired by German influence. Miss Pankhurst replied:

"I am only asking you to be careful not to be exploited for the sake of war in the name of peace, and not to be crying 'Peace, peace,' when there is no peace, and helping those who are trying to rivet dishonor and tyranny on those who want freedom."

was seized upon as indicating clearly Mr. McAdoo's own ambition to lead the Democratic forces in 1916.

Mr. McAdoo has issued no denial of the Chicago statement, but he has told personal friends that he firmly bellved Mr. Wilson must stand for re-election. So long as there is the slightest chance that the President will accept another nomination Mr. McAdoo is not willing to be considered in a receptive mood. His friends say he will finish out his term as Secretary of the Treasury, but that he has no desire for further political honors, and wil lwelcome a chance to return to private life as soon as he is released. A man close to the Secretary said today:

"You will understand that the close relationship between Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Wilson makes it impossible that the Secretary should even be a passive candidate for higher honors. His recent trip served to strengthen his conviction that the President has the full confidence of most of the voters, and while he may not urge upon Mr. Wilson the duty of being a candidate again he firmly believes that the Democratic party will demand that he take the lead again in 1916."

BORAH ANSWERS WILSON.

Idaho Senator Delivers Broadside at Administration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The severest criticism of President Wilson's administration yet heard in Congress was delivered in the Senate today by Mr. Borah of Idaho, a Progressive Republican. Mr. Borah said that the President's references at Indianapolis to "men who should dare to break the solidarity of the Democratic team for any purpose" was precisely the argument used by Tom Taggart to his Democratic followers in Indianapolis, eighty of whom yesterday pleaded guilty to charges of corruption.

By his "virulent attack" of the Republican Party, Mr. Borah said, the President had announced that he chose the leadership of his party instead of the Chief Magistrate of the nation.

Mr. Borah's speech was a formal reply to the President's Indianapolis address, although it came as the sequence to a coloquy in which Mr. Williams of Mississippi had said that Mr. Wilson would not only be renominated in 1916, but would be re-elected, this time by a popular majority. That brought Mr. Borah to his feet, and before he sat down he had reviewed the President's remarks at Indianapolis, assailed the Democratic tariff and banking act, condemned the President for pushing the Ship Purchase bill at the expense of rural credits, and characterized in harsh terms the President's course in Mexivo and the results of that policy.

When the Idaho Senator concluded almost the whole Republican side rose and the Senators filed forward to shake his hand and congratulate him.

The discussion of the President's speech hinged on a resolution presented by Mr. Cummins of Iowa, a radical Republican, inquiring how much money had been collected by the American army at the custom house in Vera Cruz, what had been done with it, and whether Congressional sanction would be sought for its final disposition.

Mr. Stone of Missouri, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, and Mr. Williams replied that the money would be returned to Mexico as soon as a recognized Government was established. Mr. Cummins sai dthat he believed the Constitution required an act of appropriation before any money could be paid out.

"I am simply objecting to the President's position," said Mr. Cummins, "in trying to run the United States. It appears in every utterance that falls from his lips."

Mr. Borah then took the floor and began to discuss the Indianapolis speech, saying:

"It is the most significant statement I think that was ever made in regard to a co-ordinate branch of the Government since the days of Andrew Johnson. I do not mean to say by that that the spirit which actuated it was the same, but you will search the history of our country in vain to find any such imputation upon a great co-ordinate branch of the Government as is found in the remarks of the President at Indianapolis. It calls for the serious consideration of every man who is a member of this body. He said: 'If any group of men should dare to break the solidarity of the Democratic team for any purpose or from any motive, theirs will be a most unenviable notoriety and a responsibility which will bring deep bitterness to them.' Not for an evil purpose. Not for an unwise purpose. But 'for any purpose,' or for any reason should any man dare to break the solidarity of the party, his future will be shrouded with 'unenviable notoriety.'

Likened to Taggart.

"Mr. President, that is the principle upon which every corrupt political machine was ever organized or put into existence. If the President had said, 'if any man shall for unrighteous or for mere patronage purposes or for any indefensible reason assume to break the solidarrity of the Democratic Party,' he would have been upon safe ground; his position would have been unassailable; but the language which fell from the lips of the leader of the Democratic Party at Indianapolis was not different from that which Tom Taggartr would have issued to the men in Indianapolis, eighty of whom this morning pleaded guilty to the crime of corruption. It is not different from the language which would be used by Mr. Murphy, of New York, to his slavish adherents to follow the dictate of the Captain, regardless of what their conscience orr judgment might suggest.

"The president is impatient with the procedure of this body and proceeds to advise the country that legislation is being sat upon principally by the Republican members of the Senate. It would be interesting to inquire who has consumed the time of the Senate since the opening of this session of Congress. Since the deliverance of that speech at Indianapolis it has been my business to look into the matter somewhat, and I find that for about every two hours which the Democrats have utilized the Republicans have used an hour or three-quarters of an hour."

Ship Purchase Bill.

Senator Borah referred to the Conservation Bill as a measure the President had criticized Republicans for delaying, although the bill had not yet come before the Senate.

"The second bill to which he refers," Mr. Borah continued, "is that known as the Ship Purchasing bill. We all know that it is one of tremendous import. It not only involves the question of public ownership of our public utilities, which we are onw considering more and more, but it involves the question of that public ownership in a sphere of activity where it would be most difficult of all places to inaugurate it; and it involves, futthermore, possible conflict with foreign nations and the commerce of foreign countries.

"This bill had been reported from the committee, I think, four or five days at the time of the deliverance of the President at Indianapolis. The debate had hardly yet begun—and yet this is another one of the measures which we are charged with delaying by reason of the fact that it seems that the President desires it to be passed in violation of the principle that he laid down in the New Freedom, as it came from the committee room.

"It willibe found as we survey the pages of history that the parliaments of the world have been the citadel of the people's freedom; that in these open public discussions not only have serpentine crawlers been killed tnd the interests of corrupt forces destroyed, but it will be further found that the great movements of commercial and political justice have had their origin in public discussion in these great parleys which the President so earnestly commends in his work. These questions, which involve not only the largest States, but the possible happiness and prosperity of ninety millions of people, can certainly well be given a few hours' debate, even should our Chief Magistrate in his petulancy seem to think that it is too long.

Farmers Not Concerned.

The "President seems to be of the opinion that the shipping bill will be of great interest to the farmers of the United States.

"I do not believe the farmers of the United States will be greatly concerned about transportation when their wheat is $1.40 a bushel. There is another thing in which the farmers of the United States are far more vitally interested and about which they are more greatly concerned and that is after they get their $1.40 they shall not be compelled to turn around and pay it all out in interest to some exhorbitant interest-collecting power. There will be no prosperity worthy of the name, there will be no return to the farm and to the country life in this country until we have put upon the statute books a sufficient and efficient system of rural credits which will enable the farmers of this country to have their credits and their loans and their interest at a rate which they can afford to pay."

Taking up the President's remark that he could not recall a single new idea that had come from the Republican Party in thirty years, Mr. Borah recited some of the important measures enacted by Republican Congresses. He began wich the creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1887, which he described as "until lately having performed its duties to the benefit of the people of the United States." He touched on the anti-rebate law, Sherman Anti-Trust act, the creation of the Bureau of Commerce and Labor, the pure food law, safety appliance law, parcel post, the physical valuation of railroads law, the law limiting the hours of labor on railroads, and the employers' liability law.

"I call your attention," he said, "to the fact that when the crisis came a few months ago, and the European situation brought to us a condition unexpected it was under the Vreeland-Aldrich Act that you proceeded to protect the credit and the business interests of this country. We had month before passed the Federal Reserve Bank Act, but it was not called into activity; it was not put into operation. It was not tested in that crisis, but when the crisis came it was permited to remain idle while the shoals and pitfalls of those first days of the European crisis. While we did so the Federal Reserve Bank Act lay—huge, combersome, bulky, expensive—cast upon the shore of the legislative sea like some antediluvian mastodon, not quite live enough for the menagerie and not quite dead enough for the operating table of the taxidermist, designed apparently for the Federal treasury, but apparently in it's way to the Smithsonian Institution."

Mr. Borah quoted Mr. Wilson's "History of the American People" to show that great distress had accompanied President Cleveland's rule and that the first work of the McKinley Administration was to supply work for idle laborers.

"It might not have been an era of 'ideas,'" said Mr. Borah, "but what it did had the effect of feeding the American people and restoring the American business prosperity. In my humble judgment that same task will devolve upon the Republicans in 1917. There are at least 3,000,000 men in this Midwinter asking for work, and the soup house is again dotting the land. The cry in that campaign of 1916 will not be for more ideas, but for bread; not for more rhetoric, but for more soup; and the termination of the campaign will not be doubtful when its issue is once raised before the American people. Ideas—many a poor fellow wishes tonight that they were eatables."

High Cost of Living.

"I assert that upon the 1st day of August, 1914, the cost of living was never so high in the country as it was at that time. This would have seemed to be a subject of compelling influence with the President in the discussion of the condition of the country on the Indianapolis occasion. Secondly, I assert that the cost of government, the extravagance of government, has never been so great in its history, and especially in the last thirty years, as it was upon the 1st day of August, 1914.

"In the midst of profound peace, at a time when we were at peace with everybody, including Mexico, we were compelled to raise $100,000,000 in the way of an emergency tax. Already the Government had exceeded the expenditures of the last year of Republican Administration by $117,000,000, and to that we added $100,000,000 more to be taken from the people laboring under a stagnation and industrial depression such as had not characterized this country since 1896.

"That $117,000,000 and the $100,000,000 did not include the $25,000,000 which we are proposing to pay to Colombia. It did not include the $3,000,000 which we are proposing to pay Nicaragua for another canal route. Just what we want with another canal route I am unable to determine, unless having built one canal and having given it to England we propose to build another and give it to Germany.

After some references to the President's declaration that the United States would give Mexico leave work out her own destiny, Mr. Borah made this reference to Nicaragua:

"Let me call your attention to the fact that while the President said at Indianapolis that while he was in favor of all those countries working out their destiny, we have here now pending a treaty which is one of the smallest and one of the weakest Central American countries, a country unable to defend itself, who has officers whom we put into power by virtue of a vessel of war sailing into her port, a Government which exists at this hour by virtue, and by virtue alone, of our marines, who are camped in the capital of that little country.

Mr. Borah voiced the criticism already given by Mr. Lodge that President Wilson had neither kept his hands off in Mexican affairs nor intervened in a way to bring peace to Mexico or safety to American citizens in that country.

"The mistreatment of American citizens in Mexico," he said, "is due to the fact that there has passed into the Mexican minds the idea that we will never protect our citizens, and I say that, whatever criticism shall come to me from those who love peace more than they love honor, that the 'flag which will not protect its protectors is a dirty rag that contaminates the air in which it floats.'

"We cannot have peace, we cannot have honor, unless we are prepared to protect our own citizens, and I believe, verily believe, that we may do so and still have no war with Mexico.

"Now, sir, when a condition of affairs exists in Mexico such as the civilized world never saw and Republicans rise to express their views as to what shall be done, the answer which we get from the public rostrum of the country by the Chief Magistrate of the nation is practically that the revolution in Mexico shall be permitted to float in open seas of blood and that the man who questions the course of revolution in Mexico is to be suspected by the American people.

"I have said that, in my judgment, if we should exert such influence as we had under international law and treaties we could protect the lives of our citizens in Mexico and do so without going to Mexico at all with an army. I believe that it could have been done in the first instance; I am not so sure but that it can be done yet, but I believe it possible. I do believe, beyond all question, that if we should have exerted the same influence morally and otherwise against the other factions in Mexico that we have exerted against Huerta we would have restored peace in Mexico, but when we exerted that influence against Huerta and did not exert the same influence against the other warring factions we left Mexico without any semblance of Government and invited every other aspirant in Mexico to put himself at the head of an army for the purpose of becoming its leader."

MAY HECLKE PRESIDENT.

If He Speaks in the House Members Can Question Him, Clark Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—One of the seven Smiths in the House, Samuel William of Michigan, made a bold suggestion in that body today. Just as soon as the journal had been read he wanted to know if it would be proper to ask the President of the United States a question when he appeared before the House to read an address. A hundred and fifty members present gasped at the thought of breaking in upon the Presidential presence with a question. But Mr. Smith went a step further by asking if a member should address the President directly, assuming that it was in order to question him, or if he should adderss the Speaker, who presides over the joint session of House and Senate.

Speaker Clark made a formal decision of the point raised. He ruled that members had the right to address questions to the rPesident when he came before the House, and that they should do so directly, and not through the Speaker. When Mr. Smith was asked later what his purpose was in bringing up the question, he said:

"I shall not be here the next time the President addresses the House. But I have many times been tempted to put a question to him when he has come before us. I did not do so because I was not sure what the proper procedure might be held to be. I knew that in the early days, when the President of the United tSates came before the House or the Senate, he was interrupted, and questions were put to him from the floor. It was told of President Washington that he became so disgusted at the treatment in this respect shown him in the Senate, that he withdrew, swearing in good, old-fashioned strong words, and refused to go there again."

PUT ON ARMY COMMITTEE.

Officers Appointed for National Security Organization.

A meeting of the Army Committee of the National Security League, which was appointed to make recommendations concerning the condition of the United States Army, was held yesterday and the committee was organized. Henry L. Stimson, the Chairman, was authorized to appoint a sub-committee of four to draw up suggestions for ways and means of carrying out the work of the committee. Gen. Francis V. Greene was named to represent the committee on the General Executive Committee of the league, and the officers of the Army Committee were completed with the election of Col. William C. Church, Vice Chairman, and G. H. Gaston, Jr., Secretary. In addition to those named the commithtee consists of F. W. Huidekoper, George R. Dyer, Frederic R. Coudert, George Haven Putnam, J. G. CARRANZA CLOSES BRITISH OIL WELLS

TROUBLE OVER NEW TAXES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The oil situation around Tampico is again looming up prominently, and may bring about another crisis in Mexican affairs. This is the result of the action of the Carranza Government in closing down the wells and properties of the Aguila Petroleum Company and the Penn-Mex Oil Company. These are among the most important and largest of the oil properties in the Panuco region, just west of Tampico, and they are backed by powerful financial interests. The Aguila is the Mexican Eagle Oil Company, Ltd., and is owned b ythe Pearson interests, of which Lord Cowdray is the head.

The British Government has protested vigorously against the action of Carranza. The matter has been taken up with the Government at Washington, and is also pressed by the British Legation in Mexico City. The closing down of these wells is considered outrageous by their operators, not only on account of the way in which their rights were jeopardized, but also because the closing down of the great gushers on these properties through the difficulty of finding storage room at Tampico and in the Panuco region, will develop a crucial situation. It is absolutely impossible to close down the biggest of the gushers entirely. The oil pressure will not permit this, and if the oil runs wild there will be danger of fire and explosions.

An announcement by the State Department today said:

"A telegram dated Jan. 11, from Tampico, states that the Aguila Petroleum Company and the Penn-Mex Oil Company have been closed down, in accordance of the terms of the executive decree of Gen. Carranza, dated Jan. 7, preventing further development or operations of oil lands without the permission of the Constitutionalist Administration. It is further reported that an embargo has been placed on the Agulia Petroleum Company, the Huasteca Petroleum Company in Tampico, preventing the exportation of crude oil. This action is said to be on account of the non-payment of the production tax."

Information has reached Washington through official sources that the closing down of these oil wells followed a refusal of the companies to pay levies of money that Carranza made against them. These advices say that the Carranza Government demanded an increased payment and that when this was refused, the decree was issued, and the oil companies named were closed down.

A dispatch to the State Department today from Monterey says the city has been evacuated by all the Carranza troops and that no military forces were in the town on Jan. 12. It is expected that Gen. Villa's troops will soon arrive there. The State Department was notified today that Gen. Villa, returning from his confererce with Gen. Scott, had left Chihuahua for Aguasallentes.

The Carranza agency here tonight announced that it had received advices that Gen. Pablo Gonzales, commanding the Constitutionalist army in the northeast, had sent strong reinforcements to Gen. Herrera, at Monterey, to move against the Villistas. The message said that telegraphic communication was open between Monterey and Nuevo Laredo, and that Gen. Gonzales's troops, after having captured Valles on Monday, were now moving on San Luis Potosi.

Another dispatch to the Carranza agency tonight stated that Gen. Cesareo Castro arrived at Tampico yesterday with 9,000 men who at once began entraining for Saltillo, via Monterey. These reinforcements, according to the agency, will give Gen. Villareal and Herrerra an estimated total of over 25,000 men to combat the Villistas in the Saltillo-Torreon campaign.

The agency announced that it had a message from Vera Cruz stating that Gen. Obregon, who recently captured Puebla, was yesterday victorious in an engagement with Zapatistas at San Martin, on the Interoceanic Railway, about halfway between Puebla and Mexico City, and that Gen. Sanchez was advancing into the State of Morelos.

$2,000,000 COINS FOR CUBA.

Philadelphia Mint Making First Issue of Republic's Coinage.

The Cuban Government has decided to have a coinage system of its own, and to this end has arranged with the United States Mint at Philadelphia to make $2,000,000 in silver coins for delivery within the next few months. At present Cuban money consists of French gold, Spanish silver, and the different American coins. Paper currency has not been in circulation since the Spanish régime ended in 1898.

The scarcity of silver for commercial purposes this Winter was the leading incentive to the Government's action. Just now the American silver dollar commands a premium of more than 2 per cent. and employers are having difficulty in raising sufficient metallic currency to meet their payrolls.

The National Bank of Cuba holds the contract for supervising the manufacture and distribution of the new coins. It is expected that about $10,000,000 in coins will be turned out for Cuba before the undertaking is completed.

An agreement has been made between Max Batkin and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berman by which the latter are to support Mrs. Ida Batkin, the wife of Max, for the rest of her natural life on the payment by Max of $100 in cash and $1 a week for two years.

The Bermans agree to feed, clothe, and care for Mrs. Batkin in sickness and in health and to bury her if she dies.

The agreement was filled with County Clerk Schneider, but it contained nothing to disclose the identity of the contracting parties.

STORM HITS SEABRIGHT.

Much Damage Along the Coast—Two Girls Killed in Wind.

While a warm sun, tempering what remained of Tuesday's stiff wind, made yesterday in this city seem almost like a day in Spring, reports came from points along the coast from New Jersey to Massachusetts of the damage done by the storm.

The big Sound steamers Plymouth and Hartford, en route from this city to Providence, were forced to put in early yesterday morning at New London because of the heavy weather outside.

The schooner Ruth was blown ashore at Ocean City, Conn., and the wind blew the Sound lined Puritan from her anchorage at Stonington. She smashed five fishing boats lying nearby.

Eight men were washed off the railroad trestle between Highland Beach and Sandy Hook yesterday morning. Another heavy wave swept ashore, and those who could walk carried the others to Sandless's Hotel, where they were resuscitated. Trains could not cross the trestle, and the storm made Sandy Hook an island.

The trarcks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey between Highlands and Seabright were torn up twisted beyond repair, railroad men said. More than $50,000 damage was done to property facing the ocean and to railroad property between these towns. More than 400 feet of bulkhead protecting the Summer homes at Seabright of Mrs. W. W. Shippen and J. J. Manning of this city and the Peninsula Hotel were battered to pieces and the lower part of Ocean Boulevard was torn up and strewn with driftwood. Telegraph wires were blown down and the railroad station at Navesink Beach was washed away. Hilton Park Hill, just north of the Water Witch station, caved in The ice was carried out of the Shrewsbury River, and ice yaches were washed ashore and wrecked.

TUMULTY'S CAUTION FOR SULLIVAN TOLD

"Tell Him to Build a Fence Between His House and Mitchell's," He Said to Vick.

LINKS MINISTER WITH BANK

Witness Describes Transfer of Customs Funds in Santo Domingo—Revolutionists Under Subsidies.

Evidence given at the Waldorf yesterday before James D. Phelan, the Commissioner appointed by President Wilson to investigate charges against James M. Sullivan, United States Minister to the Dominican Republic, dealt principally with the close relations alleged to exist between Mr. Sullivan and Frank J. R. Mitchell, President of the Banco Nacional of Santo Domingo, to which Mr. Sullivan caused the transfer of Government deposits, and with various allegations regarding Mr. Sullivan's unfitness for the office.

Walker W. Vick, formerly Receiver General of Customs under the convention of 1907 between the United States and the Dominican Republic, was on the stand during the entire hearing in the afternoon. He testified that when Minister Sullivan arrived at Santo Domingo on Sept. 21, 1913, Mr. Mitchell went to see him before he had left the gunboat Nashville, on which he had come to the island.

"I presumed," said Mr. Vick, "that he wanted to see him with regard to changing the depository of the customs receipts from the private bank of Santiago Michelena to the Banco Nacional."

It was alleged on Tuesday that Mr. Sullivan's appointment was due in part to the support of men interested in the Banco Nacional. Later, said Mr. Vick, Mr. Sullivan told him that the Banco Nacional was a "representative American institution," and that Secretary Bryan was friendly to the Jarvis interests, which were heavy owners of the bank's stock, and intended, he said, to make a loan of $15,000,000 to Nicaragua besides their Dominican interests. In point of fact, said Mr. Vick, three-fifths of the stock of the Banco Nacional was owned in Europe.

Told of Mitchell's Boasts.

Twelve or fifteen persons, Mr. Vick continued, had told him that Mr. Mitchell had boasted several weeks before the Minister was appointed that he could tell who the next Minister would be—that his name began with S and ended with N, and that he (Mitchell) was responsible for the removal of W. W. Russell, the former Minister, and would have "a general housecleaning of American officials in the island."

Mr. Vick then detailed the progress of the efforts by which Minister Sullivan and Mr. Mitchell persuaded him on Oct. 10 to transfer a special fund of $38,000 of customs money to the Banco Nacional, and finally all the customs receipts on Nov. 6. Among the arguments used were Mr. Sullivan's declaration that the Banco Nacional was opposed to the Money Trust and the National City Bank of New York, which acting through Michelena had made a loan some months before.

The Minister also said that the State Department wanted the transfer made, and he, in the presence of Vick and Mitchell theatened Michelena with investigation of his financial connection with Dominican public affairs and ultimate imprisonment. An official of the Finance Department of Santo Domingo, said Mr. Vick, had furnished Mr. Mitchell with accounts of the customs receipts which were supposed to be confidential between the American receivership and the local Government.

After his return in January of 1914, Mr. Vick said he had a leter from Minister Sullivan, telling him that Samuel M. Jarvis, Vice President of the bank, wished he would delay demanding payment on a draft of $50,000 on the Banco Nacional. The draft was paid: "but," said Mr. Vick, "it had come up to New York three days later than Mr. Jarvis expected." He also testified that while he was in Washington, Secretary Tumulty had said to him: "You tell Sullivan when you go back, to build a fence between his house and Mitchell's."

Rejected Offer As a Bribe.

In January, after Mr. Vick's return, a draft for $100,000 on the Banco Nacional, drawn by the Receiver, was not paid. Mr. Sullivan defended the bank, and from that time on, Mr. Sullivan and the Receiver's office were antagonistic. Mr. Vick said that in February, Mr. Mitchell had asked him to become one of three or four men associated in an electric lighting concession, but that he had refused, regarding it in the nature of a bribe, and had reported to his superiors in the War Department. He said further, that in one of the revolutions a bullet was fired into his bedroom, and that "the theory was that some of the people connected with the Banco Nacional had had it done."

Mr. Vick further described a house warming, given by the Receiver General and his subordinates to celebrate the opening of a new building. Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Mitchell, and some of their friends refused to come; and the night before the opening there was a good deal of firing behind the building which was apparently intended to discourage the social features of the opening.

"Half a dozen people," said the witness, "told me that the men who did this had been hired by the Banco Nacional; but there was considerable firing going on around town at all times, so I don't know."

In answer to a question of the Commissioner Mr. Vick said that Minister Sullivan had never "been fired at with a pistol; but oftentimes with bricks by Dominicans who wanted to indicate their dislike for him."

In May, said Mr. Vick, he heard that Mr. Mitchell had threatened to have him put in jail. Soon after that, on orders of the War Department, bids were asked for for the customs deposit; and these were ordered transferred to the Michelena Bank, though Mr. Vick said he had been inclined to favor the Royal Bank. Various drafts drawn by the Receiver, on the Banco Nacional were thereafter refused until on June 29, when the despository was changed, the bank had between $155,000 and $160,000 of unpaid customs drafts and checks. Of this $25,000 was paid, and for the rest the Receiver took over some of the Dominican Government's debts to the Banco Nacional.

Mr. Vick gave some idea of the budget of the Dominion Republic.

"The civil list," he said, "amounts to about $120,000 a month; but from June, 1913, to June, 1914, this was not paid. There is, however in the budget an item listed as 'war expenses.' This consists of subsidies paid to prominent generals for not starting revolutions, and sometimes reaches $150,000 a year."

"Something in the nature of a retainer," suggested Commissioner Phelan, "Such as that received by a lawyer."

In connection with Mr. Sullivan's alleged unfitness for the post, Mr. Vick said that on his return to Santo Domingo after a visit to Washington and New York in December, 1913, he took occasion to warn Mr. Sullivan of reports against his character.

"I thought then," he explained, "that the Minister had been only indiscreet; now I believe him unfit for any post."

Charges Against Sullivan.

Some of the charges mentioned by him yesterday were the following:

According to Henry S. Breckinridge, Assistant Secretary of War, a former Secret Service man had said that William C. Beer, one of Sullivan's sponsors, had demanded a retainer from men who wanted public contracts in Santo Domingo. The American Minister's consent was necessary before any such contracts could be let.

Boaz W. Long, Chief of the Bureau of Latin American Affairs, said that Mr. Sullivan had violated the regulations of the State Department in cashing drafts for his salary in advance. Mr. Sullivan, according to the witness, later admitted this to him.

E. Bright Wilson, a lawyer in the Singer Building, said that C. D. Smith, a contractor of Memphis, who was his client, had been asked by William C. Beer for a retainer of $5,000 in connection with the procuring of public contracts in Santo Domingo, with a 25 per cent. "profit" for Mr. Beer and his "associates." Mr. Smith, it was said, understood that Minister Sullivan was one of the associates.

Mr. Vick had been told that about 1905 Mr. Sullivan had accepted $1,500 as a retainer from the Right Rev. Bonaventure F. Broderick, at time Roman Catholic Auxiliary Bishop of Havana, for a lawsuit in which the latter was involved. Mr. Sullivan, according to the story, did nothing for the money, and when his appointment was before the Senate for confirmation the Bishop had written to Senator Bacon asking for an opportunity to be heard. Mr. Sullivan thereupon repaid the $1,500.

Mr. Vick said that when he returned to the United States last Summer, after resigning, Mr. Sullivan referred him to John G. Gray of Wilmington, Del., as a man who could indorse the minister unreservedly. Mr. Gray, according to the witness, was the Washington representative of the Banco National.

The hearing will be resumed at 11:30 this morning.

CONFESSES BURGLARY PLOT

Jeweler Sentenced for Attempted $50,000 Diamond Robbery.

The story of an attempt to steal diamonds valued at $50,000 from Greason & Co., diamond merchants, at 12 and 14 John Street, on Nov. 15, was told in Judge Wadham's part of General Sessions yesterday. Alfred Rosenthal, 65 years old, of 128 East 123rd Street, who has been in the jewelry business for forty years, confessed that he gave another man the key to the Greason store with the combination of the safe and engaged him to steal the gems. Rosenthal pleaded guilty to attempted burglarly in the third degree and he was sentenced to the penitentiary for six months.

When Thomas McDonald, who received the key from Rosenthal, tried to open the safe he was caught and the diamonds were not disturbed. McDonald confessed to the District Attorney that he had robbed other places for Rosenthal. He said that Rosenthal had a hole in the cellar of his home in which to hide the gems. McDonald has not yet been brought to trial.

Assistant District Attorney Follette told Judge Williams that for many years the police had suspected Rosenthal of aiding thieves to dispose of their loot.

NEW-YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO.

346 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

SEVENTIETH ANNUAL REPORT

TO THE POLICY-HOLDERS AND THE PUBLIC:

The New-York Life is international in its activities. It has outstanding business in all the civilized countries of the world.

You naturally want to know, at first hand, what effect the unprecedented conditions in Europe have had, or may hereafter have, on the Company. A correct picture of the whole situation is this:

We have about a million policy-holders in all the world. Eighty per cent. of the total live in the United States and Canada. The remainder, twenty per cent., are scattered over the rest of the world. They are located largely in Europe, including both the belligerent and the neutral countries. Their age, on the average, is about forty-seven. In this, as in all wars, the heavy mortality falls on youth,—young men averaging about twenty-two stand on the firing line.

In Russia, Servia and Japan our policy provisions protect us fully against all war risk. In Great Britain we have done little business for ten years and the age of our insured reduces the war risk to the vanishing point.

Our war risk, therefore, is practically limited to Germany, France, Belgium and Austria-Hungary. In all of these countries policies issued prior to 1899 carry a clause which substantially eliminates the war risk.

Of the policies issued at a later date there were in force in these countries at the outbreak of hostilities about 15,600, held by men whose attained age—that is the present age—was between seventeen and thirty-nine inclusive—about 1¼% of our membership.

We estimate the number of policies outstanding in these four countries on the lives of men between seventeen and thirty and having no clause limiting the war risk, at 2,600, representing not more than 2,400 lives, or about ¼ of one per cent. of our membership.

Our death losses incurred in 1914, including an extra reserve of $500,000 for losses probably incurred but not reported, were 73% of the amount provided in the premiums for the mortality of that year. In 1913, when we had no war claims, our mortality was also 73% of the amount provided. In 1912 it was 76%.

The total war losses actually incurred to December 31, 1914, including the countries where our risk is abundantly covered by policy conditions or otherwise, according to information obtained by both letter and cable, amounted to a little less than 2% of the total death losses for the year.

You may have been told that the Company would suffer because of its foreign investments. This is not true. Our foreign investments, limited as they are to Government Bonds and high grade municipals, have naturally fallen in price, but not appreciably more than domestic securities.

No security issued by or in any country engaged in this war and held by us is in default of either principal or interest.

If the same statement with regard to American securities could be made by this and other American Life Insurance Companies, as well as by our Hospitals, Universities, and by Trustees generally, the financial outlook would be brighter.

There is no reason to believe that we shall ever lose a dollar, principal or interest, on our foreign investments.

The greatest single effect of the war on the New-York Life is to demonstrate, as perhaps no other condition could, not merely the Company's strength, but its social usefulness.

Since August first last, the Company has administered an extent of practical beneficence which surpasses the limits of exact statement.

In spite of unprecedented difficulties—difficulties which have actually destroyed a large part of the commerce of the world, disarranged international credits, and shattered international relations—we have met every obligation and satisfied every just claim. After the first period of strangulation of credit passed, we disregarded all moratoria or other governmental decrees under which we might have postponed payments to policy-holders or beneficiaries.

Since the first of August we have advanced money to policy-holders as loans on their policies as follows:

	No. of Loans	Amount of Loans
In the United States and Canada................	49,275	$14,256,565
In Europe....................................	7,498	2,965,040
In other foreign countries......................	2,314	660,410

Policy-holders at home have been helped in about the same proportion to outstanding insurance that has ruled in Europe. We have all felt the war here most keenly. No considerable business has escaped.

It has been the good fortune of our membership to relieve suffering humanity, without charity, over a wider portion of the earth than ever before—perhaps to a degree never before equaled by any human institution.

In life insurance as exemplified by the New-York Life there is more than the germ of that world federation of peoples by which alone this European Horror can be so ended that it will never be repeated.

There have been years in which the New-York Life did more business than in 1914, but there has never been a year in which it did so much good.

The Company enters upon the year 1915 with its resources not only unimpaired but increased, with its assets liquid and available as against every contingency.

We have issued our Report for 1914 in condensed form and during the calendar year it will be sent to policy-holders generally. It will be sent to anyone on request.

WILLETT IN SING SING WITH 'BOSS' CASSIDY

HELPED ALONG BY CROPSEY

Joseph Cassidy, former Democratic boss of Queens, and William Willet, Jr., convicted of trafficking in a Supreme Court nomination in 1911, were locked in cells in Sing Sing prison yesterday afternoon, to begin their sentences of from one year to eighteen months, the former for having sold, the latter for having bought, the nomination. They reached the prison shortly after 1:09 o'clock, when the train arrived in Ossining from New York. They were carried to Sing Sing in an automobile.

They were taken at once to the receiving clerk, where they were registered, and then to the shop, where they bathed and were fitted out with prison garb. Today they will be interviewed by J. Crowley, the school teacher; Dr. Charles W. Farr, the prison physician, and Father Cashin, the chaplain. They will be assigned to work probably in a few days.

Following the decision of the Court of Appeals on Tuesday affirming the conviction of both men, they appeared before Justice Jaycox in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, early in the morning, anxious to go to prison at once. District Attorney Cropsey handed to Justice Jaycox the remittitur from the Court of Appeals, and the court then committed Cassidy and Willett to prison.

Cassidy was accompanied by Louis T. Walter, his political lieutenant, who was involved in the judiciary scandal, and several friends. Willett came into court with his brother, Marinus. The courtroom was crowded with a curious throng, who were there to see the last chapter in the long litigation which resulted in sending the two men to State's Prison.

Anxious to Get to Sing Sing.

After Justice Jaycox had signed the order, District Attorney Cropsey turned to leave the courtroom, when Cassidy stopped him and remarked that Robert H. Elder, counsel for him and Willett were not in court.

"I don't suppose it is necessary for him to be here, is it?" asked Cassidy.

"No, I don't think it is," said the prosecutor. "I don't know what he could do. If there is anything you want done, I'll try to help you out."

"Well," said Cassidy, "I came prepared to go to Sing Sing. I would like to have you arrange so that I could start at once. I don't like the idea of hanging around here any longer than is necessary."

Willett joined in the request and said he wanted to begin serving his prison sentence at once.

Mr. Cropsey telephoned to Raymond Street Jail and Deputy Sheriffs Bulck and McKeon were sent to the courthouse to take charge of the prisoners. Neither Cassidy nor Willett were handcuffed. Followed by a curious crowd they walked out of the courthouse and boarded a trolley car. While waiting at Raymond Street Jail before the start for Sing Sing, Willett handed his gold watch, scarf pin and match case to his brother Marinus. Marinus Willett gave William in return a dollar watch for his use in prison.

"What is there to say?" said Cassidy to a reporter's question. "The only thing to do is to see this thing through. I don't see any airships around."

After the commitment papers had been indorsed at the jail, Cassidy and Willett, in the charge of the two Deputy Sheriffs, left the building and at the Nevins Street Station of the Subway, Cassidy volunteered to pay the fares.

"How many are there?" he asked. "Here give me a dollar's worth of tickets," he said to the ticket seller.

On the way to the Grand Central Station, Cassidy and Willett chatted with friends who accompanied them. There were hasty farewells and then both men with the Deputy Sheriffs boarded the 11:55 train for Ossining.

Political Lesson, Cropsey Says.

District Attorney Cropsey said:

"These convictions and the affirmance of them by both the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals should be of great value, not only in Kings County, but throughout the entire State. They must stand for greater honesty in all matters political and especially in the nomination of Judges. It is believed that Joseph Cassidy is the first political boss that has ever been convicted in this State of selling a nomination for a judicial office and that William Willett is the first lawyer found guilty of buying a nomination for the Supreme Court. Walter was merely the go-between and got little if any of the money paid by Willett for the nomination. The real criminals were Cassidy and Willett."

ALLIGATOR LOOSE IN HOTEL.

Women Attaches of McAlpin Terror-Stricken Until It Was Captured.

Work was proceeding merrily in the Lost and Found Department of the McAlpin yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock. The room is No. 342, on the third floor, and the door is always kept open. Miss Selma Servoss was calling out names and descriptions of each item in a lot of things that had just been brought in, and Miss Jane Meyer was jotting these down on the typewriter.

Suddenly Miss Servoss's gaze strayed from the dress waistcoat she held in her hand to the doorway. Something was moving on the floor. It was not a mouse; it was not a rat. It was too big. It was long and shiny, and it was crawling. Miss Servoss speculated no further. She screamed. Miss Meyer turned, saw, screamed, and jumped upon a chair. Miss Servoss dropped the waistcoat, and jumped upon a desk.

From those vantage points they regarded the intruder.

"Why, it's an alligator!" exclaimed Miss Meyer, who was nearer.

"So it is," agreed Miss Servoss.

"Throw something at it," suggested Miss Meyer, who was out of reach of anything, except her typewriter. Miss Servoss grabbed a handful of canes and umbrellas and shied them at the alligator, but it kept on crawling. Finally Miss Servoss happened to think that the telephone shared the top of her desk with her, and picking it up she uttered an appeal for help.

In a few minutes a porter and two bellboys appeared. None had ever had experience in capturing an alligator, but they started in with canes, and finally got the saurian penned in a corner, where two of them pinned him down until the third could bring a box.

Then the reptile was placed on view in the room, and proved an attraction which drew all the employes that could contrive an excuse for passing that way. The alligator is about two and a half feet long. How it got loose on the third floor of the hotel nobody seemed to know, and as yet nobody has appeared to claim it. It is thought that some visitor who came up from the South brought the creature in his baggage.

To the Public—

IN the banking business, I found a really important benefit is one which finds its measure in the pocket book and if you should ask millions of thrifty American families just what Green Trading Stamps have meant to them in the last Eighteen Years, you will hear an endorsement which leaves no room for controversy.

That is why I have identified myself with The Sperry & Hutchinson Company, the original, oldest, largest and most thoroughly organized concern of its kind in the world; doing business from coast to coast and showing a handsome growth each year.

There is nothing speculative or experimental connected with this organization. We have faithfully fulfilled our promises to our subscribers and the public for the past Eighteen Years and will continue to make an even more generous return to every collector of S.&H. Stamps.

I wish also to say that The Sperry & Hutchinson Co. has no connection whatsoever with any merchandising or sales corporation. We have no retail interest to advance save that of the firms which give our stamps. The S.&H. Green Stamp is and always will be a public servant designed and issued to aid all merchants and consumers alike. It is strictly a Profit-Sharing and not a promotion enterprise.

The money saved by S.&H. Stamps for the great army of wise shoppers throughout the United States amounts to many millions of dollars every year. Millions of Dollars in merchandise have been given out from one of our New York Premium Parlors, alone. The average shows that One Thousand Premiums of substantial value are given away every day in the year from this single parlor.

The advantage to the customer of receiving this profit on his purchase in standard merchandise is very evident. Briefly, you receive a far greater value in goods of known worth—(as we buy them in enormous quantities from the manufacturer)—than could possibly be given in actual money.

Now remember; S.&H. Stamps are given by thousands of wide-awake merchants all over the United States. You may easily obtain them with every purchase you have to make, anywhere you may happen to be. Visit any of our parlors and obtain a list of the local merchants giving S.&H. Stamps.

You can redeem your S.&H. Stamps almost as easily as you can a Bank Note and they have just as positive a value. You may take your choice from over Four Thousand items of practical utility and sterling worth, in exchange for your stamps.

Could one ask a broader range than is offered by the original, Sperry & Hutchinson system of Profit-Sharing, backed by years of experience?

As a sound, important home-economy, S.&H. Green Stamps are the real friend of the family. They are always at your service and help you make a good, big cut in the high cost of living.

The Sperry & Hutchinson Co.

Uncle Sam Sends His Soldiers and Sailors

To the Hot Springs of Arkansas, for the Relief and Cure of Rheumatism and Blood Disorders.

(See List Below.)

The great Army and Navy Hospital located here reports ninety per cent. of its patients as being returned to duty. This is a fair indication of the certainty of cure or relief that sufferers may expect.

Many years ago, when Thomas Jefferson was President, the U. S. Government awakened to the fact that the Hot Springs of Arkansas was the most valuable asset in America for the curing of human ailments. So all of these Springs were set aside and became a park reserve, under the direct control and supervision of the Government.

It is beyond comprehension the thousands upon thousands of lives that have since been saved through the healing powers of these springs.

The waters are so charged with radium—known technically as radio-activity—that they accomplish results in the cure of disease that would under other treatment be considered impossible.

The ailments that most readily yield to these baths are Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Malaria, Locomotor Ataxia, (earlier stages,) Bright's Disease (when not too far advanced), Liver and Bladder troubles, Catarrhal troubles, Skin and Blood diseases, troubles peculiar to women, and other troubles of a nature kindred to those above mentioned.

Regarding these Springs as America's greatest gift to the sick, the Government has never allowed them to be exploited for private gain. The prices charged for the baths are strictly regulated—hotel charges are extremely low—and every consideration is afforded the visitor.

The City of Hot Springs is one of the most delightful resorts to be found anywhere in the world, and its visitors are by no means confined to those seeking health.

The best of hotel accommodations, ideal climate the year around, picturesque mountain scenery with drives made beautiful by U. S. Expert engineers, all contribute to make this the ideal resort of America.

Splendid facilities for all outdoor sports, excellent tennis courts, one of the finest 18-hole golf courses in America, Baseball Parks, etc.—lively with the gaiety of thousands of visitors from all parts of the country—Hot Springs offers rest, comfort, enjoyment and health.

Write for information, handsomely illustrated souvenir booklets, Government reports and other interesting and valuable matter.

FINLEY RULED ONLY ON PEIXOTTO CASE

Separate Decisions Will Be Made on Applications of Teacher-Mothers for Work.

GLAD POINT IS SETTLED

Board of Education Now Considers Time Needed by Teachers to Bear Children.

Because of uncertainty which was manifested at the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday as to how far the decision of Dr. Finley applied in the cases of married teachers who had been dismissed after bearing children, THE NEW YORK TIMES sent a message to Dr. Finley last night, asking him to interpret his decision. This reply was received:

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 13.
Decision disposes of Peixotto case only. Other cases will be decided separately as soon as possible.
JOHN H. FINLEY.

Can't Reinstate All Teachers.

Dr. Ira S. Wile at the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday moved that in accordance with Dr. Finley's decision all charges of neglect of duty against married teachers for absence from school duty on account of childbirth be dismissed.

Morton Stein, Chairman of the Committee on By-Laws and Legislation, objected, saying that a friend of his had received a telegram from Dr. Finley declaring that his decision was only on Mrs. Peixotto's appeal, and that he would consider the other cases one by one, including that in which a teacher was accused of mendacity.

Alrick H. Manmoved that the whole matter be referred to the Committee on By-Lawsan d this was carried notwithstanding this inquiry by Joseph Barondess:

"Don't we know when we are licked?"

The report of the special committee on this mother-teacher question, recommending compulsory leave of absence without pay for two years for a teacher who is about to become a mother was also referred back to that committee for further consideration. William G. Willcox, one of its members, said:

"While Commissioner Finley's decision does not affect the attitude of this board toward the subject, since the special committee has already declared in favor of a two years' yeave of absence, it does act as a caution to us to give more careful consideration to important matters and not be too hasty."

Length of the Leaves.

He then read a report from a Committee of the Academy of Medicine to the effect that prospective mothers ought not to teach after the sixth month of pregnancy, and ought not to return to their school until their infants are three months old. Mr. Willcox said that their might be doubt as to the legal right of the Board to compel a teacher to take a two years' leave.

Mr. Barondess moved that the suspension of Miss Henrietta Rodman of the Wadleigh High School be reconsidered by the board and that it be referred back to the Committee on High and Training Schools. Thomas M. De Laney's resolution that her case be laid on the table was carried by a large majority. Chairman Greene of the Finance Committee made a depressive report on the condition of the teachers' retirement pension fund. On Jan. 1, 1915, he said, the available funds on hand were $82,359, and the liabilities amounted to $194,000, creating a deficit of $111,640.

To Teach Stenography.

It was decided to teach stenography nad typewriting in the first year of the Morris High School course, as an experiment. If it should prove a success, then it probably will be extended to other high schols having commercial courses.

The renomination by Dr. Maxwell of Walter L. Hervey to succeed himself as a member of the Board of Examiners, was referred to the Committee on Nominations.

At the end of the meeting Dr. Maxwell said that nothing had thus far been done by the board in the case of Mrs. Peixotto, but that undoubtedly she would be reinstated promptly.

President Churchill said that he was in favor of equal treatment of all the mother-teachers.

Mayor Mitchel said yesterday that he was gratified at the decision of State Commissioner of Education John H. Finley.

"The question at issue has never been, as I have understood it, whether the women teachers have the right to become mothers," he said, "but whether being teachers, they are entitled to leaves of absence to become mothers."

START LUNCH SYSTEM.

Children Pleased by New Plan Adopted in Public Schools.

A unch service for pupils was started in twenty-four public schools. In a report to City Supt. Maxwell, which was submitted to the Board of Education, Dr. McAndrew, Associate City Superintendent, said:

"I selected School No. 1, as I have been advised that Miss Marion Wagstaff is a good manager. Promptly at 12 o'clock each child received her ticket from her teacher. Care has been taken not to pauperize children. It is not uncommon for children to beg when they do not need help. Those in need were quietly given free tickets. The children passed along in single file, each taking a tray, mug of hot chocolate, two slices of bread, and a plate of cranberry sauce. As they passed the cashier they deposited their tickets. I took my turn and ate luncheon with the patrons. The cooking was excellent and the children were delighted."

FIRST MRS. ROGERS HEARD.

He Confessed He Lover Carolyne Giddings and Asked Her to Divorce Him.

Mrs. Annie Dupree Roquemore Rogers, first wife of Lorlys Elton Rogers, lawyer, of 38 Park Row, related to the Grand Jury of the Bronx yesterday the part she played in the domestic tangle which finally caused Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers to fatally poison her two babies and then attempt to commit suicide.

Mrs. Rogers said she met Rogers when he became a member of her father's law firm in Montgomery, Ala., and after their marriage they came to New York. He continued the practice of law, and renewed his acquaintance with Mrs. Caroline Giddings Rogers, sister of Prof. Franklin Henry Giddings, now preparing to sue him for divorce. He had met Miss Giddings through her brother, who was a classmate of Rogers in college.

Rogers's conduct toward his wife changed soon after he met Miss Giddings again. He confessed he loved her no longer, she said, and asked her to divorce him so that he could marry Miss Giddings. This she did. She told the jury that her husband provided her with money with which to go to Reno and obtain the divorce. After their divorce he still gave her money and educated their son, Lorlys Roquemore Rogers, now 19 years old.

Before the divorce, Mrs. Rogers explained, she was a friend of Ida Sniffen Walters, who visited her. Asked if her husband loved Mrs. Ida Rogers at that time, Mrs. Roquemore Rogers said apparently he did not.

Her divorced husband seemed to be entirely happy with his second wife, but he frequently came to see his divorced wife, she said. Asked when she first learned that he was in love with Mrs. Ida Rogers, the first wife said it was when Mrs. Ida Rogers told her nearly three years ago that she was about to become a mother.

According to the first wife Rogers told Mrs. Caroline Giddings Rogers of his infatuation for Mrs. Ida Rogers, and that she was told that his second wife entered into an agreement to release him to marry the third woman, whom he loved. She said the agreement was broken, and asserted that her sympathy was entirely for Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers.

Mrs. George H. O'Brien of 934 Ogden Avenue, for several years a close neighbor and friend of Mrs. Ida Rogers, was another witness before the Grand Jury; also Dr. David Greenberg and Dr. Harold Freund, who treated her in Lebanon Hospital; Julia Carlo, 104 West 169th Street, the Bronx, a nurse girl, and Anthony Di Bella, a druggist, 1,431 Boscobel Avenue, the Bronx, who sold bichloride of mercury to Mrs. Walters-Rogers on Feb. 19, 1914.

Dr. William Grant Hague, physician of Mrs. Ida Rogers, said last night that her heart had been affected, and that she probably might not recover. The hospital physicians, while not certain that she will recover, have informed the Coroner she will be able to leave Lebanon Hospital when the inquest is held next Wednesday.

$313,000 to Help the Blind.

The New York Association for the Blind, 11 East Fifty-ninth Street, reports that $313,000 has been subscribed recently, including a subscription by Andrew Carnegie of $100,000. The building is now free of mortgage and the committee states that there is an endowment fund exceeding $250,000. The President of the association is Joseph H. Choate, the Vice Presidents are Helen Keller, Dr. F. Park Lewis, and Robert W. de Forest, the Treasurer is Frederick C. Eldridge, and the Secretary Winifred Holt.

Shinnecock Club Election.

An effort to win back the old-time prestige of the once famous Shinnecock Democratic Club of Flushing was made last night when Alfred M. Barrett, President of the Guardian Trust Company of Manhattan and a personal friend of President Wilson's, was nominated for President of the club, together with a strong list of candidates for the other offices. The election will be held next Tuesday.

LEO M. FRANK

Read the Evidence That Convicted Him of the Murder of MARY PHAGAN, the Little Factory Girl, of Atlanta

THE Frank case is one of the most extraordinary in the history of all American murder mysteries. Three times Frank has faced the gallows, and as many times a stay has been procured, and the case taken up from one court to another, and finally to the Supreme Court of the United States, where it now is.

For nearly two years Frank's life has hung in the balance, and all this time the feeling in Atlanta for and against him has been so intense that it has wellnigh broken up families and wrecked political careers.

AFTER FRANK'S CONVICTION THE NOTED DETECTIVE, WILLIAM J. BURNS, WAS CALLED INTO THE CASE, AND MADE AN EXHAUSTIVE STUDY OF THE WHOLE AFFAIR. HE DUG OUT A VAST LOT OF PERTINENT FACTS THAT DID NOT APPEAR IN THE EVIDENCE AT FRANK'S TRIAL.

Burns's comment in connection with the complete testimony as reported by the court stenographer as it is published in The Sunday Press will throw a vivid light on the story of Mary Phagan's death and Frank's conviction.

The official evidence on which Frank was convicted has never been published, although it is one of the most human documents of this century.

Mary Phagan, a fourteen-year-old factory girl, was found strangled to death in the basement of the building in which she was employed. Frank, a Brooklyn boy and a Cornell graduate, was superintendent of the factory. He was arrested, charged with the murder, and convicted. The testimony against him is of tremendous interest. His friends assert that he was found guilty because he was a Jew.

As the testimony is printed, Burns will comment on it, pointing out the importance of each witness, so that you will be able to follow the workings of the trial just as if you were in the courtroom.

WHITMAN TAX PLAN STIRS STATE BOSSES

Likely to Cause Governor's First Clash with the Republican Organization.

CONTROLLER IS HARD HIT

Patronage of a Million Annually Transferred to a Board of Whitman's Selection.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—The first clash between Gov. Whitman and the Republican bosses may come when the Governor seeks to press to final passage in the Legislature his plan for a reorganization of the State Tax Department and changes in the method of assessing and collecting taxes.

A bill embodying the Governor's plan, as foreshadowed in his inaugural address, and his message to the Legislature was to be introduced in the Legislature tonight. Majority Leader Hinman of the Assembly, who represents the political bailiwick of William Barnes, the former Republican State Chairman, however, asked the Governor to withhold his special message and the bill until Mr. Hinman had an opportunity to examine the measure. He made this request although Gov. Whitman had given emphatic expression to his approval of the bill in all its essential details. The Governor acceded to the request.

Controller Travis who is in high favor with the Republican organization, has announced that he will fight the measure which would rob him of patronage, estimated at $1,000,000 annually, in addition to depriving him of powers in connection with the assessment of taxes. He called on Gov. Whitman this afternoon and urged the advisability of eliminating a section of the bill which would transfer from his department to the proposed new Tax Commission the duty of levying the assessment of the tax on corporations. Gov. Whitman told Mr. Travis that the clause to which Mr. Travis objected would remain as perhaps the most vital provision in the measure.

Broadly, the bill would separate the functions of assessing taxes and collecting them, in accordance with a plan now in vogue in Massachusetts and in Wisconsin and applied generally in New York City, giving the duty of collecting the revenues to the Controller and transferring the function of making the assessments to the proposed new Department of Taxes and Assessments.

As the bill was drafted the new department would have assessed all the taxes, including the inheritance tax. As nearly every legislator from the rural districts is indebted to the present Controller for the appointment of some friend as a transfer tax appraiser or transfer tax attorney, this provision was eliminated in order to quiet opposition. Ultimately, it is intended to put the Tax Commissioners in charge of the administration of the inheritance tax, or as it is also known the transfer tax.

If the Governor's plan is carried out the Controller would lose the patronage ultimately in the Land Tax Bureau, the Transfer Tax Bureau, the Corporation Tax Bureau, the Stock Transfer Tax Bureau, and the Mortgage Tax Bureau with 127 employes in all and an annual payroll of $321,405. The Controller has 211 employes in all and a total payroll of $472,210.

In the Transfer Tax Bureau the Controller appoints clerks, stenographers, appraisers, and attorneys in the several counties throughout the State, in addition to the employes who receive regular salaries. The fees, in addition to the salaries shown, collected by these additional employes of the Transfer Tax Bureau, estimated from the Controller's report for 1913, amount annually to $524,507. The proposed tax legislation, therefore, would affect the Controller's office to the extent of $845,912 annually. The proposed reorganization of the Tax Department would give the bulk of the Controller's present patronage to men directly amenable to the Governor. It is, however, not the shifting of the patronage that is most resented. The power to assess the corporation and the inheritance tax, each amounting to about $10,000,000 a year, is something which the Republican organization is not likely to permit to be transferred without making a determined show of resistance.

The chief objection to the present method of assessing and collecting the corporation, special franchise, and inheritance taxes is that with both functions joined in one official there is no check. Under the Governor's plan the assessments would be made by the Tax Commissioners and handed to the Controller to collect. Should he fail to collect the total appearing on the assessment lists the Attorney General would come in as a third factor, and to him would fall the duty of enforcing through the courts the collection.

The Whitman bill would oust the present Tax Commission and substitute a triple-headed board, the President of which would receive a salary of $8,000, and the two other members salaries of $7,000 each. One of the members must be a Democrat. Their terms of office would be three years. The present Commissioners receive $6,000 each annually and serve for three years.

Under the Whitman plan separate bureaus in charge of deputies would handle corporation, special franchise and mortgage taxes, while a fourth would look after local assessments, equalization of taxes, and statistics.

Controller Travis suggested another plan to the Governor, contemplating the creation of a Board of Assessments composed of all the elective State officials except the Governor. The Governor rejected this plan, because he thought the work called for the services of experts.

Ex-Senator Martin Saxe is slated for President of the remodeled Tax Commission. He is an expert on taxation matters. Frank Lord, a Nassau County lawyer, who is a member of the firm of Lord, Day & Lord, also an expert on tax matters, probably will be appointed to the second place, while the third will go to a Democrat not yet selected.

OPPOSE TRAIN CREW LAW.

Two Bills Introduced at Albany to Repeal the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—Two bills introduced in the Assembly tonight attacked the full-train crew law passed by the Democrats in 1913. The first, by Assemblyman Conkling, would repeal the measure; the second, by Assemblyman Sullivan, would delegate to the Public Service Commission the determination of reduction in the size of crews as laid down in the law. Sullivan's bill is the same as that introduced by him in 1914.

The law was fought by Republicans both in the Assembly and Senate when passed. With the control of both branches of the Legislature the Republican sponsors of the measure introduced tonight are confident of killing the law passed under the Sulzer régime, and which railroads believe has proved its inability to right the wrongs it was aimed at. A similar law was voted down in Missouri last Fall in a referendum vote by more than 100,000.

The law as it stands provides that no railroad of more than fifty miles in length may operate a freight train of more than twenty-five cars unless the train be manned with a crew of not less than one engineer, one fireman, one conductor, and three brakemen, nor any train, other than a freight train of five cars or more, without a crew of not less than one engineer, one fireman, one conductor, and two brakemen; and if the train is a baggage train or a passenger train having a baggage car, without a baggageman in addition. The law also prohibits the running of a freight train of twenty-five cars or less without a crew of one engineer, one fireman, one conductor, and two brakemen; nor any light engine without cars, without a crew of one engineer, one fireman, one conductor, and two brakemen. Heavy penalties are provided for violation.

The bill introduced by Assemblyman Sullivan would repeal the law by giving to railroads the right to demand hearings before the Public Service Commission. Without the law, the Public Service Commission would have the power to force roads to carry what crews it might adjudge necessary to safety and efficiency.

SCHOENECK REBELS, IS NO RUBBER STAMP

New Lieutenant Governor Upsets Custom in Senate Committee Appointment.

HOT FIGHT IN CAUCUS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Thursday, Jan. 14.—With all prearranged plans for its first business session upset, the Republican Senators early this morning were assembled in caucus behind closed doors, where a lively fight was in progress over assignments to the working committees.

If the fight was started by Lieut. Gov. Schoeneck, who declined to follow the custom in vogue in the "good old" days when theRepublicans were in power here and be a ruber stamp for the legislative leaders.

Under the rules of the Senate the Lieutenant Governor as President of the Senate is supposed to appoint members to the standing committees "unless the Senate should otherwise order." Senator Elon R. Brown, President pro tem. of the Senate, handed the list of committee assignments to Lieut. Gov. Schoeneck in the usual mannear early last evening and requested him to promulgate the appointments from the rostrum when the Senate met. Lieut. Gov. Schoeneck rebelled at this demand.

"I have not been consulted about these appointments," he told Senator Brown. "Yet, under the Senate rules, I am expected to make these appointments. I am responsible to the public for the selections. Under the circumstances it is only fair that I should have time to examine the appointments carefully and have an opportunity to exercise my own discretion in the matter. I will not be a mere rubber stamp."

This ultimatum was delivered just before the Senate was to meet. To say that Senator Brown was surprised at the stand of Lieut. Gov. Schoeneck would put it mildly. Immediately after the Senate had been called to order Senator Brown moved a recess until the Republican Senators could meet in caucus and thresh the matter out.

It is understood that Lieut-Gov. Schoeneck was led to taking his stand largely from the determination of Senator Brown to place Senator Henry M. Sage who represents William Barnes's Albany bailiwick, at the head of the Finance Committee, a place also sought by J. Henry Walters, the Senator from Onondaga,; George R. Whitney of Saratoga and James A. Emerson of Warren.

Mr. Schoeneck told Senator Brown that the opposition expressed in many quarters to the selection of Senator Sage as Chairman of the Finance Committee had had some weight with him.

He added that there were some other appointments which in his opinion might be improved upon.

Lieut. Gov. Schoeneck was not invited to enter the caucus. He said to reporters that he had agreed not to discuss the situation in any way. In contrast with the Senate there was no friction in the Assembly.

Committees of the Assembly.

In the Assembly, where the Republicans controlled a year ago, a majority of the committee chairman appointed then were retained. A few changes made were to fill vacancies, owing to failure of committee heads to seek re-election. The changes had no political bearing. The changes included the appointment of rFank B. Thorn of Erie as chairman of the Judiciary Committee. This place was held last year by Cyrus W. Phillips of Monroe, who is not in this year's Assembly. oJhn Knight of Wyoming was made head of the Codes Committee. Fred M. Aherd of Kings took the place of John A. Smith of St. Lawrence, who was not re-elected, as head of the Committee on General Laws. George R. Brennan of Kings succeeds Clinton T. Horton, who was elected to the Senate as chairman of the Committee on Insurance.

Alexander Macdonald of Franklin County was retained as head of the important Committee on Ways and Means, in which place he virtually will hold the purse strings of the State during the present year.

The full list of assignments to the more important standing committees and the list of chairmen of committees of secondary importance follows:

RULES—Sweet of Oswego, Hinman, Thorn, Brereton, Macdonald, (Republican); Smith, Gillen, (Democrat.)

CITIES—Hoff of Kings, Malone, Stoddard, Buecheler, Blakeley, Ellenbogen, Simpson, Powers, Keeney, Bewley, (Rep.,) Kelley, Tudor, Burr, (Dem.)

The Chairman of the remaining committees, all of whome are Republicans, are:

General Laws, Ahern of Kings; Railroads, Seaker of St. Lawrence; Electricity, Gas and Water Supply, Maier of Seneca; Insurance, Brennan of Kings; Internal Affairs, Sullivan of Chautauqua; Taxation and Retrenchment, Landon of Dutchess; Education, Tallett of Madison; Agriculture, Gillett of Yates; Health, Seelye of Saratoga; Villages, Baxter of Albany; Canals, Conkling of New York; Labor, Talmage of Suffolk; Revision, Magee of Livingston; Conservation, Machold of Jefferson; Commerce and Navigation, Fuller of Oneida; Charitable and Religious Societies, Howard of Schuyler; Penal Institutions, Law of Westchester; Military Affairs, Stoddard of New York; Printing, Wilson of Wayne; Public Institutions, Miller of Erie; Claims, Wood of Fulton, and Hamilton; Soldiers Home, Montgomery of Orange; Privileges and Elections, Brereton of Warren; Printed and Engrossed Bills, Flamman of Kings; Social Welfare, Hopkins of Westchester.

The two Progressives, Hamilton Fish, Jr., of Putnam and Joseph Steinberg of New York, were assigned to the Committee on Social Welfare, created last year at the request of Progressive leaders.

Assemblyman Goldberg of New York City tonight reintroduced his Five-Cent Telephone Rate bill of last year. Mr. Hinman, the majority leader, reintroduced the woman suffrage resolution which was passed in 1913.

Pensions for widowed mothers are provided in a measure introduced by Assemblyman McCue of New York City. A board of nine members would be appointed in New York City by the Mayor. At least three of the members would be women. The bill is similar to the bill defeated in the Senate last year.

A bill introduced by Assemblyman Brereton would make the sale and possession illegally of habit-forming drugs a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

Assemblyman Lord introduced an amendment to the elections law which would abolish boards of elections in all counties except those having first and second class cities and in the counties within the boundry of the City of New York. This bill does not go as far as Gov. Whitman advocated in his message. The Governor desires to abolish the elections boards in all counties except those containing first class cities.

Assemblyman E. S. Comstock, Republican of Rensselaer County, who is involved in the charges made by the Controller regarding the awards made at an agricultural fair, asked to be excused from atendance until the result of the investigation is announced. The request was granted.

Two contests were announced. Max Solomon, Democrat, is contesting the seat held by Aaron Feinberg, Republican, for the Thirty-first New York City District, and Sidney Crane, Republican, contests the seat held by Daniel C. Oliver, Democrat, for the Twenty-third New York City District.

UPSETS SUFFRAGE PLAN.

Leader Hinman Declines to Withdraw Resolution in Assembly.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—Suffragists who have endeavored for two years to induce the Legislature to pass twice a resolution putting an equal suffrage amendment before the voters this Fall now may go before an Assembly committee and plead for the death of the resolution. It was passed in 1913.

After the resolution had been introduced in the Assembly by Leader Hinman, last Wednesday, the suffragists decided it would be better to have the matter considered by the Constitutional Convention next Summer. Therefore they wrote to Mr. Hinman saying that they wished he would shelve the resolution. Mr. Hinman, however, declines to do this.

Retains Jerome in Thaw Case.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—Attorney General Egburt E. Woodbury and William Travers Jerome conferred today on the Thaw case. After the conference Mr. Woodbury announced that the designation of Mr. Jerome as Special Deputy Attorney General would be continued until such time as Thaw was returned to the State. Mr. Woodbury is awaiting the entering of the decree of the Supreme Court before taking definite steps to bring Thaw back to the State. "Attorney Generals come and Attorney Generals go, but Thaw goes on forever," said Mr. Jerome, jestingly, as he greeted Mr. Woodbury.

eJrsey City Boy Does Not Give East Side Dentist an Idle Moment in Garden Bout.

There was too much youth and speed in Joe Shugrue to suit Leach Cross in their ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. That left jab of the New Jersey boy beat a tatoo on Cross's face and had him worried after the third round. The bout teemed with action and kept the big crowd which filled the Garden to the rafters in a high pitch of excitement. Cross took his medicine gamely and cut loose in the second round in a way that looked bad for Shugrue. Leach, however, couldn't keep up the fast pace he set and the Jersey boxer time and again drove him back to the ropes under a smothering attack.

In the seventh round Leach was in serious plight. Shugrue staggered him with a stiff crash on the jaw and while Cross was off his balance he drove a left smash to the body which upset Leach and sent him flat on the floor. He was up in a jiffy and refused to back water. Whatever may be said about Cross, he was never backwarrd about mixing up his two fists in the melee and his hard smashes had Shugrue's mouth cut early in the bout.

Manager Jimmy Johnson kept the big gathering entertained with a circus stunt just before the big go when he introduced two midgets about 2½ feet tall, who boxed three rounds and kept the crowd in an uproar. One of the little chaps weighted about 30 pounds and the other about 40. The wee boxers were Yabba Balbo and Zep Bagge, both from Austria. The smaller of the two, Bagge, floored Balbo in the third round and another midget counted him out.

Shugrue boxed in his usual swift fashion. He was in and out al the time, his left fist being tremendously busy on Cross's frontispiece. The first round saw Shugrue pecking away relentlessly on Cross's face. Leach played for the clinches, and did a lot of effective infighting. Cross's best round was the second. He cut loose and made Shugrue very wary with some stiffening uppercuts and clipped him on the jaw twice in a way which drove Shugrue half way across the ring.

In the third round, however, Cross began to stall and failed to take advantage of the lead he got in the second round. Shugrue again became unusually busy, and although the east side idol hammered his body in the clinches until it was red Shugrue outboxed Cross without much effort.

Leach landed a few hard ones on Shugrue's jaw in the fourth round, which made the Jersey boy step back and use a little care. Shugrue showed an effective angle of his boxing in ducking Cross's uppercuts and swings and everytime the East Sider missed a roar of delight went up from the gathering of Shugrue's friends from the Jersey shore.

In the fifth, Cross stalled again until he got Shugrue in a clinch and then hammered his body again. These wallopings didn't wory Shugrue a great deal, but nevertheless he showed much respect for Cross's delivery and was as cautious as could be during the remainder of the round.

The sixth period saw Shugrue boxing at his best. He cuffed Cross on the face with rights and lefts, and tried hard to wear down his older opponent, but Leach seemed to have plenty of stamina, and not once did he fail to come up to the scratch and mix it up with the elusive Shugrue.

The seventh round found Shugrue handing out an abundance of punishment. His left shook Cross from head to feet as he slammed his head with one hand and then with the other. It was the same way in the eighth round, when Cross got very wild and tried to get over a heavy blow, but found Shugrue waiting for it. The Jersey boy did his best ducking and feinting in this section and guessed just what Cross was trying to do.

The tenth round was fast all the way. Cross tried hard to make up lost ground, but he was too late and found Shugrue's boxing too fast for him.

TITLE FOR RAMME.

New York A. C. Swimmer Wins 100-Yard Metropolitan Championship.

Swimming in his best form, W. Ramme, a member of the New York A. C. swimming team, last night won the 100 yards Metropolitan Association A. A. U. championship in the New York Athletic Club tank. The winner was opposed by some of the best swimming talent in the East, including H. E. Vollmer and J. H. Reilly, who finished second and third respectively. The time for the distance was 58 3-5 seconds, or within one-fifth of a second of the time made in 1908 by C. M. Daniels, the international champion. N. T. Nerich, who won this event in 1913 and 1914, was not placed.

The contest was a grueling one from start to finish, and Ramme's victory was by the smallest margin.

Another feature of the meet, was the number of young swimmers who took part, and at the same time, showed splendid form. L. S. Luke, a youngster, from Lawrenceville Preparatory School, was second in the 200-yard handicap, and he was only beaten a few inches by J. H. Reilly for first place. Robert E. Galbraith, a youngster from the High School of Commerrce, won the fancy diving competition. H. McAleenan, who is eleven yearrs of age, brother to the intercollegiate champion, made a remarkably good showing in this event.

The obstacle race went to J. J. Curren, N. Y. A. C. In this case the swimmer had to go through a number of gymnastic feats, aside from swimming in and out of a barrel.

T. Ruddy, Jr., unattached, another youngster, easily won the fifty-yards handicap, with a twelve seconds' start. W. F. Henderson vbgkqj cmfwyp dlu W. F. Henscdon was second. The summary:

100-Yard Metropolitan Association A. A. U. Championship.—Won by W. Ramme, New York A. C.; H. E. Vollmer, New York A. C., second; J. H. Reilly, New York A. C., third. Time—0:58 3-5.

50-Yard Handicap.—Won by T. Ruddy, Jr., unattached; W. F. Hanscom, unattached, second; J. F. Curtin, unattached, third. Time—0:33 4-5.

May Go Through Cape Cod Canal.

Members of the New York Yacht Club have under consideration in connection with their Summer cruise a trip through the Cape Cod Canal from Buzzard's Bay to the waters of Massachusetts Bay, with races from Marblehead or some other point, possibly from Plymouth Bay, to follow. If the plan is carried out it will be the first trip of an organized yacht club through the canal, and a decided novelty as a yachting event. Naturally such a trip must be in the nature of a procession rather than a race, as the probabilities are that some towing may have to be done unless the breezes are kind to the adventurous sailors. Ifthe trip is made, it will follow the annual cruise to Newport and for the purpose of giving the smaller boats of the fleet a chance to hold some sort of cup races with the boats of Boston Harbor over the tortuous courses of the bay. What little talk there has been among the members has revealed the fact that Boston yachtsmen would welcome the visitors most cordially and try to give them all the sport they want when the fleet gets into the waters of Massachusetts Bay.

GREAT ATHLETES IN GARDEN

Millrose Games Attract Stars of Track and Field.

The athletic eyes of the country will be keenly focussed tonight on Madison Square Garden, when one of the greatest athletic carnivals in the annals of indoor sports will be staged by the Millrose Athletic Association. Champion athletes and prominent A. A. U. officials from all parts of the United States will be on hand. Alfred J. Lill, Jr., President of the Amateur Athletic Union, is coming down from Boston. The Hub will also be represented by all the star athletes of the Boston A. A. Coach Brown has entered Tom Halpin, Dave Caldwell, Fred Burns, James Power, J. A. High and S. D. Rose.

Philadelphia will be represented by the great "Ted" Meredith, Olympic record holder for 880 metres and the half-mile, heads its list of stars. Others who will make the trip with him are such prominent fliers as Lippincott, Lockwood, Kaufman, J. J. Gallagher and six others.

Chicago comes in for the greatest amount of interest from local followers of the sport because of the first appearance in the East of Joe G. Loomis of the Chicago Athletic Association, whose wonderful performances at the national championships at Baltimore in capturing three titles were acknowledged as the cleaverest athletic feat of 1914. He will measure strides in the sprints and hurdles with such men as Alvah Meyer, the indoor record holder of 06:2 for sixty yards; Lippincott and Lockwood and J. J. Eller, who boasts that Loomis will have to make a new record to beat him; J. A. High and Fred Burns of the Boston A. A.; W. Bursch of the New York A. C.; Frank Stephenson, C. B. Clark, A. Jones and a score of others. In the high jump Loomis will also be opposed by champions—Gene Jennings, the present senior national indoor title holder, and Rodriguez, the junior champion, together with Goehring of the Mohawk A. C., Davy of Princeton University and Al Crane of Philadelphia, the Western Conference champion. Six of the men entered in this event are credited with having done over six feet.

In the Millrose 600-yard invitation run six of the world's fastest middle-distance men will start from scratch. The field will be made up of Tom Halpin, Ted Meredith, Homer Baker, Dave Caldwell, Win Gough and Hugh Horschon. This gives all the largest clubs in the East at least on representative in the first attempt to get a leg on the valuable E. H. Posen trophy, which was brought over recently from London specially for the Millrose games.

The two-mile run for the Rodman Wanamaker trophy, on which both the Long Island A. C. and the Irish-American A. C. have two legs, furnishes the "distance" feature of the allstar programme. The recent lightning performances of Mike Devaney have given Hannes Kolehmainen some cause for serious thought about his chances of bringing home the valuable bronze for keeps in the Irish-American A. C.'s trophy cabinet. The Long Island A. C. will again be represented by Louis Scott and "Sid" Leslie, last year's winner. Other stars who will have to be reckoned with are Willie Kyronen, the senior and junior five-mile champion; Horton of the New York A. C., junior two-mile champion, and Lemberg of the Trinity Club.

The allstar programme is headed by the Millrose road race, which starts and ends on the Garden track, the course taking the runners around Central Park. More than 200 harriers will face the starter and receive handicaps from the sturdy Greek, Gianakopulos, of the Millrose A. A. Then there is the "thousand" yard run, with Abel Kiviat of the Irish-American A. C., a world's champion, on scratch, and Rose and Power of the Boston A. A. on the back marks.

WHITE LOSES WITH CUE.

David Weiner Makes Strong Finish in Class B Billiards.

By an entirely unexpected strong finish David Weiner scored a victory over Charles E. White last night in the national amateur Class B billiard championship at the Amateur Billiard Club by a score of 300 to 285. From the early innings White had the game well in hand, and appeared to be an easy winner. Then his mastery of the ivories suddenly vanished, and Weiner, by steady up-hill play, in which a run of 43 figured conspicuously, flashed to the fore and won the game. It was not such particularly good billiards, for the average of both contestants barely went beyond the requirement for the Class B tournament. Weiner, however, deserves a considerable degree of credit for his victory. At one point he was 70 counts behind his rival, and that in the forty-third inning when White needed only 29 points to run out the game.

White was the holder of the high grand average in the tournament two years ago, and a great deal was expected of him in this event. He went to the front at the very outset of last night's match, and gradually increased his lead over his opponent. In the twenty-fifth inning he counted 44, and this gave him a clear lead, the score being 136 to 170. This run brought out some pretty billiards, though it was not of a particularly close nurse variety. White carried the ivories all over the table in amassing the total. The scores:

Weiner—0 7 9 1 6 11 11 2 11 2 11 0 0 0 0 1 0 5 2 2 15 1 1 0 0 11 0 29 1 0 11 0 2 43 0 2. Total—300. High runs—43, 29, and 23.

In the afternoon game, rFancis S. Appleby defeated Fred Loewenthal without any difficulty, the final count being 300 to 119, and showed a quality of billiard play that marks him as one of the most formidable in the present tournament. He was never forced to extend himself, and the game was practically won after a half dozen innings had been played. There were several instances in which he showed a high billiard execution, and his best run of the game, 47, was an interesting exhibition of close nurse balk-line play. After ten innings Appleby had to his credit an average that was slightly over 13, and at one point before, it had gone as high as 15. Thereafter, his game gradually fell off, for he was leading his opponent by 132 to 16, and there was not the incentive to fast play. The scores:

F. S. Appleby—0 47 4 11 0 2 1 15 44 8 0 10 0 7 11 0 2 0 0 10 0 15 0 6 5 1 0 1 12 0 6 28 8 2 2 0 3 5 0 0 0 18 0 1 15. Total—300. High runs—47, 44, and 28. Average—6 30-45.

To Disqualify Late Fencers.

The Amateur Fencers' League has adopted a new rule this season which will start all fencing competitions on time and those who are not in the dressing room or on the floor then will be declared ineligible for the event. Heretofore there has been a tendency on the part of the fencers to come at any time they pleased up to 9:30 P. M., and consider that they have a right to enter competitions. The result has been that many times the bouts have run well past midnight. The chief argument against the rule has been that the judges could not be induced to come early, but it has been decided now that the events will start on the time set even though there is only one judge present. Th first actual working out of the rule came Monday night in the Hammond foils competition and one man who appeared late was not allowed to compete.

The Violet will also compete in the intercollegiates, the Middle States Intercollegiates, and the Penn relays. The complete schedule is as follows:

DONOVAN WANTS TO SIGN GOOD BATTERS

Yankees' New Manager Will Not Trade Players—To Select Training Camp.

Manager Wild Bill Donovan of the Yankees returned from Detroit yesterday with the glad tidings that Pipp and High, the two Detroit players who are coming to the Yankees, are in line, and that President Navin is willing to turn the men over at any time. Donovan had a chance to watch Pipp last year in the International League and he says that as a first baseman he ought to make a big hit in the American League.

As for Hugh High, he will come here on the recommendation of no less a player than Ty Cobb, who says that High has the makings of one of the best outfielders and hitters in the league. High was used last year by Hugh Jennings as a pinch hitter, but when he gets a steady job Cobb predicts that he will improve rapidly.

Pipp batted over .300 with Rochester last year, and Donovan thinks that he will keep up this pace when he joins the Yankees. Donovan stated yesterday that he was after hitters. "We can get millions of good fielders," he said yesterday, "but it is no easy job to get men that can hit. I want to get hold of a hard-hitting infielder, and I want to boost the batting ability of the outfield. There will be no trades because I want to keep all the players I have until I have seen them work. Some of the other clubs are anxious to make trades, but I will keep all the men we have, for the present at least."

Manager Donovan had a long conference yesterday with Col. Ruppert and Capt. Huston, the new owners of the club, and he expects to go South within a few days to pick a training camp for the club. Donovan likes Savannah, and it is very likely that the training camp will be there or in Florida. Donovan will have a free rein in choosing the camp, and the new managers have assured him that there will be no interference with his plans.

Manager Donovan had only words of praise for Roger Peckinpaugh. He stated that Joe Tinker of the Chifeds offered the Yankee shortstop a salary, which called for more than $1,500 a year more than the Yankees paid him, but he refused to jump. He told Donovan that he was perfectly satisfied with the way the Yankee Club had treated him, and at no time did he give the Federal League any encouragement. The new manager stated that he had not discussed the matter of getting Joe Berger from the Chicago White Sox. It is stated that instead of giving Berger for sale the White Sox may give the Yankees a chance to get Russell Blackburn, the $10,000 infielder. Blackburn hasn't done much during the past few seasons on account of injuries, but it is stated that he is now in good shape.

While in the Middle West Manager Donovan tried to find King Cole, the Yankee pitcher who has not yet signed a contract, but he learned that he is in California. Cole is perfectly staisfied with his contract with the Yankees and may sign at any time. Roy Hatzell, Pete Daley, and Mart McHale are the only players who have not signed with the club for next season.

President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club lost an opportunity to land a star in Des Jardien, the pitcher of the Chicago University Baseball Club. Ed Ruelbach told Mr. Ebbets about this college star last year, but he neglected to get in touch with him. Des Jardien has now signed with the Cubs, and Roger Bresnahan predicts that the college star will be heard from during his first year in the big league.

Joe McGinity, the former pitcher of the Giants, is reorganizing the Tacoma Club of the Northwestern League, and with its new financial backing he hopes that the club will be a big success next season. The first man to buy shares of stock in the new club was James J. Corbett, the former heavyweight champion. Corbett was playing in vaudeville in Tacoma when McGinity first placed the stock on the market, and when Corbett learned of it he hurried to the "Iron Man" and purchased the first block of stock.

LYNCH FOR "FED" LEADER.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 13.—Because of the visit of Alexander Bannevart, a Federal League emissary, to New Britain Tuesday night, it was rumored in that city today that Thomas J. Lynch, one time President of the National League, was being considered as head of the Federal League. This theory was strengthened by the fact that several days ago Lynch was authority for a published statement, the gist of which was that the Federals must be recognized, and until then there would be no peace or prosperity for the so-called organized baseball associations.

Bannevart and Lynch conferred for several hours last evening, but today neither of them would talk about anything akin to baseball. If Lynch is not being considered as Gilmore's successor, then, according to local gossip, the conference had to do with the reported formation by the Federals of the Farm League in New England to encroach upon and annoy the present small leagues.

In his home town especially, but in baseball circles generally, "Tom" Lynch is known as the square-deal baseball man, such as the Federals would like, and because of which he was separated from his former job as head of the National League.

Feds to Sue Pitcher Caldwell.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—The Buffalo Federal League Club will begin suit for damages against Pitcher Ray Caldwell, who decided to join the New York Americans after having, it is said, signed a Buffalo contract, but will make no effort to to force him to leave the Yankees, according to President Gilmore, who returned from Buffalo today. The Buffalo Club was reimbursed by New York the amount it had advanced to Caldwell, $2,500.

Cubs Buy a Second Baseman.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 13.—O. H. Nathan, President of the Louisville Club of the American Association, today announced that he had sold Second Baseman McLarry to the Chicago Nationals. The deal was closed here today with Manager Roger Bresnahan. McLarry came here last Spring from the Western League.

GOLF REACHES THE FINALS.

J. C. Parrish, Jr., and W. E. Shackelford Opponents at Sea View Today

Special to The New York Times.

ABSECON, N. J., Jan. 13.—J. C. Parrish, Jr., of the National Links and W. Ernest Shackelford of the home club will meet in the thirty-six-hole final match for the chief cup tomorrow in the tournament of the Sea View Golf Club. Each man survived the second and semi-final rounds today.

After disposing of Sidmon McHie of Englewood in a twenty-hole contest Parrish retired Howard W. Perrin of Pine Valley by a 2 and 1 margin in the semi-final. Shackelford defeated Dr. McCall, 2 and 1.

The heavy northeast storm which continued through the night abated this morning. In the early round it was necessary to abandon the sixth and seventh holes, but the sandy subsoil quickly dried the course, and all of the holes were put in commission for the second round. The summary:

First Sixteen—Second Round.—Dr. Floyd H. McCall, Sea View, beat H. M. Clements, Merion, 2 and 1; W. Ernest Shackelford, Sea View, beat H. A. Rhodes, Spring Haven, 6 and 5; J. C. Parrish, Jr., National Links, beat Sidmon McHie, Englewood, 1 up, (20 holes;) Howard W. Perrin, Pine Valley, beat F. W. Taylor, Philadelphia Country, 6 up and 5.

Semi-final Round.—Shackelford beat McCall, 3 and 2; Parrish beat Perrin, 2 and 1.

Second Sixteen—Second Round.—C. N. Phillips, Greenwich, beat H. Kendall Read, Sea View, 4 and 2; Thomas P. Endicott, Atlantic City, beat Henry McSweeney, Sea View, 2 and 1; Albert W. Tillinghast, Aronimink, beat J. R. Prentis, Mohawk, 7 and 5; Dr. Theodore Senseman, Sea View, beat S. Y. Ramage, Wenango, 6 and 5.

Baseball Players Take Long Walk.

The most important item in the living expenses of Ty Cobb, E. Collins, and other automobile winners is gasoline. The most important item in the living expenses of the members of the Baseball Players' Walking Club is shoe leather. Last week the members of the B. B. Players' Walking Club took a small workout in the way of a jaunt from City Hall Park to Coney Island, but yesterday they got down to business, and, starting at Sixth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, they walked to Yonkers and right back again. With the wave of economy sweeping around the baseball circuits, the players realize that they will have to be in first-class condition to hold their jobs, and have decided to take long walks every Sunday until the call for mobilization in the South is heard. The following members made the trip yesterday: Al Williams of the Giants, Jimmy Ring of the Yanks, Jimmy Eschen of the Skeeters, Tim Jordan of the Maple Leafs, Jack Burke, Al Clinch, and Bob Thompson of the Wilkes-Barre team; Paul Trentles, Joe Wall, Charlie Mamer of Trenton, William Zimmerman of Savannah, and Johnny O'Reilly, the scout of the Chicago Nationals.

Golf Pool Tourney at Doyle's.

The third game in the golf pool tournament was played last night at Doyle's Forty-second Street Academy. Arthur Joyce defeated Alec Moore by a score of 71 to 80. The game was nip and tuck up to the thirteenth hole, where Moore got bunkered and took fifteen. Joyce played a very steady game, being particularly strong in putting. In the pocket billiard tournament, D. Hand won from J. Reynolds, 75 to 52, while in the English billiard affair H. Rainsley defeated E. Moss, 250 to 242. There will be games in all the events tonight.

FAIL TO PROVE ADAMS CHARGES

Three Witnesses Present Contradictory Evidence Against Athlete and Hearing Adjourned

Testimony requiring three hours to be presented by accusers of Platt Adams at a hearing last night by the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. at the St. Bartholomew Club in an effort to prove the charge that the New York A. C. jumper is a professional by virtue of having sold some of the prizes he won as an athletic competitor. So long did the testimony take that it was necessary for the committee to postpone the hearing until Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, when Robert Stoll, who is really the crux of the entire case, will be present to give whatever information he can in the matter. Stoll was to have been present last night, but another engagement kept him away.

Thadius I. Glynn, Max Theimer, and Peter L. Schenck, who accused Adams of professional methods in selling and hypothecating his prizes, were present at the hearing and all testified. In many respects the testimony of these men hurt the case against Adams, for Jeremiah T. Mahoney and Warren C. Fielding, Jr., counsel for the accused athlete, succeeded in drawing conflicting statements from all three of the men. In the instance of Schenck, some of his assertions were so flagrantly contradictory as to cause those on his side of the case to smile.

In his testimony he denied that he was present when the affidavit he made accusing Adams of selling him a ring for $20 was presented to a newspaper reporter. Yet Glynn, who was star witness for the accusers, admitted to Counselor Mahoney that Schenck and he, in addition to Mr. Waterman of Waterman & Menges, 20 Spruce Street, by whom all the interested parties were employed, was in a downtown restaurant when the affidavits were turned over to Francis P. Albertanti of an afternoon newspaper. Schenck had also testified that he never spoke to Albertanti over the telephone regarding the story, yet Glynn asserted he did.

Each of the three witnesses admitted frankly that there were reasons why they should seek to get "even" with Adams. All had had business troubles with him. Schenck became nervous when cross-examined by Mr. Mahoney. The Olympic athlete secured a judgment against Schenck, but has never ben able to recover the debt. This testimony was brought out in Mr. Mahoney's effort to disprove the reliability of the witnesses statements.

With the exception of Glynn, the witnesses gave principally heresay testimony, and even Glynn could not state positively that the ring sold him by Adams and the watch offered him for purchase were prizes won by Adams. They all said that Adams told them they were prizes, but they could not prove they were. None of the rings offered in testimony bore inscriptions, as required by the amateur athletic rules.

Glynn informed the committee he paid perhaps twenty or thirty visits to Robert Stoll, and on two occasions he saw the athlete turn over prizes to the jeweler that were to be credited to him. At one time, Glynn said, Adams presented eight New York A. C. medals to Mr. Stoll with the statement, "These are the prizes I spoke to you about. Give me credit for them." Stoll, so Glynn averred, could not tell Adams how much credit he would receive, because he would have to melt the medals first. Yet the prizes in question were made by Stoll.

Another time, Glynn said, Adams brought two silver cups to Stoll, but these were absolutely devoid of inscription, so far as Glynn knew. Once Adams secured a gold barpin and a diamond ring, valued at $108, from Stoll, which were charged against his account, according to Glynn's version of the affair.

That there was much animus behind the charges was evident after Theimer, the first witness called, had testified. Many warm passages were exchanged by Mr. Mahoney for the defense and Charles E. Thorn, counsel for the accusers.

It was brought out in the course of Glynn's testimony that he is a nephew of Waterman, with whom Adams had much trouble, and that he at one time was manager of several prize fighters. He testified he never received compensation for his managerial duties.

From the general impression gained, Adams will have little difficulty proving his innocence of the charges. Last night he had with him a satchel full of prizes, about 150 in number.

Easy Hockey Victory for Dartmouth

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 13.—The Dartmouth hockey team scored an easy 4-to-1 victory over Princeton tonight, the clever individual work of the Hanover forwards combining for a three-point lead in the first half, and later the Green's defense withstanding practically every assault made by the Jerseymen. The teams fought for nearly ten minutes before either goal tender made a stop, but Dartmouth then broke away, Murchie, Reycroft, and Wanamaker scoring goals in short order. The Tigers' only scoring shot was made by J. Humphreys, who rushed more than half the length of the rink. Holmes of Dartmouth made this up with a similarly brilliant effort. Princeton was outskated throughout most of the match.

Yale Wins Extra-Time Hockey Game

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 13.—Yale defeated Massachusetts Institute of Technology at hockey tonight, 5 to 3, in a ten-minute overtime game. Both teams played brilliantly. The goal tender for the institute made twenty-three stops, while Yale's goal tender made twelve.

Peter Volo's Future.

It is now the plan of W. E. D. Stokes, owner of Peter Volo, the champion trotting stallion of 1914, with his record of 2:03¼ as a three-year-old, to train his colt next season with the intention of giving him the stallion record of the world, now held by The Harvester, 2:01. His owner, his driver—Thomas W. Murphy—and most horsemen who saw this wonderful young horse perform last season believe this to be well within his capacity. In the Spring Peter Volo will be mated to a few mares of approved breeding, besides a few choice matrons from Mr. Stokes's string. How highly his owner rates him as a possible sire of speed is evidenced by the fact that the service fee for this young horse has been fixed at $500. Whether Peter Volo will make his season at the Poughkeepsie track, where he now is, or will be taken to the Patchen Wilkes farm of his owner in Kentucky, has not yet been fully decided, though the chances are that he will stand at Poughkeepsie and that he will receive his preliminary training, at least, at the Hudson River Driving Park at that place.

HORSE SHOW AT DURLAND'S

B. F. S. Gregory's Moonshine Captures Two Blue Ribbons.

Moonshine, B. F. S. Gregory's chestnut mare, took two blue ribbons in the Horse Show at Durland's Riding Academy last night. With Mrs. John Gerkin judging the harness and saddle classes, and with the largest number of entries in several months, four classes were judged after the music ride. Moonshine teamed with Lady Friar, both chestnut mares, owned by B. F. S. Gregory, took the blue in the class for the best pair of harness horses, 15.2 and over, shown to an appropriate vehicle; Gray Bird and Flash Light, owned by M. Emil Seelig, received the red ribbon. The judge spent considerable time in declaring Monarch, owned by A. Preece, the winner in the class for saddle horses, 15.2 and over. Gold Plate, owned by L. F. Skolny, with Miss Alfred riding, took the red ribbon; and the yellow went to Resolute.

Moonshine took his second blue ribbon in the class for best single harness horse of any height shown to an appropriate vehicle. Duchess, another mare owned by Mr. Gregory took the yellow in this event. Jonnie, H. Rose's bay gelding, gave the best exhibition of jumping that has been seen at the academy in some time. The competition was over four-foot jumps, and Jonnie took the blue, with the red going to Dogfish, owned by A. Preece.

Commander Charles T. Jrause was in charge of the music ride which preceded the horse show, and about fifty took part. Among those who were in the ride were Mr. and Mrs. John Gerken, Miss Peck, Mrs. Rose, Miss Burns, Mr. Demone, Miss Rutter, Mr. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. P. Duffy, Miss First, Miss Burnett, Mrs. J. Reynolds, Miss Reed, Mr. Sable, Miss Cobb, Miss F. Krause, and Mr. Hautchle.

The Riding and Driving Club polo team of Brooklyn and the eCntral Park Riding Academy's team played a 4 to 4 game of polo at the Central Park Riding Academy last night. The Central Park team led at the end of the first period 3 to 1, but the Brooklyn team rallied in the second period and tied the score. Commander Otis W. Coleman was in charge of the music ride and the leaders were Murray Wilder, Miss J. Strause, W. Gilman and Miss E. Lansdowne. About fifty followed the commander through the intricate figures of the ride.

A comical number called the "First Lesson" caused much laughter. Jack Breen, dressed as a lady and David Rintoul acting as riding instructor presented the act, showing a young lady taking her first lesson in riding. ext week, a silver loving cup will be given to the twnner of the jumping contest to be held at the academy.

FRENCH SKATER LOSES.

Scratch skaters fared badly last night in the two races which made up the programme at the weekly ice-skating races of the St. Nicholas Skating Rink, West Sixty-sixth Street. The most important race was the one mile Class A handicap event in which fifteen skaters faced the gun, among them being J. Bjork, who is said to be the champion ice-skater of France. Don M. Baker, carrying the colors of the Bedford Young Men's Christian Association, was the honor man in this race, and conceded handicaps ranging up to one hundred yards. He skated in excellent form throughout the race, up to the three-quarter mile mark, when, in trying to skate past the leaders, he fell and lost so much ground that it was impossible to regain a place among the first three skaters to cross the finish line.

Irving Reiner, unattached, who started with an allowance of 85 yards, was the first man to cross the finish line. He covered the distance in 3:02 2-5, while the French champion, with 50 yards handicap, finished second. W. H. Hart, starting with 100 yards, was third. William Taylor of the Empire City Wheelmen, who was allotted 25 yards, tumbled to the floor of the rink and was forced out of the race when he was well up with the leaders.

J. Gerlin, unattached, with an allowance of 100 yards, won first honors in the three-quarter mile handicap race for skaters of Class B ability. In this event A. Gershel of Berkeley School started from scratch, but owing to the fact that the field was well spread out, and continually hugged the pole, at times, was unable to pass the handicap men, and finished in third position. Stanley Gershel, also of Berkeley School who last year was recognized as the 50-pound midget champion, was second. He started with 25 yards. Gerlin covered the distance in 2:20 4-5.

Hockey Teams in a Tie.

The hockey teams of Berkeley and Irving Schools contested a 0 to 0 tie in a close but loosely played game yesterday morning. Neither seven showed any remarkable team work and both sides were slow to follow the puck when they had chances of scoring, so that the result can be accounted for by the poor form displayed by the participants.

PRINCETON BEATS COLUMBIA 'FIVE'

Tigers Spring Basket Ball Surprise by Winning in Second Period, 29 to 27.

Princeton sprang a surprise on the Columbia basket ball five last night by defeating the Blue and White aggregation on its own court by the narrow margin of 29 to 27. The Tigers won the game in the last half, when they overcame a lead of five points and led the fast Columbia lads a merry pace through a rousing finish that was nerve-racking in its excitement. The home team had just taken a brace and caught its second wind when the whistle blew, and lef tthe chances of Columbia winning the intercollegiate championship seriously in doubt.

It took but a few minutes of play in the opening half to convince the Columbia players and rooters that the home five had a bigger task before it than it had counted upon. McTigue, the Princeton centre, and Trenkman, one of the guards, showed spectacular basket ball all the way, and at times left the Columbia players in a maze as they passed all about them. McTigue won the game for the visitors in the second half by his agility in caging several of the ties at a goal from foul which were missed by Paulson, another of the stars among the visitors. Calder was at his best for Columbia, but Benson lost his eye for the basket in the second half, when he missed five tries at goals from fouls, any three of which would have won the game.

Princeton started off with a rush in the first half, and had run up a score of 8 to 3 before the home team found itself, and Calder scored the first goal from field. Then Columbia braced and when the half closed 18 to 13 in favor of Columbia the New Yorkers breathed easily.

The awakening came in the second half, when he Tigers broke loose, and before Columbia realized what had happened McTigue had caged two baskets, Paulson made one, and three fouls goals. It was not until the closing minutes of the half that Columbia came anywhere near hitting its usual stride, but it was then too late. Just as the timekeeper started to blow his whistle Princeton fouled. Princeton than conceded a goal from foul to Columbia. The line-up:

Columbia.	Positions.	Princeton.
Kornsand	Right forward	Paulson
Calder	Centre	McTigue
Benson	Right guard	Gill

Goals from Field—McTigue, (5,) E. Trenkmann, (2,) Haas, Paulson, Calder, (3,) Lee, (2,) Benson, (2,) Burghard. Goals from Fouls—Princeton: Paulson, 11 outof 18. Columbia: Benson, 10 out of 18; Calder, 1 out of 2. Substitutes—Princeton: Payne for Gill, Gill for Paulson, Rayhill for E. Trenkmann. Columbia: Burghard for Calder. Referee—A. S. Melick, Trenton Y. M. C. A. Umpire—E. Thorpe, De La Salle. Time of Halves—Twenty minutes each.

Manhattan Wins from Brooklyn.

Manhattan College's basket ball team had an easy time winning from the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute's quintet at the De La Salle Institute gym. last night by the score of 30 to 10. The Manhattan team led at the end of the first half by the score of 12 to 3, and at no time were they in danger of defeat. Houlihan played the best game for Manhattan, scoring 18 points for his team. The line-up:

Manhattan.	Position.	Brooklyn.
Houlihan	Right forward	Kavanaugh
Farrell	Centre	Steward
Faraci	Right guard	Weiser

Substitution—Young for Miller. Field goals—Houlihan, (7,) Downing, (3,) Farrell, (2,) Ward, Anderson, Kavanaugh, Steward. Goals from fouls—Houlihan, (4,) Steward, (4.) Referee—Mr. Burchell, St. John's. Time of periods—Twenty minutes.

On the Basket Ball Courts.

In a closely contested game yesterday afternoon the Brooklyn College quintet defeated the Cooper Union representatives by the close score of 28 to 26. Both teams played in excellent form throughout, and up to the time the final whistle was blown the winning line-up was in doubt. McCabe did excellent work for Brooklyn College, scoring nine goals from the field.

The Kingsley School basket ball team opened its season yesterday afternoon with a one-sided victory over the Stevens freshman quintet in a fast and interesting game on the former's court at Essex Fells, N. J., by the score of 37 to 12. The Stevens team showed well at passing, but they could not effectively penetrate the excellent guard displayed by the Kingsley team.

YOU would never believe there was so much leg-freedom and comfort in a pair of garters. Why, just the absence of heavy pads is enough to win men's favor. But we did away with metal clasps that rust and corrode and tear the sock. And we constructed Ivory Garters so they don't bind the leg—in fact, they don't do anything but just wear well and act friendly.

ROWING AT FORDHAM.

Candidates for Proposed Crew Will Report Today for Work.

The first actual step since it was decided to adopt rowing at Fordham took place yesterday, when the undergraduates, who have led in the fight for the new sport, held a special meeting and elected "Jim" MacCormack acting manager. MacCormack, who is a senior in the Arts course, comes from Hartford, Conn., and has been an active enthusiast in fostering rowing. He is also in constant touch with J. J. F. Mulcahy, the President of the Atlanta Boat Club, who influenced the alumni to sanction rowing at Fordham.

MacCormack at once issued a call for all candidates to report at the Maroon "gym" today for a preliminary workout. Acting under instructions from John Mulcahy, who is to act as coach, the new acting manager invited the Bronx collegians who weigh 160 pounds or over. It is expected that most of the material will come from the Law School. Today's drill will consist of a little track and limbering up work.

The actual work will begin next week in the new quarters that are now being arranged for in the "gym." At least four rowing machines will be installed to get things started, while cross-country running will be a big factor, according to Mr. Mulcahy. As soon as the weather permits the quarters will be shifted to the boathouse of the Atlanta Club on the Harlem River. Manager MacCormack will be in charge of today's practice, but after next week the candidates will be under Mr. Mulcahy.

Horseman Nuckols to Get Hearing

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 13.—Vance Nuckols, the Cleveland horseman, who was recently expelled by the National Trotting Association, today received notice from W. H. Groucher, Secretary of the association, that President C. P. Johnson had suspended the decision of the Board of Review, and that Nuckols's case would be heard at the Spring meeting of the association. Nuckols was suspended for breach of the rules in refusing to turn his horse over to another driver.

OUTLOOK FOR THE SUBWAYS.

The annual report of the Public Service Commission states that sixty-four of the eighty-three sections of the dual subway are under contract, the total cost of these sections being $142,000,000. The earliest completion to the stage of operation is to be expected in the Steinway or Forty-second Street tunnel; this will be finished next Spring. The next sections to accommodate riders will be the new elevated roads, and the new third tracks on the old elevated roads in 1916. The new subways will not come to the relief of the old subway and its patrons until the end of the year 1917, or more probably, if experience of hopes deferred are any sign, 1918. The most advanced is the Fourth Avenue subway, Brooklyn, which runs from Coney Island to the City Hall, Manhattan, across the Manhattan Bridge. The Commission even thinks it possible that 5-cent rides to the surf may be had next Summer. The subways whose completion will come last are the Lexington Avenue, Seventh Avenue, and Broadway lines in Manhattan, and the Eastern Parkway line in Brooklyn.

During last year contracts were awarded to a total of $52,000,000, or more than double the total for 1913. The cost of the Commission has been for the year $3,000,000, five-sixths of which sum is capitalized as part of the cost of the subway and is not charged against the taxpayers. These are large figures, the largest ever known for any city, and larger proportionately than the cost of the Panama Canal to the nation. The work also is more difficult, the canal being a work of size chiefly, while the subway construction involves all sorts of difficulties, legal, social, technical, financial, and other. The names of Mr. McAneny and Mr. Willcox are not appended to this report, but they never should be forgotten in any broad view of the work.

It is narrow to confine consideration to the $350,000,000 cost. That is only the beginning. The cost of construction is intimately related to the city's solvency, through the relation to the tax valuations, and the income from them. The city as it exists today would be an impossibility without the link of subway now running. The Greater New York of the future would also be impossible without this multiplication of the present subway, carrying the facilities of hundreds of miles of the world's costliest railway construction through realty with $8,000,000,000 of tax values, now or soon to be worth more than that. This fan-shaped and all-inclusive system affects directly the value of every building or building lot within walking distance of its radial lines. Those values affect the relative values of every other piece of property on which the city can hope for income. The completion will be a datum from which everything connected with the city may be calculated. The worth of its credit, the values of the property it can tax, the mode of living of its inhabitants, the profits of its merchants who pay rents, and all that goes to make a city great are affected by the progress reported by the Commission and the redemption of its promises.

It is at this point that it is necessary to strike a note of caution. The Commission's promises are not at par, for reasons both connected and not connected with itself. The Commission may let contracts, but the labor unions say whether the contracts shall be fulfilled. There are millions of dollars in contracts and miles of work now suspended by labor litigation. The greatest single relief to unemployment would be the granting of a petition by the litigating union that its suit be not pressed. There are sections which have been completed for months and on which interest charges are running to a total which would embarrass or bankrupt any private concern, on which it is not even promised that wheels will turn for many months. There are sections on which contracts have not been let, although the construction will be long and costly, and there can be no trains run around such unfinished links. The Commission no doubt is doing its best, but praise will not be unlimited until the cars run.

The taxpayers and the straphangers cannot forget that but for political interference the entire system would now be completely operative. Obstruction to this improvement through vicious laws has cheated the city of ten years' growth and the citizens of an equal period of easier riding and cheaper access to better homes.

CHALMETTE BATTLEFIELD.

The enthusiasm naturally aroused in Louisiana by the celebration of the centenary of the battle of New Orleans has led to the revival of interest there in an often-published plan to establish an important military station at New Orleans. The navy yard has lately been reopened, and it seems right that it should be kept open and a naval station permanently established at that point on the Gulf. But there is good reason for decreasing the number of army stations now existent, and it is doubtful if a new one is at present needed at New Orleans. There are many points admirably suited for military bases, but it does not necessarily follow that our small army, which will still be small when the changes now contemplated have been made, should be spread out so much in an era of easy communications.

New Orleans would probably be a more fitting place for barracks than many now retained for that purpose because of the influence of politics on army policies. But in view of the many problems of national defense which must be solved quickly, it will be well if the New Orleans people will content themselves for the present by carrying out their excellent plan of converting the Chalmette battlefield into an agreeable park, marked with appropriate monuments, to be preserved as one of the attractions of the city.

UNRAVELING THE WORLD'S MARKETS.

Two nations wishing to buy in the United States, or to pay bills for goods already bought, managed the business yesterday in different manners. China sent gold here. Russia arranged with bankers to pay its bills to the total of a loan placed with them. Both side-tracked London, and made a short route through New York. Both operations are direct, not triangular, with London taking toll going and coming. London's profits on these matters rest here.

The international moratorium has worked in the same manner that the use of Clearing House certificates worked in our domestic exchanges. The suspension of the use of gold, or gold equivalents, put New York out of domestic business as London is now put out of world business. When New York could not receive cash it could not pay cash, and exchanges through New York stopped. That now is the position not only of London but of every financial centre in the world except New York. The fiction of gold payments is maintained generally, even where there are criminal penalties against the export of gold. Here payments in gold are undoubted. We pay gold, and gold must be paid to us, or the business cannot be done, unless something is substituted equally good, in our opinion.

It is this which makes the Russian operation more interesting than the Chinese. There is little hope of growth of trade by the use of gold. It is only by the use of paper accepted as equal to gold that the world's markets can be unraveled. The bankers have weighed Russia's credit, they have taken its paper, and will enable Russia to supply itself with goods in this market more cheaply than it could in the manner of China, by paying gold. That is the first step in the valuation of the payments the world sooner or later will make to us in our own paper. The bankers did not take Russia's paper to keep. Bankers are distributers, not hoarders. In their own time they will offer Russia's paper for sale in competition with American paper, that is, securities representing promises to pay either dividends or interest. Russia's promise will be compared with the American promise, like with like, and the difference between them will be expressed in the prices relatively asked and taken. That final step will be the unlocking of the world's credits and the substitution of free markets and real prices for limited markets and nominal values. The bankers will make the first valuations, and they will be corrected by the valuations of the private investors, who will or who will not take what the bankers offer.

The only sure values in the world today are those for spot delivery, either for gold or for goods, and especially for the goods necessary for existence. The rising prices signify the premium upon spot deliveries. The world's markets cannot be unraveled until all the credits of the world are revalued, and in that New York will play a larger share than ever before. As the only gold payer and receiver, it is for New York to place its valuation on all that the world wishes to buy here or to sell here. Liberality in estimating the promises of others is the same thing as liberality in estimating the worth of what is taken instead of gold, and that largely will be American paper. Strictness in estimating American promises affects the prices of whatever we sell. Americans must broaden their views as never before, and have an idea about foreign politics and campaigns, unless they are to be at a disadvantage in estimating the bargains which are to be offered them.

HOW THEY VOTED ON SUFFRAGE.

The surprising thing about the vote on the woman suffrage amendment in the House on Tuesday was that outside of the South only one State voted solidly against it. That was the uncompromising and rockbound State of Vermont. If Delaware is considered a Northern State there were two—two of the smallest Northern States. Aside from that the solid delegations against woman suffrage were those from Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Texas, the two Carolinas, Louisiana, Kentucky, and Florida.

The States where woman suffrage has already been granted voted, of course, almost solidly for the amendment. It is, however, a refreshing example of courage in public life that one man in Colorado dared to defy his woman constituents by voting against the amendment, and Mr. Bryan's urgency did not convince one of the members of the Nebraska delegation that he should vote to supersede the rights of the States in the matter of suffrage.

Yet suffrage has made some headway in the South. Eight members of the Alabama delegation voted against it, but one voted for it. Of the nine members of the Tennessee delegation, four voted for suffrage and five against. West Virginia went for suffrage by a vote of four to one; Oklahoma by five to three. Even in Virginia and Maryland, centres of conservatism, there were votes for suffrage; only one in each State, but twenty years ago neither one of those States would have elected a Congressman who could have voted for such an innovation.

It is not surprising that California, Kansas, Montana, and the rest of the suffrage States voted unanimously for woman suffrage. The men from those States have woman voters to reckon with when they go back home. It is, however, astonishing that, out of Illinois's twenty-four votes, two were cast against the amendment. In Illinois the women vote for Congressmen. There must be a rare degree of courage in two Illinois districts.

The woman suffrage amendment will come up in New York this year if the Legislature so decrees, as it probably will. Therefore it is of interest to note that nine votes from New York were cast for the amendment and nineteen against it; that in New Jersey, where the question will also come up, seven votes were cast for it and four against it; and that in Pennsylvania twenty were cast for it and eight against it.

The suffragists have the satisfaction of seeing that the block of Western States which has adopted suffrage is standing pat. That block extends from the Pacific to Kansas, the interstices having been filled up at the last election by the conquest of Montana and Nevada, and that whole vast section of the Union threw its vote at the behest of the women voters for the revolutionary proposal to take from the States the right to decide on the qualification of voters.

A SHIPPER'S VIEWS ON GOVERNMENT SHIPPING.

At the annual dinner of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce the President of the Steel Trust, and one of the country's largest exporters, made some remarks which recall what is being said at Washington about a Government merchant marine—by being so different. As a representative of the best sort of business, and as a leader into foreign markets, he wanted none of the things pressed upon business by politicians. There is need of neutral shipping to carry American cargoes, but it ought not and cannot be got by the passage of new laws. What is needed is the repeal of an old law which has blocked the way for a half century, and which has hindered even American-owned ships from sailing under the American flag. "An early revising of our present navigation laws is imperative if we are to be successful in the establishment of an American merchant marine of sufficient tonnage to cope with our necessities." Co-operation also is necessary, for foreign business is best done on a considerable scale, and Mr. Farrell thought that those advantages could best be secured by uniting the interests of those who could do better together than separately.

If the Government's prosecution of the Steel Corporation is successful Mr. Farrell's combination in restraint of trade must dissolve, and give up its ideas about showing the flag on the seas. It may be that Mr. Farrell will have harder work to keep out of jail than he has found it to keep out of Congress. There are forty-nine Legislatures, but not one of them is representative of these ideas. There are almost as many Commissions, all fancying that all there is to regulation is the reduction of rates. Business and politics are running on a line where the signals are set against business, and with the political engineer fancying he has a clear right of way. The sort of policy necessary for salvation now is the sort which thinks of business first, and lets politics care for itself.

WHAT MR. WHITMAN'S FIGURES MEAN.

Figures about taxation are barren idealities to most people. To make them concrete it is necessary to translate them into actual practical facts. What is the meaning of the Governor's figures about the enormous increase of taxes in both city and State to the largest single interest in both of them, that is to real estate? Land is the best of all securities. As such its income is smaller than on most other kinds of property. There are many cases in which large sums are made—or lost—by real estate speculators, and there are cases in which exceptional returns are made on "equities." A few thousand dollars may hold a title, and the use of money borrowed on the terms usually commanded by real estate may show profits on the difference between the rate paid on the borrowings and the earnings of the property. But there is peril in such exceptional profits, as the record of the closing year shows in connection with Mr. Whitman's figures of the burden of taxation. If 6 per cent. be taken as fair income upon the average loan, 4 per cent. is all that can be expected upon conservative real estate investments. Anything off the tax is an addition to income, and an increase of value to the owner. Anything added to the tax is off the income of the owner, and a depressing influence to the property.

There are many who own no property and who think that they are not concerned in the taxgatherer's taking half the income from the proprietor. They may even think that they are benefited by the discouragement of the enterprise of those whose buildings they occupy and to whom they must pay rent. They could not make a greater mistake. Rents will rise if the enterprise of the builders is discouraged by the absorption of too great a share of their profits. Landlord and tenant suffer together when taxes are burdensome. Nothing is more sure than that taxes and rents are so interrelated that the supply decreases when the profit is reduced excessively by taxation or otherwise.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Solution For an Old Problem.

Tuesday night's fiercely driving rainstorm emphasized as it has been not often before the failure of New York's amusement purveyors and police to solve a problem with which they have been struggling for more years than anybody can remember. It is that of getting the "carriage folk" promptly, safely, and comfortably to their respective conveyances at the close of operatic and theatrical performances.

Many schemes for effecting this seemingly simple task have been tried, but none of them has worked with anything like a close approach to the satisfactory, and still the crowding, the confusion, and the really serious risks to health, especially for women, remain about what they always have been. In pleasant weather nobody minds very much or suffers more than a mild trial of patience, but on such a night as Tuesday all the ills mentioned are aggravated and the result is unpleasantly and dangerously like a riot.

The difficulty to be overcome is that of getting the right people to the right carriages as the latter come to the head of the waiting line, for each group now has to force a way through a waiting crowd of people, all equally eager to get away and pressing to the front of the lobby. None of the signals, audible or visible, that have yet been devised met all requirements, and a new suggestion might be tested.

Would it not be feasible to give each carriage, as now, a number when it reaches the theatre, and when it returns and falls into line to await the performance's close, to have an attendant take at intervals the order in which they stand and display the numbers in like sequence at some place within where they would be in plain sight of all interested? This interior exhibition could take the shape of large cards or blocks, hung on a movable, endless band, those in front being taken off as the carriages they designate are filled and depart and others added at the other end as carriages arriving later enter the line.

This would enable each waiting person to see when it was necessary to approach the door, and to keep back till that time came. Thus would all or much of the confusion and exposure be avoided, or at any rate there seems to be a chance that it would be.

Restful Reading for Doctors.

To the almost innumerable periodicals already published for the benefit of doctors and surgeons there has just been added another of an entirely new kind. Its name, The Medical Pickwick, is fairly indicative—at least to anybody who reads the "foreword" in the first number and runs over its abundant and varied contents—of the new journal's nature and object.

It will not, as do all its rivals in this domain of professional journalism, endeavor to keep its subscribers informed as to the latest advances in their science or art, but instead it will deal with the amusing, the picturesque, the historic, and the literary sides and phases of medicine and its practice.

The Medical Pickwick was born at Saranac Lake and its editor lives there—with more than an occasional sign of regret, presumably, for the joys and excitements and beneficent activities of New York, from which, for the present, he has been exiled. He is still in evident need of experience as a proofreader, but he has collected a lot of interesting matter, more or less closely, but not too closely, connected with medicine. Whether the supply of such material will hold out—whether his novel paper will find or make a place for itself—remains to be seen. Anyhow, it is cheerful and therefore promising—even though it does make, without any justification, or even any excuse, a jeering reference to "twilight sleep."

Important Facts Elicited.

If, as asserted by the Interborough lawyers, Coroner Riordan confused civil and criminal responsibilities when he so charged his jury that it put the blame for the Ninth Avenue accident on the corporation's officials and Board of Directors, then the episode illustrates again the accuracy of recent findings as to the intelligence and efficiency to be expected from Coroners as a class. But, whatever mistake this particular Coroner may have made, he did bring out testimony that made a strong prima facie case against a system of operation which let a seriously disabled train retain its place in such a service as that of the elevated road—a service in which the safety of many thousands constantly depends on having everything as nearly in perfect order as can be attained.

Obviously, even to those of us who are not experts in railroad management, it is not judicious—it is, if not inviting accident, at least making it too easily possible—to have the motorman of a train in the fourth car from the front and running it with no better signals than he can get from a conductor standing between the first and second cars.

That is a state of affairs which could have been and should have been remedied in one way or another at the first station reached after its establishment was necessitated by the breaking down of the forward motors. It was not remedied, though known to at least one employé of higher rank than that of motorman or conductor—by an employé who had authority to take any needed action. And the collision that soon occurred certainly showed that this way of running trains is a bad one and that action really was needed.

There is no easily imaginable reason why, if it was not deemed essential to empty the disabled train of its passengers, a station attendant could not have taken the conductor's place at the car gates and allowed that more skillful person to go to the front of the first car, where somebody unquestionably should always be.

To Learn Before He Farms.

Like more than a few other statesmen who have had to lengthen their titles with a prefix, ex-Gov. Haines of Maine has promptly followed his retirement from office with the announcement of his intention to be a farmer. In the adoption by him, however, of this familiar plan, there is an element of the novel, for he has as promptly registered himself as a student purposing to take the agricultural course at the State University.

This is an admission by the ex-Governor that he doesn't know much about farming and a proclamation that he wants to learn that gentle art otherwise than by the cruel and costly experiences that lie in wait for the uninstructed amateur. His modesty is worthy of wide imitation, for he who undertakes to farm by the light of unassisted nature is in for troubles only a little less serious and numerous than he who seeks instruction from the old farmers who consider the ways of their fathers good enough and have only bitter scorn for the farming taught in schools and books.

BARTHOLDT AND VOLLMER.

In What Capacity Do They Confer with an Ambassador on Legislation?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

According to a Washington dispatch a conference was held today at the German Embassy by Count von Bernstorff and Representatives Bartholdt and Vollmer. The conclusion reached was: "It was admitted at the embassy that the United States, as a neutral nation, was acting strictly within its rights under international law in exporting arms. If the United States strongly desires European peace, it is pointed out, its most consistent step would be to prevent the shipment of arms to any of the belligerent nations."

The brand of European peace which the United States is expected to "strongly desire" is that pax Germanicum now largely prevailing in Belgium, in the interest of which Herr Bartholdt, accompanied by Herr Vollmer, made a stumping tour of this country under the auspices of the National German-American Alliance.

It would be interesting to know who defrayed the cost of that campaign, including traveling expenses, the hiring of halls, brass bands, &c. But what is even more interesting to determine is the capacity in which Messrs. Bartholdt and Vollmer are conferring with Count von Bernstorff. Has Mr. Bryan been consulted with reference to these members of Congress substituting themselves for him in diplomatic negotiations with the German Ambassador concerning matters pertaining to our neutrality? Or do they go to the embassy as liegemen of the Kaiser to take orders from the Kaiser's envoy?

"Moral" of the Subway Accident.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The opinions of the London electric railway experts as to the improbability of the occurrence on their systems of an accident like the one we have lately observed in our city are interesting, but, at the same time, in a sense amusing, for it is obvious that if the disaster had happened in the London tube our local Subway authorities would, no doubt, have issued a similar pronunciamento. They could point to the safety appliances already installed; they would show that, in case of a short circuit, the circuit-breakers would automatically cut off the power, thus preventing any extensive fire: that in case the lighting system were thus interrupted the auxiliary batteries would supply the necessary illumination, so that the passengers could alight and make their way quietly and in good order to the nearest station, &c.

But when, in the fullness of time, it was ordained that this accident should take place, we noted that the circuit-breakers, for some reason, failed to exercise their functions; that the storage batteries promptly went out of business; that the smoke and darkness filled the Subway, bringing in their train panic, suffocation, trampling, and all manner of discomfort, as could quite completely have been foreseen.

MORAL: The value of safety appliances depends on their being always and everlastingly in good order. This requires careful and continuous inspection, which is costly, and hence likely to be neglected. The only thoroughly satisfactory test of such a system is a good-sized accident, which will generally demonstrate—what we have seen.

Author of "The Rosary."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I correct a statement in your issue of recent date to the effect that the author of "The Rosary" has just died in London. "The Rosary" was written by an American poet, Robert Cameron Rogers, who lived in Buffalo, and died at Santa Barbara, Cal., in 1912. Mr. Rogers's work is published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

A Mother of Three Children.

To support three little children is a difficult task for a woman whose only resource is her position as a janitress. Mrs. F. found it so, though in return for her services she received free rent and $8 a month. She could not make this meet all expenses, and the children became under-nourished and poorly clad while she herself was worn out with anxiety. Then a kindly neighbor told the Charity Organization Society about her, and the society undertook to provide a regular weekly allowance. The children now are strong and healthy and the mother is no longer distracted. She is a quiet, pleasant woman who keeps her home clean and neat. The society has interested a "friendly visitor," who has established helpful personal relations and who takes a great interest in the children. The allowance needed for Mrs. F. is not large, only $150 a year, but without it, notwithstanding her desire to be independent, she is not able to give the children the care they need. The funds previously contributed are now exhausted and the society asks for help for the coming year. Contributions may be sent to the office of the society at 105 East Twenty-second Street and will be used solely for material needs, all expenses of service being met from other funds.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES for other families: Mrs. Eleanor F. Burditt, $5; "D. P. D.," $1; "L. R. C.," $10.

MORE PRESS VIEWS ON WILSON'S SPEECH

"OLD HICKORY" WILSON

The Mobile Register Thinks Jackson Would Have Approved Its Tone—Very Many Dissentients.

From The Charleston Evening Post.

The speech was wholly a political address. It was delivered with the object of marshaling the achievements and interpreting the purposes of the Administration so as to produce the most favorable effect on the popular mind. Its merit must be measured by results. If the President's speech strengthened the hand of the Administration it was a good speech; if it made an unfavorable impression it was a poor speech. As an academic proposition the address hardly needs to be considered. It was not nor was it intended to be an academic proposition.

The Party Still on Trial.

From The Toledo Blade.

The President is absolutely right when he says: "The Democratic Party is still on trial." That was horse sense. It was no more debatable than the morning announcement of the alarm clock. The Democratic Party still has to prove that its fiscal policy is not synonymous with industrial depression, unemployment, and soup kitchens. It still has to prove that spending many millions of dollars more than Uncle Sam has in his box is the same thing as economy. It still has to show the country that in framing the biggest "pork barrel" ever written it had the country's welfare in mind. The creation of hundreds of new Government jobs, the establishment of a "war tax" in time of peace, the adoption of an old-maid policy toward the navy, the negligence of the national defenses, the raid on conservation laws, the waste of time and money in preparing and passing an anti-trust law and the emasculation of that law by the insertion of nullifying phrases—all these must undergo the trial of public opinion. The President has been charged with substituting rhetoric for statesmanship. Yet to say that "the Democratic Party is still on trial" was not at all rhetorical. It was plain, every-day, conspicuous truth.

"Old Hickory" Wilson.

From The Mobile Register.

While things were going his way and the difficulties in the party were being ironed out with little or no friction and the obstacles offered by the Republicans were being overcome, the man of brain was perhaps the very man needed for the job. A new situation has arisen and with it a new side of the President comes boldly into relief. It was in the Jackson spirit, toned down to the temper of the times. If Old Hickory had heard it he would have approved of it, by the Eternal, Sir.

Not a Widespread Chuckle.

From The Omaha Bee.

President Wilson took occasion personally to expound "watchful waiting," at the same time paying his respects to those who have not agreed with him in his policy. "Woodrow sat back and chuckled," said the President, in the exuberance of his satisfaction with his work, "knowing that he laughs best who laughs last." This with reference to the criticism of his course. His defense of that course can only mean one thing, and that is the indefinite continuance of the deplorable conditions that prevail in Mexico. It seems too late now for the United States to be of any real service in Mexico short of intervention, so we can only join the President in "watchful waiting," but the chuckling over the situation will hardly spread far from the Executive office.

Inconsistent.

From Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal and Tribune.

He declares that so long as he is President, and so far as his influence goes, nobody shall interfere in Mexico. As non-interference is understood, it would mean for this country to remain hands off and let the Mexicans fight it out among themselves. It seems that to inject the quality of consistency in what he said, in connection with what he has done, it will be necessary to reconcile what seems irreconcilable.

"Played Politics" in Speech.

From The St. Louis Times.

There was a time in the history of President Wilson's speechmaking when the country looked upon his addresses as the fruits of careful and unprejudiced deliberation, and when we all were forced to place a certain amount of faith in everything he said. His address at the Jackson Day celebration at Indianapolis somewhat dissipates this confidence, and throughout there is a distinct tendency to get back to that form of speech better known as political harangue. The Jackson Day speech is filled to overflowing with politics of the hide-bound sort, which takes form in the denunciation of everything not in line with Mr. Wilson's ideas.

The Note of Partisanship.

From The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The Indianapolis speech will not add to his reputation either as an orator or a statesman. Its note was frankly one of partisanship. He passed judgment on his Administration and pronounced it a success.

Shows Irritation and Impatience.

From The Providence Journal.

It is no argument to say, as the President does say, of the critics of the Administration: "Some of them are misguided, some of them are blind, most of them are ignorant." He "would rather pray for them than abuse them," he tells us. Why doesn't he, then?

The whole speech gives the impression of executive irritation and impatience. Mr. Wilson has lately been pictured as impervious to criticism, but this Indianapolis utterance is an indication quite to the contrary. One cannot help wondering how it looks to him in cold type.

Makes Friends Grieve.

From The Hartford Courant.

It becomes clearer from day to day that the speech recently made at Indianapolis by President Wilson is one which makes his most judicious friends grieve and vainly wish it had not been spoken. Unfortunately for President Wilson, he seems to have near him and in his confidence no sagacious and competent adviser in such matters, or, what is probably the case, he is so convinced of his own self-sufficiency, if not infallibility, as to be incapable of seeking or receiving counsel. Even Mr. Bryan might have given him useful warnings.

Not Square with His Record.

From The Salt Lake Herald-Republican.

President Wilson's remarks at Indianapolis that the people of Mexico are entitled to liberty "no matter how long they take in determining it," and that, "so far as my influence goes, while I am President, nobody shall interfere with them," is a beautiful sentiment that scarcely squares with his Mexican record. The country cannot forget that he did interfere; that seventeen "clear-eyed American boys" were killed in the process, and that he later withdrew from Mexico without helping anybody to liberty or anything else, and without accomplishing the ostensible purpose of the expedition.

GEBHARD ESTATE INCOME.

Accounting Shows Mrs. R. C. Vanderbilt and Daughter Legatees.

The accounting of the trust estate of William H. Gebhard, granduncle of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by the Trustees, John M. Bowers, Frederick J. Middlebrook, and Conrad H. Bachem, and shows a cash balance on hand of $13,113 after payments of legacies, administration expenses, &c., from the income of a total fund of $619,943.

The principal legatees are Mrs. Cora Gebhard of Paris, widow, and Miss Eva Buckingham Gebhard of Paris, daughter. Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Kathleen Gebhard Vanderbilt, enjoy an income under the trust provisions, as do the Countess Marguerite Isabelle Gardes and the Baroness Henriette Elizabeth de Sibert of Paris, nieces, and Mrs. Mary I. Hunnewell of Wellesley, Mass., a niece, and her son, Hollis H. Hunnewell.

There is no statement of the total payments to each of the legatees since the beginning of the accounting—which dates from July 14, 1906, to June 22, 1914—other than that Mrs. Gebhard, the widow, and her daughter, Miss Eva, both living in Paris, where Mr. Gebhard died on May 24, 1905, have received payments of $1,250 at a time. Mrs. Gebhard and her daughter have received accountings of the affairs of the estate on June 1 of each year, and have approved them, according to the statement in the accounting.

There is a statement that the total collections of income during the period of the accounting were $375,645. Most of this was paid to the widow and daughter. No mention is made of the late Frederick Gebhard, nephew of the decedent and well known to New York society. The Trustees say that on July 14, 1906, they had cash on hand amounting to $13,815 and securities of a total value of $538,030, and that the principal of the estate has increased under their care $79,211. The administration expenses for the period are put at $25,588.

Are There Two Herman Ridders?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am editing the diaries and correspondence of the late Secretary of State, John Hay. In his journal, under the date of Jan. 6, 1904, I find the following entry, which perplexes me. If you or any of your readers can give me the information I need I shall be greatly obliged. Secretary Hay writes:

> The President notices a decided change in opinion vs. Russia. Herman Ridder has told him he can get up a great dinner in New York of Germans and Irish to express sympathy with Japan.

Is this the Mr. Ridder who, according to the reports of THE TIMES and other New York papers, has been so zealously anti-Japanese during the last five months? They represent the latter gentleman as likely to favor Germany, if the present war should be prolonged, and as persuaded that the only salvation for the United States is to destroy the Japanese before they have a chance to destroy us. Are these opinions rightly attributed to him?

If there are not two Herman Ridders, why was the Ridder of 1905, when the Russo-Japanese war was brewing, such an admirer of Japan, while the Ridder of 1915 regards Japan with such patriotic alarm?

Mr. Bryan's Usefulness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I appreciated your recent editorial article on "Mr. Bryan's Real Service," answering his critics by pointing out the direction in which President Wilson finds him extremely useful. I was reminded of Barnum and his elephant. The story is told in Barnum's "Autobiography," and, as I recall it, is substantially as follows:

> The wily showman, who was then running a "Museum" in New York near the old Astor House, leased a bit of land near Bridgeport alongside of the New Haven Railroad track. There he put up a bill board advertisement of his museum, and sent around an elephant with his keeper and a plow. The keeper was rigged up in a costume that would pass for Hindoo, and was given a railroad timetable with orders to be plowing whenever a train to New York went by.
> After some time a farmer came to Barnum and said, "Mr. Barnum, your plowing elephant is a humbug. I have watched him carefully, and I find that in proportion to his size and the cost of his keep, the amount of work that he does is ridiculously small. Besides, in the way you are using him he cannot draw—" "Wait a bit," Mr. Barnum interrupted, "there you are mistaken. In the way I use him he draws people to my show from all over the United States."

Saving in Order to Punish.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly explain so an ordinary person can understand why it is that all the knowledge of medical science is brought to bear to keep alive a would-be suicide in order that she may be legally murdered for poisoning her children? She must die anyway; why not let the poison she took do its work? Just common folks cannot see the sense of working so hard to have a woman die in the electric chair, when if let alone she'd die in her bed.

LIFE'S SHOP WINDOW.

I walked into the shop and said to Life,
  Who stood behind the counter, very bland,
"Now give me, please, one of those pretty hearts."
  He wrapped it up and placed it in my hand,
But as I went, he called me back and said,
  "These goods, you understand, aren't warranted."

When, older, I returned and ventured in:
  "So beautiful your window, Life, I'm bound
It will bring joy to me to purchase here."
  "Ah, well, my dear," said he, "pray look around—
My glittering display attracts the eye,

How different, darker was his dingy store
  From that bright window I had oft looked through!
Amid the dim recesses of his stock
  In vain I searched, for all was one drab hue.
At length I stole away into the night,
For Life was busy, and forgot me quite.

Years afterwards I came again; I knew
  That what I wanted Life would not display;
  Life shook his head and motioned me away:
"The world asks me for that without surcease!
'Tis Death, across the way, who deals in peace."

WILSON TO REVIEW FLEET AT PANAMA

PASS CANAL ON THE OREGON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Plans for the journey of President Wilson to the Isthmus of Panama and the use of the navy for the formal opening of the canal were announced today by Josephus Daniels, the Secretary of the Navy.

Under these plans the proposed review of the Atlantic fleet at Hampton Roads about the first of March has been abandoned under a compromise reached with Senator Swanson of Virginia, who was insisting upon the holding of the Hampton Roads review as directed by Congress. Senator Swanson had threatened to block any attempt to prevent by legislation doing away with the review. Under the compromise Secretary Daniels has given assurances that when the fleet returns from San Francisco there will be a substitute review held at Hampton Roads next Fall to which foreign warships will be invited.

President Wilson will go to Panama on board the New York, which will be escorted by the Texas. The President is to leave Hampton Roads on March 5, and arrive at Colon on March 10. He will review the fleet off the West Coast of the Canal Zone on March 13 and is scheduled to arrive at San Francisco on March 24. The plans contemplate assigning separate warships for the use of ex-Presidents Taft and Roosevelt if they accept the invitations to participate in the opening. The diplomatic corps and members of Congress will be conveyed to the Canal Zone on board army transports, Panama Railway steamers and chartered steamers.

Secretary Daniel's announcemen of the schedule of operations of the Atlantic fleet and preliminary arrangements for the cruise is as follows:

The battleships of the Atlantic fleet and the destroyer flotilla will proceed to Guantanamo and Guacanayabo Bay, Cuba, on Jan. 17 for extended fleet exercises and target practices, 17 battleships participating in the manoeuvres; the Georgia, Texas, South Carolina, and Minnesota will remain at their home yards undergoing overhaul until Feb. 15.

The Texas will remain at Hampton Roads to escort the President to Panama in the New York, the New York proceeding to Hampton Roads from Cuban waters about Feb. 15, prepared to receive the President on March 5.

It is intended that the Washington relieve the Delaware in Mexican waters as soon as practicable, and that the Delaware and Rhode Island will join the fleet in Cuban waters. The Rhode Island has been ordered from New Orleans to Norfolk for docking, and on the completion of docking, about Jan. 22, will proceed to Guantanamo to join the fleet.

The battleships and the destroyers of the Active Flotilla (about twenty-three) will remain in Cuban waters, carrying on drills and exercises, until Feb. 25, and will then proced to Panama, all twenty-one battleships going through the canal to San Francisco.

The schedule of movements from Guantanamo, Feb. 25, is in general as follows, subject to such changes as may be necessary:

Feb. 26—Vestal, Yankton, Solace, and tugs arrive at Colon; proceed to Gatun Lake, coal, and proceed to Panama.

Feb. 28—Fleet flagship, first and second divisions, arrive at Colon; proceed to Gatun Lake, coal, then to Panama, arriving March 2-3.

March 3—Third and fourth divisions arrive Colon and follow first and second divisions through canal, arriving Panama March 5-6.

March 8—Celtic arrives Colon, coal at Gatun Lake and arrives Panama March 10.

March 10—New York and Texas arrive Colon; proceed to Gatun Lake, coal, oil, and go to Panama. (President transfers to the Oregon and goes through the canal.)

March 12—The Oregon, Olympia, Yankton, and Celtic proceed to anchorage off San Francisco.

March 13—The President on the New York, accompanied by the Texas and one division of destroyers, steams through the fleet and proceeds to San Diego. The fleet, flotilla, and train steam to San Francisco. Foreign vessels proceed independently.

There can, of course, be no parade of the fleet as a whole, through the canal. This would result in congestion in Colon and in the canal, with serious delay.

The Oregon and Olympia will take part and are to be in Colon prior to March 5, filled with coal and ready to proceed.

Besides the twenty-one battleships of the Atlantic Fleet, all vessels of the Atlantic torpedo flotilla, including the Birmingham, Dixie, and Arethusa, will accompany the fleet to San Francisco. The reserve torpedo flotilla, Atlantic Fleet, will not proceed to San Francisco. The auxiliaries accompanying the battleship fleet will be the Vestal, Celtic, Yankton, Solace, Seneca, Ontario, Patapsco, Petuxent, and the colliers Cyclops, Orion, Neptune, Jupiter, and Vulcan.

The reserve torpedo flotilla, the submarine flotilla, mine layers, and auxiliaries will conduct exercises at Pensacola during the months of February, March, and April. It is possible that the reserve torpedo flotilla will proceed to Guantanamo for exercises with the fleet before proceeding to Pensacola.

The following foreign vessels are expected to take part in the celebration incident to the opening of the canal: Argentina will send the battleship Moreno, flying the flag of Vice Admiral Onofre Betbeder; Cuba will send the cruiser Cuba; Portugal will send the cruiser Almirante Reis and the dispatch boat Cinco de Outubro; Spain will send the battleship Espana. Vice Admiral Don Ramon Estrada Catoiva has been appointed by the Spanish Government as its naval representative.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 13.—Commander Joseph M. Reeves, who arrived at the Puget Sound navy yard today in command of the cruiser West Virginia, will assume command of the battleship Oregon at once. The Oregon will sail southward tomorrow to lead the naval parade through the Panama Canal. She will stop at San Francisco and San Diego, Cal.

Whitney, will be opened on Saturday at 8 West Eighth Street and will continue until Jan. 24. Admission fee for the first day will be $1 and after that 25 cents, the proceeds to be dedicated to the "Fraternite des Artistes," a fund for the relief of the families of the artists of France.

McCONVILLES WILL PART.

Wife of Police Lieutenant Determined to Leave Her Husband.

The trial of the action begun by Mrs. Priscilla McConville for a separation from her husband, Police Lieut. Bernard McConville, came to trial before Supreme Court Justice Giegerich yesterday after the Justice had spent three hours in trying to reconcile them. Mrs. McConville was just as determined not to live with her husband again as she was several months ago, when Justice Weeks tried to settle the trouble.

The McConvilles were married in 1882 and they have had eleven children. Four daughters and two sons are alive now. In her complaint Mrs. McConville said her husband had treated her cruelly. She submitted letters which, she said, he had received from other women. She said also that the Lieutenant had property worth $70,000, and that shortly before she began her suit, in August, he had $40,000 in the bank.

When Justice Giegerich asked Mrs. McConville if there was any hope of a reconciliation, she cried out with a voice which trembled with emotion:

"No, never! I will die first! I am willing to die. He has made my children's life a misery and my life a burden."

McConville said that his domestic trouble grew out of the habit his daughters had of staying out late at night. Anna and Catharine, two of the daughters, protested and declared that the statement was not true, while Mrs. McConville pointed her finger at her husband and said in a ringing voice:

"You are a bad, bad man! You lie about my children!"

In reply to a question by the court, Herman L. Roth and George H. Taylor, attorneys for the plaintiff and defendant, said that they had tried to adjust the quarrel, but had not succeeded. The trial will be continued today.

101 PLEDGED TO ROOT.

Senator Will Be President of the Constitutional Convention.

Seth Low wrote to the 168 Delegates-elect to the Constitutional Convention, shortly after election, asking them for an expression of opinion regarding Elihu Root as President. Mr. Low said last night he had received indorsements of Mr. Root from 101. It was because Mr. Low thought that Senator Root, as President, could organize and make efficient the machinery of the convention that he took the steps to assure the Senator of his election. He explained his position in a letter, which he sent to all of the Republican Delegates and made public last night.

Shortly after the election, Mr. Low said in the letter, Senator Root chanced to remark that by making certain arrangements in advance it would be possible to save at least one month's time for the delegates. Mr. Low at once suggested to Mr. Root that he make these necessary arrangements, whereupon Mr. Root replied that it would be embarrassing for him to take this initiative because doing so would be tantamount to his assuming that the convention would elect him President.

Mr. Low then made his plans to ascertain the feeling of the delegates so that he might know whether Mr. Root could justifiably assume his election.

THE SCHROEDER TRIO.

The Schroeder Trio, a chamber-music organization, new to New York, made its first appearance here yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. If the organization is new to New York, its members are not. Its name is given it by Mr. Alvin Schroeder, 'cellist, who is held in admiring remembrance by New York music-lovers; the first violin is Mr. Sylvain Novack, who sits at the first desk of the Boston Orchestra's violins, and the pianist is Ethel Cave Cole, a well-known artist of this city.

The first concert of the Schroeder Trio showed plainly that its members are closely bound together in artistic unity, that they know each other's style intimably and that they have made one style their own. The organization, in fact, though it now gives its first concert in New York, is not newly formed, and it has had a year and a half at least of work together, all of which plainly counted in the attainment of the excellent ensemble heard yesterday.

Mr. Schroeder is naturally the most authoritative artistic personality of the group, and the power, the tonal beauty and perfect artistic finish of his playing were important factors in the success of the ensemble. Mr. Novack and Mrs. Cole are both admirable musicians; and Mrs. Cole possesses the secret, not known to all pianists, of the right balance of her instrument with the strings.

The programme yesterday was made up of Beethoven's trio in D, op. 70, No. 1, a so-called "concerto," by Rameau, in effect a trio, and Brahms's trio op. 101, in C minor. Their diverse styles and contents were interpreted with a sure and unerring touch with abundant sympathy, with full knowledge of what the music demands in the way of style. It was a performance that quite justified the addition of the Schroeder Trio to the number of chamber music organizations to be heard here. The trio literature is large, important, and very interesting; and there is plenty of work to be done in it.

CIRCUS AT THE HIPPODROME

Arthur Voegtlin, who has directed past productions at the Hippodrome, is staging the circus, and he has arranged equestrian, mid-air, ring, and arena acts. A large number of foreign acts, which were obtained by the Shuberts as a result of the war closing all of the circuses in Europe, will take part in the two performances daily. There will also be the usual collection of wild animals and clowns.

In 1894, Mr. Brown joined the staff of The World as assistant telegraph editor. Brown, a member of the Sporting Department of The World, and from whose home at Flatbush and Beverley Avenues, Brooklyn, he will be buried tomorrow.

S., and educated at the Royal Military School in Halifax. Mr. Rowley then entered the Merchants' Bank of Ottawa. He later assisted in forming the E. B. Eddy Company, of which he became President in 1906. Mr. Rowley was a delegate to the Commercial Congress of the Empire in 1909 at Sydney, Australia, and was a Director of the Eastern Canada Manufacturers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the Central Canadian Exhibition Association, and Ashbury College. In 1910 he was elected President of the Canadian Immigration Guild. Mr. Rowley was a member of the Rideau, Country, Hunt, Golf, and Laurentian Clubs of Ottawa; the National and Albany Clubs of Toronto, and the Mount Royal Club of Montreal.

VOTE ON SUFFRAGE PLEASES BOTH SIDES

Those for It Say House Action Is 'Encouraging,' While Antis See End of 'Hysteria.'

MRS. CATT WILL FIGHT ON

She Believes Vote in Congress Tuesday Indicates Ultimate Victory.

Strange as it may seem, suffragists and anti-suffragists are pleased with the vote in the House of Representatives on Tuesday, when the suffrage constitutional amendment was debated and rejected, 174 to 204. The suffragists say that the fact that the subject was so thoroughly debated is a great victory in itself, and the anti-suffragists are certain their side gained a victory because the suffragists lost in their fight.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Suffrage Association, said, in reference to remarks of the National Anti-Suffrage President, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, that the suffragists had lost their cause and that there would now be a wane of "suffrage hysteria":

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast. Mrs. Dodge dies hard. There is nothing coming to the suffragists but victory. A ballot like that of yesterday is only stopping to take a poll to see how far we have gone. Not very long ago such a debate on woman suffrage in the House of Representatives would have been impossible. Ten years ago we wouldn't have carried a corporal's guard of voters. Five years ago we would not have carried half the number that we had on Tuesday.

Members Inconsistent.

"There were men who were in favor of woman suffrage who did not vote for us because they believe in State rights. We were pleased that so many of the Southern men who stand for State rights voted in favor of prohibition. It shows that their belief in State rights does not hold. Tuesday's action marks a great onward progress and shows that we shall have a favorable vote soon."

Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, President of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, said:

"We have never had the least fear that the Mondell resolution, proposing so radical an amendment to the Federal Constitution as to enfranchise women in all the States, would be approved. Woman suffrage advocates of the measure realized that it had not a ghost of a show, but that it would help to advertise the 'cause' at the Government's expense of time and money.

"The vote on the measure proves unmistakably that woman suffrage is unpopular and that the majority of the States do not want it. Now the ballot extension exploiters must be satisfied to fight the issue out in the States, a slow and uncertain process, to which all radical and unpopular reforms should be assigned. The next defeats for woman suffrage will come this year in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. And then, perhaps, we will have a rest for a while."

Gratifying to the Antis.

"This is very gratifying to the anti-suffragists," said Mrs. Nelson H. Henry. "The suffragists must be much disappointed after the hard work they have done. It is a signal victory for us in view of the fact that the suffragists lost after putting such splendid effort into their work for a favorable vote."

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont said that she considered the debate and the result favorable to woman suffrage. Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, State suffrage leader in Pennsylvania, which is now one of the campaign States, passing through New York yesterday, expressed herself as greatly pleased with the debate of Tuesday, and said it was only one of the stepping stones to victory.

MAYOR DEMANDS WORK FOR JOBLESS

HOPES FOR MARGINAL ROAD

Construction of Brooklyn Improvement Will Call for the Expenditure of $15,000,000.

Roused by criticisms to the effect that the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment was not bringing work to men and women needing jobs, Mayor Mitchel summoned to the City Hall yesterday afternoon the heads of all city departments. From each one the Mayor asked for a statement of all work that could be done at this time. He urged the department heads to put the unemployment problem first on their list of activities. When the conference was over Mayor Mitchel said:

"We will start up some important jobs, but just what jobs they are I cannot say until I have received more data from the heads of departments. This data is promised by tomorrow."

It was evident from the Mayor's manner that he was somewhat nettled by the hostile report of Controller Prendergast as Chairman of the Board of Estimate's Budget Committee. He said that he considered it "unfortunate" that such a spirit as that shown in the report existed. The letter from Amos Pinchot criticising the Mayor's Committee, Mayor Mitchell dismissed with the comment that "it was impertinent and tended to stir up disorder and discontent at a time when serious plans were under way to handle a big problem in a practical manner."

City Chamberlain Henry Bruere, who was criticised in the report of Controller Prendergast to which Mayor Mitchel took exception, said that "this was no time for calling names, but a time for the whole community to get under the load of a serious problem."

The Rev. John Haynes Holmes arrived at the City Hall while Mayor Mitchel's conference with the heads of departments was in progress.

"I represent a conference of clergymen of all of the Protestant churches between Fourteenth Street and Sixty-second Street," said the Rev. Mr. Holmes, "and at this conference we decided that the best thing we could do would be to bend our energies to obtaining money for the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment. The present situation is a State-wide calamity. If this calamity were fire or flood the city would find some means quickly of providing funds to meet it."

Borough President Marks told the Mayor yesterday that he had found some work his office could begin at once. One item was the construction of a mezzanine floor in the Washington Market, for which bids had been advertised.

"What work, if any, was delayed at the outbreak of the war on account of the narrowness of the borrowing margin, and is it now possible to start up such a work?" was one of the questions put to Mayor Mitchel when he received reporters just before he left the City Hall.

"There are some new public works the borrowing margin would not affect," the Mayor replied. "There are others it would be a bar to. For instance if we could get under way the construction of the marginal railroad in South Brooklyn, that is a large and important public work which would furnish a lot of labor and which ought to be under way at the earliest possible moment. What stands in the way is lack of legislation permitting us to make operating contracts with the railroads. The bill has been transmitted to the Board of Estimate. It will be on the Calendar Friday for approval.

"The total cost of the railroad, including the cost of purchasing existing railroads is about $14,000,000—something between that and $15,000,000. Reservation has been made for funds for that. Then, if we could come to an agreement on the matter of the west side terminals, on which the dock department has been working for the past year, it would furnish an enormous amount of labor. The capital, in this case though, would be privately provided.

"But I think the chief advantage of showing a disposition to advance all the necessary and immediately contemplated works lies in the example that this action on the part of the city would set to general business. I say the chief advantage would lie in this direction because the gross total of work the city can commence is small and would be even if work worth $5,000,000 could be put under way."

When Mayor Mitchel was asked about Controller Prendergast's report as Chairman of the Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate, he said he believed that many items not covered in the list of work to be started by May, could be started before that time. "I am going to set about advancing some of the work which has been authorized," he said." "I am not satisfied with the mere statement that sewer work cannot be undertaken in Winter."

In considering Mr. Pinchot's letter Mayor Mitchel said:

"I do not claim we are doing all that can be done, but I do claim we are making a very serious effort to discover what we can do. It does not need a parade of the unemployed to City Hall to impress us with the need for action. It would not help them to have such a parade. It would be calculated to breed disorder where disorder is especially to be avoided.

"I think it is a pity to criticise Judge Gary," said Mayor Mitchel, "since Judge Gary, of course, took a statement that was submitted to him and Mr. Bruere merely asserted that the statement was an estimate. I think that anything that is an attempt to rebuke Judge Gary is unfortunate and quite unjust. Judge Gary has been giving a great deal of valuable time to the work of his committee."

Peter J. Brady, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, accepted a place yesterday on the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment. In a long letter accepting the place, he pledged the full co-operation of the printers in the task of finding work for the jobless.

An I. W. W. demonstration against the reduction of rates of wages for emergency work or relief work of any kind, was arranged yesterday to be held at the Manhattan Lyceum in East Fourth Street on Friday night. Joseph J. Ettor will preside. Among the speakers will be Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Carlo Tresca, Frank Strawn Hamilton, B. Secundi, and Charles Ashleigh, nearly all of whom were leaders in the labor demonstrations last Winter.

The "Hotel de Gink," at Worth and Centre Streets, was made ready for occupancy yesterday and City Chamberlain Bruere said last night he believed that Jeff Davis and his hoboes would be permitted to sleep there tonight. Davis received 1,000 towels and several boxes of soap yesterday as a gift from a sympathizer. He also received 500 blankets, a piano, and promises of help from the plumbers' union. Brickmasons connected with the "Hotel de Gink's" forces have built ovens for cooking in a vacant lot near the hotel.

COTTON MARKET HEAVY.

December Distribution Report Will Be Out Today.

Judging from the action of the Cotton Market prices have reached a point where sentiment is plainly divided as to values. The irregularity and the nervousness exhibited recently can have no other interpretation. Liverpool made an excellent showing yesterday, rallying sharply from an early decline and reporting spot sales of 10,000 bales. The opening here was at a slight advance, but the gain was not held and an easier tendency developed under the influence of Southern selling.

There were rumors of more liberal spot offerings in portions of Texas, Alabama and the Carolinas. Farmers were said to be showing more disposition to sell than for some time. This is attributed partly to a desire to avoid "country damage" and partly as an effort to liquidate to meet certain accruing obligations.

One feature of interest to-day will be the census report on the supply and distribution of cotton for December. This will give the consumption of American mills compared with 456,262 bales in December, 1913. The consumption in November, 1914 was 420,000 bales. The stock of cotton in the hands of manufacturers will compare with the 1913 figures of 1,728,000 bales.

Although the market made a somewhat heavy showing yesterday it is believed that there will be a good demand on any decline for the present.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged to 1-16c. lower.

HARKNESS CHARGES CLERK STOLE $20,000

Standard Oil Capitalist Has W. B. Thompson, His Confidential Man, Arrested.

CONFESSED, POLICE SAY

Prisoner Accused of Fraudulently Using Power of Attorney to Obtain Money.

Willard B. Thompson, 36 years old, of 5 Union Park Avenue, Jamaica, L. I., former confidential Secretary of William L. Harkness, Standard Oil capitalist of 12 Broadway, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of grand larceny growing out of the theft of $20,000 or more from Mr. Harkness in the last four years. He was arraigned before Magistrate Krotel in the Tombs Court and sent to the Tombs in default of $2,500 bail for examination tomorrow afternoon.

The specific charge against Thompson is the larceny of a check for $481 drawn against his employer's personal account in the Produce Exchange Bank on Jan. 2. Deputy Assistant District Attorney R. R. Loening said this was but one of a long series of similar thefts. Thompson appeared unmoved when brought into court, and it was said that he had already confessed to his employer. He was plainly dressed except for a large scarfpin and two large diamond rings, which were taken from him. When questioned as to how he got them, he said he had found one of the rings and picked up the pawn ticket for the other.

For more than eight years, Thompson had been a trusted employee and as confidential Secretary he had power of attorney to sign checks against Mr. Harkness's personal account. Most of the latter's household bills were paid in this way, the account being balanced each month to Mr. Harkness's satisfaction. This went on until last December, when the balance for the month seemed somewhat smaller than it should be. At the same time Mr. Harkness noticed a change in his employe's behavior. An investigation soon showed irregularities in the ledger. Thompson received notice that he had been neglecting his duties and that his services would no longer be required after Jan. 4.

Further examinations of the books revealed the fact that two days before he left, Thompson went to the Produce Exchange Bank and withdrew $481, although the entry on the stub in the bank book for that date was for only $10. About this time, Mr. Harkness was told over the telephone by a man, who would not say who he was, that Thompson had been spending money freely along Broadway. Thompson was invited to come down to 12 Broadway and explain. Yesterday when he called, Detectives Dolan, Moriarty and Finn were waiting for him. He admitted the thefts, they said, but would make no explanation, so the detectives arrested him.

The Produce Exchange Bank's monthly statements were turned over to Deputy Assistant District Attorney Loening last night. These were compared with the corresponding statements in the books kept by Thompson and showed discrepancies in every month's balance, according to Loening. The books covered a period of two years, but it is believed that the shortage began further back than that.

Thompson is married and has an adopted child.

Thompson's wife, who is a girlish appearing young woman of 26, fainted in her home when told over the telephone that her husband had been arrested. He had told her he had trouble at the office, but she was unaware of how serious it really was. Later she said to a reporter:

"When my husband's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Thompson, died four years ago, something seemed to go wrong with his head. I do not know whether something snapped, but he has never been the same since, although his loving attitude to baby and to me has never changed. But he seemed to lose interest in things which formerly had held his atention. Before his mother's death he was continually fixing little things about the house. Since then it was practically impossible to arouse his interest even in needed repairs. During that time, and particularly during the past year, he wandered off requently. Sometimes he would be gone a day and a night, and he never apepared to know just where he had been."

RESERVE BANK PROBLEMS.

Committee Ready to Report to Conference of Governors.

The committee appointed by the conference of Governors of Federal Reserve Banks to consider the problem of check collection, which has been in session for several days, concluded its labors yesterday at the Federal Reserve Bank. In addition to the subject of clearances and settlements between the Reserve Banks, the committee discussed the programme for the next meeting of Governors in Washington on Jan. 20, suggestions concerning possible revised regulations relative to the rediscount of commercial paper and matters connected with intradistrict clearances and collections.

The members said that as they were to report to the meeting in Washington they did not feel it proper to make public their recommendations in advance of the conference.

RUBBER COMMITTEE MEETS.

Works to Enforce British Conditions on Lifting Embargo.

The Embargo Committee of the Rubber Club of America met in the New York Life Building yesterday to perfect measures to prevent infractions by irresponsible dealers of the conditions under which the British embargo on crude rubber has just been raised. The members of the committee said the regulations laid down by the British Ambassador were entirely satisfactory.

"The lifting of the embargo," said a member, "is of the greatest importance to the manufacturing industry in this country. We need the rubber principally for consumption in this country, and we are satisfied with the restrictions by which all our exports to Europe must be made through Great Britain. We have no legitimate excuse for re-exporting crude rubber.

"England could clap the embargo on again on twenty-four hours' notice if irresponsible importers and dealers should ship crude rubber under false manifests as in the past. We shall have a sub-committee sharply at work to prevent such practices and to notify the authorities at once of any instances. In this we are working with the Customs Service and the Treasury Department generally."

Cohen Brothers Get Bail Reduction.

Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions granted a motion yesterday for reduction of bail in the cases of Jacob and Joseph Cohen, who were arrested in connection with the Baff case and who were later indicted for assault on Arthur Pearson about a year ago. Bail in the assault case was fixed at $25,000, which Abraham Sarasohn, counsel for the Cohens, contended was excessive. Judge Rosalsky reduced the bail to $15,000.

Sheetings Active Yesterday.

Some good business was done on sheetings yesterday in the local cotton goods market. In all, it is said that more than a million yards of these goods were disposed of during the day. In one quarter of the market alone, 500,000 yards of 36-inch, 5.50-yard sheetings were sold at 3⅛ cents for delivery up to June. Some branded lines of 36-inch, 56-60, 4-yard sheetings were sold at 4½ cents.

Covert Overcoats Latest Novelty.

Covert, which has quite a vogue among women at present, has been adopted in the men's wear trade after an absence of seven years. Overcoats made of this fabric have been placed on the market by one of the leading factors in the young men's clothing business. The garments are made in knee lengths instead of the usual 32-inch lengths and are skeleton lined where formerly there was a full lining. The colors that have proved the best sellers are Oxford, olive, and tan, with a sprinkling of sand and putty. The coverts used are rainproofed.

Industrial Insurance Meeting.

The members of the Industrial Mutual Liability Insurance Company, will hold their first annual meeting at the Aldine Club next Monday. This is the association that was organized in what are known as the needle industries to cover liability imposed by the State Workmen's Compensation Act. The company began business last July. At the meeting there will be presented reports showing the operations of the company for the first six months of its existence. According to the statements made by the officers on behalf of the company, it has met with unusual success. Losses have been very small and the risk of catastrophe has been well covered.

Send Japanese Violins Here.

"Any exportation of Western musical instruments made in Japan to the West may sound strange, but it is true, according to an Asaka newspaper," says Consul General G. H. Scidmore in writing to the Commerce Reports from Yokohama. "A violin manufactory in Nagoya has sent a shipment of violins lately to the United States to fill an order for tens of thousands of them. The instruments mostly in demand in America are chiefly German made, costing $3 to $8. At the outbreak of the war, Germany ceased to send them, and the supply is being drawn from Japan. The manufactory, encouraged by the new business, is said to be planning to double its yearly output. In 1910 this factory reported a yearly output valued at $5,000."

Sweaters for the Summer.

A report is current in the knit goods market that the foreign Governments at war will require an enormous quantity of sweaters for their soldiers to wear during the coming Summer. It is thought that the heavy overcoats and tunics will be discarded for the sweater, which will give greater freedom of movement to the body. The question of what the foreign armies will need in the way of Summer supplies grows more interesting as the time draws near for the actual purchasing of these goods. There is considerable talk of switching from the uniforms made of the conventional woolen cloths to lighter weight fabrics made either partly or wholly of cotton. This is a development that may reasonably be looked for if there is no change in the raw wool situation.

Ready-to-Wear Buyers Active.

The advance guard of the army of ready-to-wear buyers which invades this market every year about this time for initial purchases of Spring goods has arrived and is doing good work. In several instances it was said yesterday that buying so far this week had been liberal and encouraging, especially so following the poor Fall season had by a good part of the trade. Buyers of the higher class of this merchandise are reported to be especially active for so early in the season, and this applies both to gowns and dresses and to coats and suits. In view of the buying that has already been done, it is anticipated by well-posted men in the trade that the activities of the retailers will develop somewhat of a boom in the ready-to-wear industry in the course of the next few weeks.

English Making Cheap Jewelry.

Manufacturers of jewelry in England are succeeding reasonably well in turning out substitutes for the cheap jewelry that formerly came from the Continent, according to Consul Albert Halstead, who is stationed at Birmingham. They have been assisted in the obtaining of raw material by the enterprise of American manufacturers of rolled gold plate and wire, who have secured some very satisfactory orders on these products and on terms that promise continuing business, even after the war. Birmingham is also now producing piano parts that were formerly imported. The cost of production of these parts is found to be much higher than the import price but, with increasing experience in filling orders, it is expected that this cost will be materially reduced.

Getting No Answers.

Several of the largest operators in the women's wear cutting-up trade are understood to have addressed, without result, cards to the dress goods selling agents, asking that representatives call upon them to show Fall lines. As far as is known, there is no dress goods mill that has completed preparing Fall lines, and there are not a few mills that have given up the idea entirely of opening while the wool situation remains what it is. The cutters up referred to above have in the aggregate a production of many millions a year and yet they are finding it hard to get the mill men to talk business for the coming season. Where such is the experience of the large house it can be readily inferred that the smaller manufacturer is even in a more difficult position regarding his next season's fabric needs.

Millinery Men Meet.

The Committee on Membership of the Eastern Millinery Association had a very encouraging report to read at the annual meeting of that organization held yesterday at the Broadway Central Hotel. During the past year the number of members was increased by 42. J. A. Stern, former Chairman of the Board of Directors, was elected President. Other officers chosen were Arthur Ronald, First Vice President; M. C. Hewlett, Second Vice President; Franklin P. Cator, Third Vice President; Irving T. Kohn, Fourth Vice President, and W. C. Callmann, Treasurer. Samuel H. Lummis, Secretary, among other things, reviewed the important parts which the organization had been called upon to play in the large failures that occurred during the past year.

Printcloth Prices Mounting.

The printcloth market continued to strengthen yesterday, and buyers seemed a little more willing to accept the advance and do business. Among the day's trading were sales of 38½-inch, 64-60s at 3¾ cents, both for spot and nearby deliveries. Spot 60-52s in that width moved at 3 5-16 cents, with some disposition on the part of the mills to ask 3⅜ cents. Spot 60-48s were said to be exhausted at 3⅛ cents, and 3 3-16 cents was asked here and at Fall River for this delivery. On 39-inch 68-72s there was some immediate business done at 4 7-16 cents, with 4½ cents asked for contract. Bids of 5¾ cents for 39-inch 80-80s, for delivery past July, were refused; but it was said that quite a little business had been done on this construction for shipment this side of the half year. The day's prices follow:

GOOD ORDER FOR RAILS.

Steel Men Predict Large Railway Purchases Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—The Pennsylvania Steel Company today received orders for about 10,000 tons of steel rails, girders and castings. While this business is not unusually large for this time of the year, company officials say it is indicative of larger orders to come. Within a few weeks they expect the railroads to be in the market for a large quantity of rails. General railroad buying, they say, indicates a return to comparative prosperity for all business.

The orders received today include 3,500 tons of standard steel rails for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, 3,000 open hearth rails for the Norfolk Southern, 600 tons of heavy girders for shipment to the Pacific Coast, and 500 tons of standard "T" rails for the Florida East Coast Railroad. In addition orders amounting to about 2,000 tons of steel castings were received.

WHAT MAKES A VELVET?

This Question Is in a Test Case Before the Appraisers.

Testimony was taken yesterday before the Board of General Appraisers in a test case brought by L. & E. Stirn to determine the classification under the Tariff Act of 1913 of novelty brocades or brocaded chiffons. The question at issue is of much interest to the importing trade generally, and at yesterday's hearing many merchants were present, either to give testimony or listen to the evidence.

The goods are imported in the piece, and consist of a regular chiffon, except that there is a brocaded effect on the surface which is formed by a velvet pile, being in the design of flowers or leaves or some conventional ornament. The design covers but a small part of the surface in either of the patterns which were under consideration. Collector Malone classified the goods as silk velvet, at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem, instead of at 45 per cent., as woven fabrics of silk.

The importers' witnesses, Messrs. Kridel, Megret, and Lenz, testified that the term velvets as used commercially applied only to fabrics in which the pile covered the surface of the fabric, either entirely or at least to 90 per cent. of its extent. The witnesses admitted that certain velvets used for tapestry purposes and known as brocaded velvets would be commercially a velvet, though they showed spaces on the surface which were not covered by a pile. It was pointed out, however, that these flat surfaces were relatively insignificant compared to the pile-covered parts of the fabric.

At the conclusion of the hearing the Government was allowed one month to consider whether it would offer testimony against the importers' contention. A peculiar feature of the case is that, under the Act of 1909, the Government took the opposite view from what it takes under this Act. It then maintained that to be a velvet a fabric must be surfaced entirely with pile, the woven-fabric rate being higher than the velvet rate under the earlier Act.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Decision on Cotton Jacquards Follows the Earlier One.

Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia, were sustained yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers in the claim that cotton table damask made on the Jacquard loom is properly dutiable at 25 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 263, Tariff Act of 1913, which provides for these goods by name. The Collector returned the merchandise for duty at 30 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 258 as "Jacquard figured manufacturers of cotton." Judge Cooper, following an earlier decision affecting the same class of goods, holds that the paragraph under which the importers claim duty is more specific than the Jacquard provision and sustained the protest. It is expected that the board will continue to sustain protests of this kind unless the Customs Court, in the test case before it, reverses the lower tribunal.

B. R. Lawrence, Detroit, was sustained in a contention that a commodity imported by him is the cyanide of potassium mentioned in the free list of the present tariff. The Collector taxed the product at 15 per cent. ad valorem as a chemical compound. Judge Brown says that the language of the Act of 1913, if anything, is broader and more favorable to the importer's contention in dealing with the substances than was the case when similar goods were brought in under the old law.

The Spokane Dry Goods Company, Spokane, Wash., was overruled in claims dealing with a variety of merchandise imported under the present law. In order to save the importers the expenses incident to trying the case in this city, a member of the board visited Seattle for the purpose of taking testimony. As no appearance was made by the protestant, Judge Howell holds that the duty imposed by the Collector is presumptively correct and must be affirmed.

To Change Compensation Law.

The New York Board of Trade and Transportation yesterday recommended that the Workmen's Compensation Law be changed so as to provide for the payment of compensation to injured workmen or their dependents by the State, thus relieving employers from liability for damages and from the obligation to provide for such compensation by insurance or otherwise. The Board also adopted a report opposing the ordinance introduced into the Board of Aldermen by Alderman Hamilton regulating the height of buildings.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A meeting of the Directors of the Syndicate Trading Company will be held today at 2 Walker Street.

The Advance Waist Company, which is now located at 122 West Twenty-seventh Street, will soon take new and larger quarters in the building at 31 East Thirty-first Street. They make lingerie, silk, and lace waists.

A stock of about $20,000 worth of men's and boys' hats and caps brought fair prices at a sale yesterday conducted by D. Greenwald & Co., 15 Mercer Street. The merchandise consisted of soft hats, derbies, and caps, and a good demand seemed to exist for all these classes of goods, as the entire stock was sold. The attendance was good.

JOINT ARBITRAGE RENEWED.

Stock Exchange Governors Lift Embargo Laid in 1911.

Governors of the Stock Exchange voted yesterday to restore joint account operations in arbitrage dealings between New York and London, which were discontinued three years ago. Through the decision a broker in this city may work with another in London to their mutual profit by taking advantage of the difference of prices for the same stocks in the two markets at the same time. Arbitrage transactions are conducted by cable, and their success depends upon the quick execution of orders to grasp fleeting price alterations.

A special committee of the Exchange had held hearings for more than a year on the question of renewing the joint account. Its findings were favorable, but proof that a sharp difference of opinion prevailed on the board was displayed in the fact that a bare majority of the forty Governors put the measure through.

Joint account dealings were annulled by the Exchange in 1911 because of charges that the commission law was being ignored. The custom had been for a New York broker to balance commissions with his London colleague. This procedure, the Exchange argued, disregarded the rule that $12.50 should be paid for each hundred shares bought or sold for the account of a non-member.

At the present time the application of yesterday's ruling would be of no value as the London Stock Exchange does not permit arbitrage trading by its members with any other Exchange. With this condition in mind, apparently, the Governors decided that a date for renewing the joint account would be selected later. At the same time restrictions will be prescribed to prevent infringements on the commission rule. It is expected that a committee will be appointed to supervise all dealings over the arbitrage rail.

NEW YORK LIFE'S WAR RISKS

Company's Report Tells of Policies and Investments.

The annual report of the New York Life Insurance Company, to be issued today, says that severe losses will not be experienced in its foreign business on account of the war. The report states that the number of policies not carrying a war clause in force upon lives between 17 and 39 in the warring countries was at the outbreak of hostilities about 15,600—or 1¼ per cent. of the company's total membership; while the number between 17 and 30 was only 2,600, or about one-quarter of 1 per cent.

The company's total mortality for 1914 was 73 per cent. of the mortality provided for in the premiums, while in 1913 it was also 73 per cent. In 1912 it was 76 per cent. Foreign investments have not fallen in price appreciably more than domestic securities. No security issued by or in any country engaged in the war and held by the company is in default of either principal or interest.

LITTLE TRADING IN LONDON.

Prices Maintain Steady Undertone, Most Business Being in Consols.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Money and discount rates were easy. Prices on the Stock Exchange today maintained a steady undertone, most of the business being done in consols, war loans, and home rails. There was less buying in other issues which caused irregularity. Argentine railroads and oil shares were fractionally easier.

The American department was quieter, with Canadian Pacific hardening while other quotations were slightly lower than yesterday's closing.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The expansion in our credit trade balance at the rate at which it is now growing is bound to exert profound influence upon our financial and commercial position. Large as was the excess of exports in December, the latest figures from Washington show that the pace of exports in relation to imports has been much quickened since the beginning of the year. The excess of exports for the week ended Jan. 9 was at the rate of $5,000,000 a day on returns from ports handling ordinarily 85 per cent. of exports and 88 per cent. imports. That is at the rate of $150,000,000 a month, $40,000,000 more than the excess estimated for December, and at the rate of $1,800,000,000 a year.

The showing for a year cannot be estimated from a week, or even from a month, but in view of the course which events have been taking in our foreign trade, a credit trade balance of $1,250,000,000, or even $1,500,000,000, seems within the range of possibility. The largest excess of exports recorded for any fiscal year was $660,000,000, in 1908. The change which is going on is one which will exert its influence in many directions. One of its results was well illustrated in yesterday's announcement that the Russian Government has arranged with New York bankers for a credit of $25,000,000, all of which will be spent here. The credits are granted for trade encouragement, which will help to increase the country's credit trade balance.

At the rate at which the situation is developing, we will be able to face with entire composure any liquidation of our securities to which Europe may resort, but on the other hand the growth in our export trade bespeaks a condition favorable to our industries which in turn will increase the desire of European holders to retain their investments in this country. Another effect of the growing balance in our favor is seen in the taking of a small amount of gold in London for import here following the previous day's announcement of imports from China.

The import from London is perhaps fairly describable as more interesting than important, for on its face, at least, the picking up of a small amount of gold in the open market in London does not indicate a willingness on the part of the Bank of England to forego at this time any of the gold supplies which it has accumulated, and to which we contributed so largely last year. Sterling exchange reacted yesterday practically to the low price of last week, but probably a still further decline would be necessary to force the hand of the English market in respect to the release of gold for export to New York.

The weekly reviews of the steel trade which came to hand yesterday brought a fairly hopeful message from the chief manufacturing industry. Some hardening of prices was recorded along with expansion in production, which is based on the increase in orders and enlargement in specifications noted at the end of the year. The railways are not hastening to the steel market. Their absence has been severely felt. Just how severely felt. Just how severely is indicated by one steel manufacturing concern which ordinarily does a large business with the railroads. Last year its gross fell 53 per cent. and its net earnings over 60 per cent. It has been true of the steel trade for some time that it has labored under the handicap of great restriction of orders by its chief customers, the railroads. Improvement in that respect is expected, and it will be all the more effective in strengthening the steel trade position, in view of the fact that orders from other quarters have already expanded the unfilled tonnage on the books of the steel manufacturers.

Both dullness and reaction were emphasized in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange. It was such a halting movement as the general state of the market lately has led many observers to expect from time to time during the improvement in the security market position, which many expect to flow from the great ease in money and the current sign of trade betterment. Money was more abundantly easy yesterday than ever. Call loans did not lend above 2 per cent., and some loans were made as low as 1 1-2, which is of course the lowest rate since last July.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wheat on the Consolidated Exchange closed virtually at the top. The continued large demand for export was again the underlying influence. The first sale of the May delivery was at 148, an advance of 1c. from the closing price on Tuesday. There was an early dip to 147¾, and then the market again started up, touching a high in the late afternoon of 149¾. The closing was at 149⅝ bid, with the final sale at 149 11-16. Dealings were on a large scale. In the stock market, following early firmness, a somewhat heavy tone developed in the afternoon so far as the leading issues were concerned.

DEALING WITH FACTS.

The Annalist every Monday provides investors, merchants, students, manufacturers, and the business world generally with information on the world's progress in economics. 10c. by mail. The Annalist, Times Square, New York City.—Advt.

Is General Business Brisk or Dull?

You ask one business man and he will reply that orders are slow and that his business is depressed. You ask another and he will reply that it has never been better.

War conditions have brought about stagnation in some trades, whereas the curtailment in foreign industries has greatly stimulated many American industries.

This is a time for the investor to inform himself as to which securities have been favorably and which unfavorably affected.

Our latest circular B 125 gives detailed information on a company which during its past fiscal year earned approximately 30 per cent. on its common stock, whose profits for the first three months of this fiscal year exceed the entire profits of the past year. Prospects for the remaining nine months are even better than the first three months.

BUSINESS LOSS TO LONDON

Reserve Bank Act Facilitates Transaction—New Field for United States Bankers.

The Russian Government completed arrangements yesterday for an acceptance credit of $25,000,000 to be extended by a group of banks and banking houses in New York, including J. P. Morgan & Co., the National City Bank, the Chase National Bank, the Mechanics' & Metals National, and the Guaranty Trust Company.

This credit must be taken up by Russia within thirty days, and the entire proceeds are to be used in the purchase of supplies for export. Russia will draw ninety-day bills on the several banks to the extent of their participations in the undertaking. In the aggregate, if the full credit is used, these bills will amount to $25,000,000. The bills will be accepted by the members of the group and will be deposited with J. P. Morgan & Co. as fiscal agents of the Russian Government.

The accepted bills will be turned into cash by J. P. Morgan & Co., and the proceeds credited to Russia, which may then draw checks against them in payment for purchases as they are made. The most probable way of turning the acceptances into cash will be their sale in the open market. Since the establishment of the Federal Reserve system a market for acceptances has been growing slowly and for some time rates for acceptances have been regularly quoted, something heretofore unknown in this country.

Acceptances in Demand.

Acceptances have been in strong demand by banks and other investors and have ruled at lower rates than commercial paper. Acceptances were quoted yesterday at 3 to 3½ per cent. The Russian bills are being negotiated at 5 per cent. so that if they could all be sold at yesterday's rates the accepting bankers would have a profit at the rate of 1 to 1½ per cent. per annum or ¼ to ⅜ for the 90 days. They also receive a commission of ½ of 1 per cent. for accepting the bills.

In case the market would not readily absorb all the bills on favorable terms, the arrangement contains a provision that would make it possible for them to be rediscounted at the Federal Reserve Bank. Each member of the group obligates itself to discount these Russian bills, accepted by other members of the group, up to the amount of its own participation, at 5 per cent. National banks that might thus discount at 5 per cent. bills accepted by other members of the group, whether national banks or not, could rediscount them at the Federal Reserve Bank at 4½ per cent., the present bank rate. In this case their profit would be at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent. per annum, or one-eighth of 1 per cent. for the ninety days. They would still have the one-half of 1 per cent. commission charged for accepting their own proportion of the issue.

Reserve Bank Backing.

While it is not likely that the market would fail to absorb the entire amount at a lower rate than the bank rate, the fact that the reserve bank stands in the background as a guarantee against any failure to market the notes is believed to have been a factor in making possible a transaction which is of an entirely new character in this country, so far as a loan to a foreign power is concerned, but which is quite the usual thing in London.

Aside from recourse to its rediscount functions, the Federal Reserve Bank might easily help to absorb the Russian bills by direct investment. Acceptances are at the top of the list of desirable investments for the Reserve Banks and the Russian bills, accepted by the leading banks and bankers, will be of the choicest character. The Reserve Banks have been desirous all along of investing in acceptances, but have so far been unable to do so because the Federal Reserve Board has not yet formulated the rules under which such investments may be made. These rules are expected daily, however, and may be promulgated before the Russian bills come on the market.

In case of such purchases by the Reserve Bank the bills would be bought in the market, at the market rate. The New York City bills recently bought by the Federal Reserve Bank were on a basis of 3 19-32 per cent., which was arrived at by negotiation between the Controller and the Reserve Bank. The bank would be making nearly as good an investment in buying the Russian bills at yesterday's market rate of 3 to 3½, especially as the difference just about measures the fall in rates since the city bills were sold.

The arrangement with the Russian Government provides for a renewal of the bills for another ninety days, if desired. This extension would be accomplished by drawing new ninety-day bills on the same terms and having them accepted by the members of the group, who would again receive a commission of one-half of 1 per cent. With the proceeds of the sale of the new bills the old ones would be paid. When the second set of bills matures the Russian Government will have to find some way, either by the issue of new securities or by the deposit of cash with J. P. Morgan & Co., as its fiscal agent, to take them up.

World's Money Centre Shifting.

The loan to the Russian Government in this form attracted much attention yesterday as another evidence of the shifting of the world's centres and channels of international finance, giving New York a new position as a money and credit centre, as contrasted with London, where such transactions have usually taken place, heretofore, and reinforcing such signs of New York's growing importance as the flow of gold from China to this market.

The imports of gold bars from Shanghai were followed close yesterday by arrangements for a shipment of gold from London, the first to come since the war began. For some time sterling exchange has been on a basis that would make it profitable to import gold from London, but artificial barriers have been raised on the other side and high rates of insurance have been a deterrent influence. The Guaranty Trust Company arranged yesterday, however, for a shipment of $200,000 from London in French coin.

This was described as a special transaction but it was taken as a sign that London would not raise insuperable obstacles to a gold movement this way. The gold was in no sense released by the Bank of England, but the Bank might easily have prevented its being picked up in the market, if it had cared to bid high enough for the lot of French coin.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13.—Prominent Petrograd bankers say that the loan negotiated in New York with the group headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. is a forerunner of further credits to be extended to Russia by American financiers.

The President of an important Petrograd bank has left for New York, where he expects to confer with financiers and Government officials with the idea of perfecting Russian exchange facilities.

DISCOUNT RATES REDUCED.

Cleveland and Dallas Now on Par with Other Reserve Districts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Cleveland and Dallas, the only two Federal Reserve Banks which kept the 5 per cent. rate for discounting commercial paper having thirty days or less to run, today applied for the 4½ per cent. rate which is in force at most of the other centres. All of the twelve banks now have 4½ per cent. for their thirty-day rate except San Francisco, where the rate is 4 per cent. Richmond reduced its rate on agriculture and live stock paper having over ninety days to run to 5½ per cent. This is ½ per cent. lower than the rate in force at other reserve banks.

The Reserve Board heard today the argument of Pittsburgh bankers who want their city named as a Federal Reserve city in place of Cleveland. Decision was reserved.

The Reserve Board announced today that the requirement that certifications as to character of commercial paper offered for rediscount had been postponed until July 15. In the meantime the reserve banks may accept as evidence that the proceeds of the paper offered are to be used for agriculture, industrial or commercial purposes, a written statement from the officer of the applying bank that of his own knowledge the original loan was made for the purposes mentioned.

MEXICO TO GIVE UP NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Report That Government Is to Turn System Over to the Directors

BEFORE FEB. 20 MEETING

Villa and Zapata Men May Be Chosen to Fill Vacant Places on the Board.

The call by the Mexican Government for an extraordinary meeting of the shareholders of the National Railways of Mexico, in Mexico City, for Feb. 20, assumed greater importance yesterday because of well-founded reports received here that the railways would soon be turned back to the Directors. The railways, according to the reports, will be formally transferred by the Government before the day set for the special meeting.

In the Huerta régime the Government, while assuming some direction of the railway properties in Mexico, did not presume to control them. The National Railways Company continued to carry on its business with regularity. The Huerta Government sought in every way to facilitate the meeting of expenses, and on several occasions arranged for payments of interest on bonds in script. Last August, however, Carranza seized the property. He failed to extend assistance where Huerta had done so. Railroad business was thrown into chaos.

Then Villa and Zapata entered Mexico City and turned the tables on Carranza. Since that time, according to the reports, the official attitude toward the railroads has changed. Villa indicated a willingness to help the railroad company and to assist in replacing its properties on a running basis.

There are four American points from which trains leave over the National Railways to Mexico City. These are Brownsville, Laredo, Eagle Pass, and E. Paso. The lines running out of these cities form two main lines which enter the Mexican capital. The line from El Paso to Mexico City, under the Villa supervision, has been opened within the last few weeks, but the through line from Laredo, according to the latest reports, is still closed and therefore not an earning factor.

The running time from El Paso to Mexico City under normal conditions is two days and a half. Trains are now making the trip in about five days, which is considered good time in view of the conditions. This important accomplishment, it was said by men interested yesterday, indicated that Villa and Zapata were lending effective aid toward a quick restoration of the railroad properties to normal activity.

Several vacancies in the Directorate of the National Railways will be filled at the February meeting, and it is understood that Villa and Zapata men will be chosen for the places. The report of the road, as of June 30, 1914, will be submitted. This was not ready for presentation at the October meeting. The February meeting will not be, as was stated yesterday, an adjournment of the October meeting. The stockholders met in October, but the annual report and balance sheet were not presented then.

Great interest attaches in this country to the expected reversion of the Mexican Railways properties. The popularity of the Villa and Zapata group, it is believed by some, will be enhanced in financial circles when the step is authorized.

CANADIAN RATE INCREASE.

Dominion Commission Likely to Grant Advance to Roads.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—Higher freight rates between points in Canada and the United States, to correspond to the increase recently granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, will go into effect thirty days from tomorrow, if the Dominion Railway Commission gives its sanction within that time. The Commission will first hear any objections that may be raised to the proposed tariffs.

Under the new schedule, the domestic rates for grain from any point along the main lines from Montreal to Boston and New York will be 18.3 cents per 100 pounds. The present rate is 17.5 cents. The charge for grain products, such as rolled oats, bran and other milled products will be 18.8 cents per 100 pounds, against 18 cents at present.

For news print paper, which is sent in large quantities from many mills in Quebec and Ontario, the rate will be increased from 18 cents to 18.9 cents. On the branch lines the increased rates will vary from 18.8 to 19.2 cents, according to distance.

CANADIAN BONDS LISTED.

Province of Alberta First Issue of the Kind on the Exchange.

Governors of the Stock Exchange yesterday listed the first issue of bonds of a province of Canada ever put on the Exchange. It consisted of $5,000,000 4½ per cent. ten-year debentures of the Province of Alberta.

Other listings were $2,437,400 additional preferred stock of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Company; $1,700,000 additional 5 per cent. gold debentures of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha; $1,250,000 additional 6 per cent. preferred stock of the General Chemical Company; $1,000,000 additional consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent. bonds of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, and $1,000,000 additional stock of the Hackensack Water Company.

STEEL TRADE EXPANDING.

New Business Recorded in Ore and Iron Departments.

Steel trade reports for the week go to show that production is slowly expanding. The Iron Age says:

> Steel works are increasing slightly their rate of operations and for this week a number of large companies are running at 40 to 50 per cent. of capacity. The Steel Corporation's percentage is 45 and it may be able to increase this shortly to 50, as specifications are rather better.
>
> Taking the trade through, the first half of January has brought no new turn. The railroads naturally require some time to canvass and finance their needs and have so indicated in response to intimations that early and very considerable buying was now expected from them.
>
> Wage readjustment, affecting principally the highest paid men, are being made by a number of steel companies and are an inevitable result of the long depression and the low-priced business on which mills will be working for three months and probably longer.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> New business continues to make some progress in the iron and steel industry though the expansion does not appear to be of the proportions shown around the beginning of the new year; in other words, railroad buying, to which so much hopes are primed for bringing the industry out of the slough, has continued to come out only conservatively. A heavy inquiry for rails remains current, but the inclination of managers is to release tonnage guardedly and the total of orders of the past week, does not make a very impressive showing.

More Minimum Price Reductions.

The Stock Exchange yesterday reduced the minimum price on Rumely preferred from 16 to 12, International Agricultural Corporation preferred from 20 to 15, American Express from 97 to 95, Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred from 27 to 25, and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis from 133 to 125. On Tuesday American Snuff was lowered from 145 to 142.

WOOL MARKET FIRM.

Prices Advance and Big Amount of Sales Made During Week.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"The wool market remains firm and active with a very satisfactory turn, considering the limited quantity of wools now on hand. Sales for the week have been 3,500,000 pounds. Prices have advanced on certain lines and fleeces have been more active than earlier in the season.

"The new South American wools are beginning to arrive and transfers have already been made in some cases. Prices in the primary markets are on such a level that dealers are not operating extensively. A portion of the trade which normally handles large quantities of these wools have not purchased any for the present season, deeming it unadvisable to load up with high-priced wool under present conditions.

"Interest in the embargo and its status is still keen, some of the more conservative dealers placing but little credence in the reports that it has been so modified as to permit the importation of merinos.

"The woolen goods market shows no great change from its condition in recent weeks, the uncertainty as to prices and the proper time for the offering of new goods being the problems most under discussion. It is generally conceded that the level of prices will be higher than those of a year ago.

"No great improvement has occurred in the dress goods market, though duplicates are coming forward somewhat more freely than in past weeks. The outlook is much better and there is every indication that domestic distribution, with the export demand, will keep the mills well supplied with orders.

"There is a noticeable improvement in conditions in the cotton goods market. A larger sale of gray goods has taken place, resulting in a more optimistic feeling among the manufacturers. The upward tendency in the raw cotton market has undoubtedly influenced the buyer to a certain extent.

"The fancy goods trade shows an improvement since some of the large retailers have made their Spring offerings. The fabrics in greatest demand are the silk and cotton combinations and light-weight ground fabrics.

"An encouraging increase of business is noticeable in the yarn trade, inquiries being much more numerous and the number of actual orders placed showing a gratifying upward tendency."

COPPER ASSOCIATION QUITS.

Monthly Reports Found to Give Consumers Undue Advantage.

Members of the Copper Producers' Association voted yesterday to dissolve the organization and make no more monthly reports of production and distribution. The association included the Amalgamated Copper Company, the American Smelting & Refining Company, Phelps, Dodge & Co., and the Lake Superior companies, and its records covered all the refinery output of copper in the United States.

It has been known for some time that the Amalgamated and other companies were opposed to the publication of the monthly figures because of the apparent advantage they gave consumers without any corresponding returns to the refiners. A monthly statement of supplies at the refineries, for instance, showed buyers exactly how much copper the producers had to sell while there was no public announcement of the state of consumers' supplies.

When the war began the monthly statements were discontinued for the first time since the association was organized late in 1908. The Executive Committee, which conducted most of the work of the organization, consisted of James McLean of Phelps, Dodge & Co.; R. L. Agassiz of the Calumet & Hecla Company, John D. Ryan of the Amalgamated Copper Company and Joseph Clendenin of the American Smelting & Refining Company.

MANY NEW NATIONAL BANKS.

Applications for 238 Were Approved Last Year.

The Treasury Department in Washington reports that 336 new applications to organize national banks were received in 1914. Of the applications pending 238 were approved; 200 banks, with total capital of $20,017,500, were authorized to begin business, of which 116 had individual capital of less than $50,000 and 84 had capital of $50,000 or more.

On Dec. 31, 1914, the total number of national banks organized was 10,672, of which 3,079 had discontinued business, leaving 7,593 banks with an authorized capital of $1,074,382,175 and circulation outstanding, secured by United States bonds, $720,332,713, and by other securities, $150,836,692.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The European demand for American wheat seems to be absolutely insatiable, and while cash premiums over futures yesterday showed gains of 1 to 4 cents a bushel from those of Tuesday, export sales were estimated at about 1,500,000 bushels, and the prices paid were the highest on the crop. The Liverpool market was firm and higher, and during the day the May position in Chicago sold up to $1.41, or within three-quarters of a cent of the previous high point of the season and 7½c above the low point of Monday. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.47¾ and No. 2 hard at $1.48¼, all rail, cost, insurance, and freight, track; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.41¾, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.48¼, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

CORN.

Heavy receipts of corn at interior points and indications that farmers are satisfied with present prices served to send prices of corn down ⅛ to ¼c in the face of the strength in wheat and reports of export sales of about 500,000 bushels. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 78¾c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive, and prime Argentine at 77c nominal, delivered.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products broke sharply after a steady opening, and it was evident that longs were selling heavily, influenced by liberal supplies and prospects of continued heavy receipts of hogs. Receipts at leading Western points amounted to 139,000, and of this amount Chicago received 41,000, Kansas City 12,000, and Omaha 13,000. Estimated receipts of hogs at Chicago for Thursday were 36,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was easier early in the day under further liquidation prompted by the decline in lard, but shorts seemed disposed to cover, and late in the session a steadier feeling developed, final quotations being generally about 1 point net lower.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday 6,170 packages. General trade is still very quiet, but the market is without material change. The high grades of fresh creamery comprise so small a part of the stock that values for these are sustained, but other grades lean in buyers' favor. Storage creamery slow. Renovated quiet. EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 6,402 cases. The market is extremely bare of high-grade fresh-gathered eggs, and there is hardly enough stock available to supply the urgent requirements of the trade. Prices are higher and firm for the moment, although it would require only a slight increase in the supply to overstock the present demand. Storage eggs very firm, and recent sales warrant a further slight advance in quotations. Nearby white eggs cleaning up fairly well at firm prices. Special Announcement in order to accommodate its increasing regular Fall and Winter patronage, and also those Americans and Canadians who are prevented by the European war from being abroad, will keep both the Marlborough side and the Blenheim side of the house open this Winter, instead of closing one side, as heretofore.

The Marlborough-Blenheim,

This will enable the supplying of a private bathroom with hot and cold salt and fresh water with every room, and for these bathrooms no extra charge will be made during the Fall and Winter Season.

The house occupies two blocks of ocean front, and its heated parlor solariums overlooking the Boardwalk and the sunny south ocean exposure are most attractive. Exquisite music every evening throughout the year.

White Service in both the ala Carte and the American plan dining rooms.

Atlantic City

with its invigorating, bright Fall climate, is particularly attractive over week-ends at this season. Golf, roller chairs, theatres, and countless recreations and amusements.

BARNEY DROPS SUIT AGAINST DR. CHESSIN

Husband Pledged Himself to Give Any Damages Recovered to Post-Graduate Hospital.

Dr. Alexander S. Chessin, formerly professor of mathematics at Johns Hopkins University and later special lecturer at Harvard and Columbia Universities, who was arrested on Aug. 20, 1914, in a suit brought by Marshall A. Barney, an attorney, to recover $100,000 for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Barney's affections, was vindicated yesterday, when Barney withdrew the suit voluntarily and made this retraction:

> New York, Jan. 13, 1915.
> To Alexander S. Chessin.
>
> Dear Sir: I hereby withdraw and retract any, each and all allegations, statements and charges made by me in my complaint and in any and all affidavits heretofore made by me in my sut against you for the alleged alienation of my wife's affections, as I am now satisfied that such statements, charges and allegations were without foundation in fact and were untrue. I hereby authorize you to publish the above as fully and in any manner that you may choose.
> yours truly, MARSHALL A. BARNEY.

The trial of the case was to have begun today before Justice Lester W. Clerk of the Supreme Court at St. George, S. I. Mr. Barney, who has a law office at 154 Nassau Street, sent a representative to see his wife a few days ago at the home of her step-father, George F. Martin, at 13 Britton Street, Jersey City, and asked her to consent to a withdrawal of the suit on the ground that he did not wish to cause her any further annoyance. A copy of the retraction was taken to the office of John S. Wise, Jr., counsel for Prof. Chessin, at 20 Broad Street, and Mr. Wise signed a release of all claims against Barney and agreed not to prosecute an action for false arrest after the withdrawal of the suit. Prof. Chessin said he did this in consideration of Mrs. Barney and her family. In one of his affidavits in the suit Barney said:

> I am not pursuing this action from sordid motives. I have pledged myself to donate every dollar recovered in this action to the children's department of the New York Post-Graduate Hospital.

In another part of the same affidavit, in commenting upon counsel for the defendant's alleged "parade of the virtues of his client," Mr. Barney makes this statement:

> I claim the right to also state that I am an honorable man. I am a graduate of the Imperial University system of education promulgated by the mountaineers of Pennsylvania; a son of his royal highness, an American citizen; my degrees have been taken at the plow, the corn field, and the woodpile. I entered a law office in short trousers and graduated after cooking my own meals between study hours for over one year. I have never been a professor of pure or impure mathematics, but I am a professor of love for the great human family and of a just regard for the honor of the wives and mothers of my neighbors.
> I have been the sole support of my mother and an invalid sister since the day I began practicing law.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney were married on Dec. 24, 1907. Mrs. Barney, who was 18 years old at the time of her marriage, was Miss Claire T. Bell, and had been a stenographer in a Nassau Street law office where Barney was a law clerk. After their home at 22 Schuyler Court, Bayonne, N. J., which Barney owned, had been destroyed by fire, they went to live in a boarding house at 7 Richmond Avenue, Arrochar, S. I., where Prof. Chessin was staying. There he met the Barneys in January, 1914. In addition to his other accomplishments Prof. Chessin is a musician.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Plans Being Prepared to Improve Old Astor House Site—West Seventy-First Street Dwelling Sold—Two Hundred Brooklyn Lots Traded for Bronx Flat House.

Among the few features of interest provided by the realty market yesterday was the announcement that Vincent Astor is preparing to improve at an early date the southerly half of the old Astor House plot, now used by the city in connection with the construction of the Broadway Subway.

This portion, being the Vesey Street corner, was leased to the city when the easement for the Subway was acquired nearly two years ago, the city paying about $600,000.

The lease of the land expires in March and tentative plans for a high-class office building of about eight stories in height have been prepared by the architect, Charles A. Platt. Several plans, it was said, have been under advisement for the improvement of the corner and while nothing positive has yet been decided upon, it is the intention of the Astor Estate to make some worthy improvement on the plot as soon as the lease to the city expires. The Broadway frontage is 100.7 feet by 157.6 on Vesey Street.

Buyer For 10 West 71st Street.

Mrs. Imogene Granberry has sold to a client of Pease & Elliman, 10 West Seventy-first Street, a four-story and basement private dwelling on a lot 20 by 100, located between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue.

200 Brooklyn Lots Traded.

M. S. Auerbach, President of the Fort Washington Realty Company transferred to Michael F. Burns, yesterday 200 lots located on Coney Island Avenue, Neck Road and Eleventh and Twelfth Avenues, Brooklyn.

In part payment the buyer gave 1,064 to 1,070 Franklin Avenue, and 1,282 Stebbins Avenue, five-story flats located in the Bronx.

The lots just disposed of were taken in trade about a year ago by the sellers for Bradley Court, a ten-story apartment at 165th Street and Broadway.

Bank Takes Pine Street Loft.

Important among the aucton offerings yesterday was the ten-story office building of 7 Pine Street, which was sold by Joseph P. Day in foreclosure proceedings brought by the Seaman's Savings Bank against Felix Bertine and others to recover judgments with back taxes of over $161,000. It was brought in by the bank on a bid of $160,000. The building covers a plot 21.1 by 73.9, adjoining the Schermerhorn Building and opposite the Equitable Building.

Uptown Dwellings Traded.

Ennis & Sinnatt, operators, have sold to an investor 420 West 150th Street, a three-story private dwelling on a lot 16.6 by 81.11, located between Convent and St. Nicholas Avenues.

In part payment the buyer gave 240 West 123d Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 13.10 by 100.11. James E. Barry & Company negotiated the trade.

Six-inch Strip Sold.

A small plot in the Chelsea section has just been sold by the Duross Company for Aaron Brown. The plot has a frontage of six inches and a depth of 98.9. It lies between the houses at 335 and 337 West Twenty-eighth Street, in the block between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, on the north side and has never been leased. The Richard Ray Estate holds title to 335 and Maurice Fitzgerald to 337.

Bronx Sales.

Clement H. Smith sold for Charles Halley to a corporation, 2070 Honeywell Avenue, a two-story dwelling, on plot 56 by 98, between 179th and 180th Streets.

A plot of four lots on the east side of Jerome Avenue, 100 feet south of 175th Street, has been sold by E. Osborne Smith for Mae E. Powers to a client who will improve the property with taxpayer buildings. The plot has a frontage of 100 feet. The seller acquired the plot last June from Ira H. Parker.

Brooklyn.

Cahn & Pittman have sold to G. Rampollo the three one-family stucco dwellings, 8,631, 8,633 and 8,635 Sixteenth avenue, each on a lot 19 by 108.

Increases Long Island Acreage.

S. Osgood Pell & Co., as agents, have sold for the Wampage Realty Company, to Clarence H. Eagle, thirty-two plots at Wampage, Sands Point, L. I. The property adjoins the country place recently sold to Mr. Eagle by the same brokers.

A Recent Buyer.

Commercial Leases.

Bastine & Co., agents of the Harnett Estate, have leased at 15 and 17 West Twenty-sixth Street, the store and basement to M. Fishbein & Co., dealers in woolens, now at 79 Fifth Avenue.

A. Q. Orza has rented to Grasso Bros. the store and basement at 180 Prince street for the sale of Italian wines.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The Coast storm of Tuesday has passed into the North Atlantic after causing strong north gales and general rains and snows in the Atlantic States. Over the remainder of the country the weather was fair, except over the middle and north districts west of the Rocky Mountains, where there were rains and snows. With another severe storm approaching the North Pacific Coast, pressure is very low north of Lake Superior.

It is colder in New England and New York and the extreme Northwest and generally warmer elsewhere, with temperatures above the seasonal average, except in the South. Rains and snows will continue Thursday and Friday over the middle and north district west of the Rockies, and will extend into Montana and Northern Wyoming.

Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Thursday and Friday.

It will be colder Thursday in the upper lake region, the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, and probably on Friday in the lower lake region. It will be warmer Friday in the Northwest.

Winds along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts Thursday and Friday will be moderate north, becoming variable, and shifting to south by Friday; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate, becoming north and northeast.

THIRD RAIL ALIVE IN SUBWAY HORROR

Accident Showed No Danger to Passengers in This, Hedley Says.

INQUIRY TAKES NEW TURN

Interborough Directors Sign $1,000 Bail Bonds in Coroner's Office —Grand Jury to Act.

For an hour after the Subway was tied up on Wednesday of last week, when one woman died and hundreds were injured by the smoke and fumes of the burning electric insulation, passengers were moving about the tracks without finding their way to the street, with the third rail still alive. This fact was brought out yesterday to the astonishment of the Public Service Commission at the adjourned inquiry into the accident, and when Chairman McCall asked Frank Hedley, General Manager and Vice President of the Interborough, if this was not very dangerous, he replied that the experience of the accident showed it was not.

This information affected considerably the course of the investigation. Leroy T. Harkness, assistant counsel for the commission, had been asking Mr. Hedley if he did not think that some better system might not be introduced whereby the train crews would assist the passengers in an emergency to the street, on the supposition that during this hour it was certain that the Subway was hopelessly out of business. But J. L. Quackenbush pointed out that as it was impossible to tell whether the cars might not run again, the decision whether the passengers should be kept in the cars or not was a mere matter of judgment.

This line of evidence was begun by Dr. Samson Benderly, who lives at Edgewater, and has an office at 356 Seventh Avenue. He said he was in the local train, which stopped within fifty feet of the burning splicing chamber. There was not much heat, and no one was frightened. The lights went out after they had been halted for ten minutes, but then came back again but were rather dim. The smoke was not serious, but merely gave him a "tickling in the throat."

Women Wept and Ran.

At 8:42 o'clock he got out at the suggestion of a passenger, and found several persons walking about on the tracks "in a leisurely fashion." Some one told him the third rail was dead. Then he climbed into the local behind the one he got out of, and that after a time started and ran down the track for about half a block. He found the air in it purer than in the tunnel, and he sat down and read his newspaper for several minutes.

After a time the people began to get nervous, and Dr. Benderly spoke in particular of one woman who had looked "jolly," but now lost her nerve and began to call out as the smoke thickened: "I am fainting. I can't stand this," and seemed as if she would have convulsions. Then the women began weeping, and they all made for the door. A man in overalls stood and helped them out, and when the crush became heavy climbed in and shouldered people back. Dr. Benderly declared, however, that so little was he impressed by the seriousness of the situation that at 9:15 o'clock, when he emerged into Broadway from the emergency ladders, he was rather indignant at any one coming to help him.

Dr. Benderly's testimony gave rise to a number of questions, which Mr. Hedley had to answer when he took the stand. He admitted that two hours seemed a long time to wait to get the people out of the Subway, although it depended upon the time and place, but he said he had not yet any definite ideas of improvements to the service as a result of the accident.

"Ought not the train crews to be instructed in getting people out?" asked Mr. Harkness.

"It is one of the things for which we try to get 100 per cent. efficiency. Each man has his special duties. The motorman must look after his train and aid the passengers, and each guard must be at his door."

"Then there would be no one to show the passengers the way as they got off the trains?"

"No employes are regularly on the track, but any of them would direct passengers," replied Mr. Hedley.

Hedley Wants Suggestions.

Chairman McCall appealed to Mr. Hedley's experience, but the General Manager asserted that with all his experience and knowledge of the training his men had and the panicky state they had to face, he had exhausted his ideas and would be glad for suggestions.

"In such conditions," he said, "with hysterical women and excitable men, it would be very difficult for a trainhand to raise his voice so as to be able to control and direct the passengers to safety."

Mr. Hedley was so positive in asserting that he could not think of any improvement to the present system, that Mr. Quackenbush had to break in and explain that, of course, he meant he could suggest nothing without further study of the situation.

Certain records, to show exactly the periods during which the electric current was on and off during the accident, were handed in by Mr. Hedley, but he asked time to go through them. Asked how long that would take, he said:

"That depends on which one of the eight or nine investigations in progress is to have precedence. We have a circus running here now."

"Strike that from the records," said the Chairman. "Mr. Hedley, you must not make such remarks."

"Assuming the third rail to have been alive," asked the Chairman, "do you think it safe to empty your trains and let passengers walk—women and children and men?"

"Under the circumstances, yes, sir," replied Mr. Hedley. "Several thousand did so that morning without injury. If the lights were out in the tunnel the lights in the trains were sufficient. The third rail is covered and you would have to get your hand under it to get a shock."

"I should have thought it better to keep passengers in the cars," said the Chairman.

Hedley Not Overserious.

"It's a balance of dangers," put in Mr. Quackenbush. "We can call witnesses to show that many passengers refused to leave the cars. You must remember the motorman could not see the accident as we see it now."

Commissioner Williams wanted to know why the cars were not backed up to the nearest stations, but Mr. Hedley explained that in the rush hours that would have led to hopeless confusion.

At this point it was intimated to the Chairman that Mr. Hedley had to go to the Coroner's office to give bail.

"That's the circus I referred to," said Mr. Hedley, "when you very properly had my remark struck from the minutes."

The Chairman smiled. Commissioner Cram was heard to say something about "excusable," and Mr. Hedley said with mock resignation:

"I expect to be pinched any minute."

Mr. Harkness then explained that it was clear that improvements would have to be made in the splicing chambers, the number of emergency exits, the separation of the high and low tension cables, the connection of the light and signal circuits with the power stations by independent cables, and the increase in the lighting system. To enable the commission to make an order on these matters as quickly as possible, he asked that the inquiry be formally closed and a new one begun on these lines next Wednesday.

The commission accordingly ordered this, and the investigation will proceed on these new lines next Wednesday.

District Attorney Takes Coroner's Verdict to Grand Jury.

Coroner Riordan after announcing in the morning that he would not insist upon the officials and directors of the Interborough giving $5,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury on the finding of his jury that they had been guilty of culpable negligence in connection with the Ninth Avenue elevated accident, decided yesterday afternoon that after all he must require bonds. He reduced the amount, however, to $1,000 apiece.

He also wrote to District Attorney Perkins, informing him that he had thus held Theodore P. Shonts, August Belmont, Horace M. Fisher, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Edward J. Berwind, Edward R. Bacon, Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Andrew Freedman, Charles B. Ludlow, W. Leon Pepperman, F. de C. Sullivan, Edwin S. Marston, Earl F. Starbard, and Daniel G. Reid. He was, he said, forwarding the District Attorney a copy of the minutes of the inquest, which he considered luminous, and he added:

"Criticism has been directed at me for the perseverence with which I sought the truth as to whether or not the officials of this company have violated the laws of the State of New York in failing to provide proper appliances to safeguard the lives of passengers. I am satisfied, however, that the verdict rendered by the jury was consistent with the evidence and the law applicable in such matters."

Directors Sign Bail Bonds.

W. L. Pepperman and H. M. Fisher were the first of the directors to appear at the Coroner's office, and gave their bonds from the National Surety Company. Then D. G. Reid, E. S. Marston and E. B. Bacon came in together and signed similar bonds, Mr. Reid insisting on reading the one handed to him all through before he signed.

T. P. Shonts, August Belmont, Andrew Freedman and C. B. Ludlow were the next to call on the Coroner, and when the formalities were over, Mr. Shonts remarked:

"I don't know what I swore to. What was it?"

"That you wouldn't run away from the jurisdiction of the courts," he was told.

"I guess there's not much fear of that," Mr. Shonts said, with a smile.

Earl F. Starbard, Frank Hedley, E. J. Berwind, F. de C. Sullivan and Cornelius Vanderbilt also came in and gave their bonds, and the only one missing was T. De Witt Cuyler. He lives in Philadelphia, but it was promised that he would appear before the Coroner today.

District Attorney Perkins could not discuss the matter yesterday, as he had not yet received a transcript of the Coroner's evidence. He would, he said, present it to the Grand Jury in the ordinary way, and if there were any need of calling for further evidence he would do so. If any of the Interborough officials desire to be heard they must volunteer their testimony, as the District Attorney is not willing to raise any questions of immunity by asking them to appear.

Quackenbush vs. Riordan.

Meanwhile the dispute between Coroner Riordan and J. L. Quackenbush and Martin E. Burke, counsel for the Interborough, which began in the Coroner's Court on Tuesday, is by no means over. The Coroner said yesterday they ought to apologize to him, and that he intended to bring their behavior to the notice of the Bar Association. Mr. Quackenbush stated that as soon as he had transcripts of the evidence before the Coroner he intended to send one copy to Gov. Whitman, another to the Bar Association, and a third to Commissioner of Accounts Leonard Wallstein.

"When I was District Attorney at Buffalo I drove out the Coroners there, and I will do the same thing here," said Mr. Quackenbush. "When I have started a thing I put it through."

WANT MORE CARS TO FLUSHING

Association Asks Court to Mandamus Service Board.

John Holley Clark, Jr., appeared before Justice Lehman yesterday in the Supreme Court to move for a mandamus addressed to the Public Service Commission, to compel it to enforce its order to the New York & Queens County Railway Co. for the provision of sixty-seven new cars. Mr. Clark pointed out that the commission was quite willing to hand out an "opinion" that more cars should be provided, but it would never enforce its order.

Justice Lehman said he did not see how a court of equity could step in and compel a commission to do something which was left within its discretion. George S. Coleman, counsel for the commission, pointed out that Mr. Clark had already laid a petition with the grievances of the Flushing Association before the Governor. The order for sixty-seven new cars would have caused an outlay to the company of $700,000, which would have involved an issue of stock. As the new subway system would take away much of the company's traffic, it is naturally unwilling to undertake this.

COST OF TRANSFERRING CARS.

Shonts Writes on Use of Composite Type on Elevated.

After a meeting of the Interborough Directors yesterday, Theodore P. Shonts wrote to the Public Service Commission that the 478 composite cars to be transferred from the Subway to the elevated must be bought under the certificate granted for the third tracking of elevated lines, and that to run them it will be necessary to strengthen the third tracks and to lengthen the proposed express stations. The Interborough asks that, when the cars have been turned out of the Subway, a depreciation for their charge be eliminated from the dual system subway contract. The company's expenditures may postpone the time at which the city will begin to draw revenue from the elevated.

Mr. Shonts's letter will be considered by the commission next week.

THIRD AV. ELEVATED STALLED

Fire in Cables Stopped Traffic for Four Hours.

By a fire similar to that which occurred on Wednesday of last week in the subway the traffic on the Third Avenue Elevated lines was tied up yesterday morning for four hours below Thirty-fourth Street. The blaze occurred in five cables leading to the power house of the Interborough at Division Street. This put five of the six cables on which the Third Avenue trains depend for their supply out of business from Thirty-fourth Street south.

The passengers, growing tired of waiting in the stalled cars, climbed out and made their way over the structure to the nearest stations. The fire was soon put out by sand.

SERVICE BOARD'S REPORT.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—The annual report of the Public Service Commission for the First District was presented tonight to the Legislature. The commission reports that it awarded twenty-four construction contracts in connection with the new subways as well as several for track materials, the amount expended aggregating $52,000,000, more than double the amount expended in 1913.

The money paid out by the city and the companies in the last twelve months to contractors was $25,000,000 or more than $2,000,000 a month, and the commission considers that this has been a considerable help in improving business conditions. Of these payments the Interborough made about $4,000,000, the B. R. T. $600,000, and the city the rest.

The running expenses of the Commission during the last year have been about $3,000,000. Of this about $2,500,000 should be charged up to the new construction work, and will be included under the dual contract in the cost of subway construction. The other expenses of the commission for regularity work amounted to $500,000 or about 15 per cent. of the total. The increase in the expenses of the commission in the last year is attributed to the increase in the engineering staff, needed because of the great amount of construction work.

The commission now employs about 2,100 persons, of whom 1,80 are engaged entirely on the rapid transit work, and the other 300 on regulation work.

Clarence E. F. Hetrick Gets High Vote and Will Be "Mayor."

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 13.—It was late this morning before the result of the election for five Commissioners to govern this city was known. There were 2,290 votes scattered among the fifty-seven aspirants. Those elected are Clarence E. F. Hetrick, Howard D. Le Roy, George W. Pittinger, William C. Borroughs, and Martin L. Bamman.

If the new commission follows the usual custom of making the high man in the polling the presiding officer with the title of Mayor that official will be Mr. Hetrick. He got 1,091.

The other four elected were fairly well bunched in the voting. Borroughs received 889, Bamman 884, Le Roy 869, Pittinger 833.
